Dunlop rejects Ford's plea, quits Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — John T. Dunlop, who says a recent veto by President Ford left him in an unworkable position with unions, has resigned as secretary of labor, the White House said today. Dunlop quit despite a last-minute plea from the President to stay on the job.

Dunlop resigned in a one-paragraph letter to Ford dated Tuesday and released by the White House along with a letter of reply from the President dated today. Ford's letter praised Dunlop and accepted his resignation "with very great reluctance."

"This letter records my resignation as secretary of labor and coordinator of the President's labor-management committee," Dunlop wrote. "I have appreciated the opportunity once again to try to be of service to the country and to you, Mr. President, to the best of my ability. Your willingness to listen to divergent views and numerous courtesies to me, I shall always cherish."

Ford said he received Dunlop's letter "with the deepest regret" and added: "You will be greatly missed by all who have had the privilege of working with you."

The announcement came one day after Dunlop met privately with the President to inform him of his decision. Dunlop maintains that his position with organized labor was unworkable in the aftermath of Ford's veto of the controversial common-site picketing bill.

The measure would have expanded union picketing rights at construction sites.

In the exchange of letters, Ford told Dunlop: "Although I understand your reasons for making this decision and accept your resignation, you should know that do so wth very great reluctance."

Ford added: "You have demonstrated your strong devotion to public service and your deep understanding of labor issues in the country ... Your contributions to the development of a sound set of policies and organization for the Department of Labor have been both extensive and effective."

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, called Dunlop's resignation "unfortunate for the nation but completely understandable ..."

"By making it impossible for ... Dunlop to be fully effective in his office, President Ford has deprived himself, his administration and the nation of a secretary of labor whose mastery of economics and labor-management relations were so valuable in helping guide us out of the recession," Williams said in a statement.

"The country's working people have lost their most important ally in the Ford administration."

During the 35-minute White House session requested by Dunlop, the President tried unsuccessfully to talk him out of quitting, according to informed sources. However, Dunlop agreed to remain in the Cabinet until January 31, when he is expected to return to his teaching post at Harvard University.

The most frequently mentioned choice to succeed him is W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is highly regarded by both labor and management.

Dunlop's resignation came as no surprise. He had been reassessing his position since Ford announced Dec. 22 that he would veto the bill that would have broadened picketing rights at construction sites. The bill has been sought by organized labor since the Truman administration.

5 of 9 valley hospitals reduce hours of staffs

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Five of the nine valley area hospitals have curtailed the hours of their staffs because of lowered patient census in the wake of the spreading physicians' slowdown.

Two other hospitals report that their operations are relatively normal, while one, Chino General Hospital has had an increase in patient load

All nine hospitals said that emergency room care is being maintained with adequate staff and specialists on hand.

The slowdown has resulted from physicians' reaction to the crisis caused by medical malpractice insurance premium rate hikes predicted as high as 468 per cent.

It is being felt at Inter-Community Hospital in Covina, Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina, San Dimas Community Hospital, Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Docors Hospital in Montclair and Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in Glendora. All of these have reduced employes' hours, except PVCH.

San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland, and Park Avenue Hospital, Pomona, report that their patient census remains stable and so does their employment.

All staff members, from the administrator down, are working a four-day week at Inter-Community Hospital at Covina, where the patient census is at 64 per cent of capacity.

This is down from the normal for January, a spokesman said. While the hospital is not doing any elective surgeries, 10 emergency surgeries were completed on Monday.

"We are continuing emergency and cancer operations," the spokesman at the Covina hospital said. She added that the emergency room case load was "about normal."

Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina appears to be one of the hardest hit, with its census down about 40 per cent from normal. Here, too, only emergency surgery is being done.

The hours of employes have been cut back, but no layoffs have been necessary to date, according to their public relations office. Queen of the Valley has had some increase in cases at its 24-hour-a-day emergency room.

David Robinson, administrator at San Dimas Community Hospital, said Tuesday that the patient census is down 20 per cent from normal.

"We are not doing any elective surgery. Therefore, we have cut back on the hours of our staff," said Robinson.

"However, we are still doing two or three emergency surgeries every day."

The San Dimas hospital serves as a paramedic base for the area. As such, the emergency room there is operating full-time.

Robinson added that this week the emergency room case load has been up about 25 per cent.

Pomona Valley Community Hospital's patient census dropped by 15 per cent this week over the same time last year.

The hospital is now at 60 per cent of capacity, according to Robert Burwell, administrator.

At present, none of the staff has been asked to go onto restricted hours, Burwell added.

While no elective surgery is scheduled at the Pomona hospital, 15 surgeries of emergency nature were performed Tuesday. Normally, about 35 surgeries would have been on the schedule, added Burwell.

PVCH's emergency room is open around the clock and backup specialists are available in all medical services for necessary care, said the administrator.

John Towers, administrator at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland, reported that the patient census is at 80 per cent of capacity, which is "quite normal" for January.

"While our census hasn't dropped, this shouldn't be interpreted as not having a problem," Towers said. "Some of our staff feel the need to demonstrate to get action on the insurance problem, but others are choosing to wait it out.

"We all have a definite problem."

The administrator said that employes at the Upland hospital have not been affected to date and that even the surgery schedule is "nearly normal."

Apparently the most severely affected is Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in Glendora. Figures show that its census is now down by 50 per cent and surgery cases are down by 59 per cent from last year.

However, emergency census remains normal, according to Donald F. Adams, administrator.

Adams said that the emergency department will respond to all emergency care and all specialists, including neurosurgery and orthopedics, are available.

"All elective surgeries have been canceled at the hospital until the conclusion of the doctors' slowdown, and members of the surgical department have been placed 'on call' as of Jan. 5," said Adams.

According to Adams, employe hours are being reduced 40 per cent by means of vacations and voluntary time off. But, he added, if the situation continues, FPH may have to lay off employes.

Park Avenue Hospital is doing business as usual, according to administrator Calvin W. Good Jr.

Good said "The active staff was polled and concluded that there would be no appreciable change in the medical services being rendered at the hospital."

The administrator said that various services are being covered as usual by the family physicians.

"The 24-hour emergency department, as well as the inpatient departments, are continuing to accept Medi-Cal cases as well as others," Good added.

Chino General Hospital reported Tuesday that its patient census was somewhat higher than usual for this time of year.

"We can't really explain it," said Mrs. Edwina Salt, administrative assistant. She reported that the hospital's emergency department was also operating normally and is able to handle any emergencies in the area.

Drunk drive charge for Jesse Unruh

SACRAMENTO (AP) State Treasurer Jesse Unruh was arrested on a drunk driving charge early today, the state Highway Patrol reported.

Patrolman J. E. Weir said he saw Unruh driving erratically on Interstate 80 in Yolo County just across the Sacramento River from the state capitol at 2:15 a.m.

Weir said he stopped the car and Unruh failed a sobriety test.

Unruh, 53, once considered the most powerful Democrat in the state when he was speaker of the state Assembly, was taken to the Yolo County Jail in Woodland where he was fingerprinted, photographed and signed a promise to appear in Washington Justice Court in West Sacramento.

Lt. Tom Dinsdale, shift commander at the jail, described Unruh as cooperative. Dinsdale said Unruh was taken to his home in West Sacramento by a friend he had phoned from jail.

Unruh became speaker of the Assembly in 1961 and held that office more than seven years, longer than anybody else. In 1970, he unsuccessfully ran for governor against Republican Ronald Reagan. He was elected treasurer in 1974.

Schabarum sees tax rate hike

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Federal and state cuts in subsidies for the welfare and other programs could result in a property tax rate increase in Los Angeles County of 40 cents per $100 in assessed valuation, Supervisor Pete Schabarum says.

"We are headed toward a financial impasse," Schabarum said Tuesday, shortly before the Board of Supervisors formally condemned the state and federal subsidy cuts.

"The much-lauded budget cutting actions made by the governor and the federal officials are not budget reductions at all," he added.

Schabarum said the cuts simply meant local taxpayers would have to shoulder the multimillion-dollar costs of the programs.

The cuts also could result in various program cutbacks, including possibly reducing services to the elderly, the blind, the disabled and the indigent and the curtailing of recreational, cultural and medical care facilities.

Price of gasoline down in Southland

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new year has brought significant reductions in the price of gasoline in Southern California — especially at independent stations — the National Automobile Club reports.

The club said Tuesday that gasoline prices have dropped from one to four cents throughout the area since Jan. 1. In the Long Beach area and in the San Fernando Valley, the club said three-and four-cent reductions had gone into effect at independent stations, some of which are selling gas for below 50 cents a gallon.

DETROIT (AP) — Federal drug enforcement officials are continuing a probe of a massive drug ring involving a government-estimated 15,000 tons of marijuana with an estimated street value of over $2 billion.

Six of 21 defendants named in a sealed indictment handed down Dec. 19 and made public Jan. 4 have been in federal court already as a result of a three-year probe of the drug ring, which operated nationwide using marijuana supplies in Mexico and South America.

Agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration of the U.S. Department of Justice said the quantity of marijuana seized in the raids in eight states was relatively small. But the information pieced together from the raids proved it was one of the biggest operations in U.S. drug history, they said.

Agents said the coast-to-coast activity included a shooting in which one of those named in the indictment killed a co-conspirator and wounded a second man in a burst of gunfire in suburban Farmington Hills, Mich., in May 1974.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Peter M. Rosen said the shooting climaxed an argument over a dump truck loaded with nearly a ton of marijuana.

James Spencer Thornton of Detroit was convicted on a first-degree murder charge in that slaying and was sentenced to life imprisonment in Southern Michigan prison in Jackson. He has appealed the conviction.

Rosen said the probe by the federal grand jury in Detroit produced evidence of largescale drug transactions.

Rosen said that in addition to the 21 persons indicted in the continuing inquiry, another 22 were named as co-conspirators, not codefendants, in the sweeping inquiry.

Slush fund scandal

4 Gulf Oil execs resign

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob R. Dorsey, under fire because of an illegal company slush fund that doled out more than $12 million to politicians at home and abroad, resigned today as chairman and chief executive of the Gulf Oil Corp.

The resignation of Dorsey and three other top officers climaxed a dramatic and extraordinary meeting of Gulf's board of directors. The two-day meeting ended at about 1 a.m. today after a 16-hour session that had directors sending out for meals.

In making the changes, the board accepted the so-called "McCloy Report," a 300-page study of Gulf's legal and illegal political contributions. That report found that Dorsey "perhaps chose to shut his eyes to what was going on" with the political slush fund.

The report was prepared by a three-man committee headed by New York attorney John J. McCloy and was turned over to Gulf directors and the Securities and Exchange Commission last Dec. 30.

The slush fund came to light in 1973 when Gulf admitted it had illegally given $100,000 to Richard Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign.

The McCloy report quoted one intermediary as saying he made secret cash payments to Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania of $10,000 a year for about 13 years.

Scott has not denied receiving Gulf payments but has said he only received political donations. He has denied knowing such donations came from corporate funds.

Other Gulf donations included $4 million to the ruling political party in South Korea, $627,000 to Italian political parties and a $100,000 helicopter to the late Bolivian dictator Rene Barientos, who was killed when the aircraft crashed.

The shake-up forced out three other top executives. Herbert C. Manning, Gulf vice president and secretary, resigned as a Gulf officer but will remain as an employe.

Kissinger to leave for Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will fly to Moscow next week for talks with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on a prospective nuclear weapons agreement.

The State Department, in a brief announcement, said Kissinger's three-day visit will begin next Tuesday and concern "questions of mutual interest."

In Moscow, Tass distributed a four-line dispatch saying Kissinger will visit the Soviet Union "to continue discussion on the questions of mutual interest to the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A." It gave no further deails.

The scheduling of Kissinger's previously postponed mission indicates the two superpowers are approaching agreement on a compromise for a new treaty to limit offensive nuclear weapons until 1985.

A well-placed U.S. official said Kissinger would not be making the trip if he were not confident that a breakthrough is now in sight.

The administration plans to shield any new treaty from election-year politics by not submitting it to the Senate for ratification until after the campaign.

Woman with broken hip learns what slowdown really means

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The doctors' malpractice slowdown was only an item on the nightly news for 74-year-old Ella Divic until her hip-shattering fall. Now, awaiting surgery, she says it was "just hell, and nothing else describes it."

"I listened to the news, and I said to myself, 'I hope to God nothing happens to me during this thing,'" she said from her hospital bed Tuesday.

But catastrophe has taken no holiday during the current withholding of services by many doctors over huge increases in malpractice insurance rates this year, as Mrs. Divic discovered Monday morning when she tripped on a sprinkler in her front yard. Her hip was fractured in several places.

Paramedics took her in an ambulance to a hospital emergency room and called her physician, an internist.

"He said he didn't have any orthopedic surgeon he could send me to," said the whitehaired widow. The bone specialists, whose premiums would rise to as much as $36,000 a year under proposed new rates, have been the scarcest of doctors since the walkout began Jan. 1.

But her case was an emergency, and the county's contingency plan gave her two alternatives — transport to the huge county hospital where she would be put into the crowded emergency surgery schedule, or transfer to a hospital where some orthopedist could be found to treat her.

Fortunately, St. Vincent's Hospital, reasonably close by, was still taking a few orthopedic cases. (The hospital's administrator, Vincent F. Guinan, said Tuesday the specialists were beginning to rebel against the influx of patients being referred by the county's Emergency Operations Center — which is trying to ease the burden on the county hospital by shuttling injured persons from one community hospital to another.)

By the time she was transferred to St. Vincent's, it was several hours since her fall and she had received only emergency treatment. Plans for an operation that night fell through, and now it was a day and a half since the accident. Surgery was scheduled for Tuesday evening.

"If this was normal times I could have had this set yesterday, and instead of that I'm lying here suffering," she said, her eyes misting behind thicklensed glasses.

Asked if she sympathized with the doctors' protest, she replied: "I wouldn't use the word sympathize. I can understand their point of view, but I can't concur with it."

Grasping the chrome rails of her bed with aged hands, she inched her way into a more comfortable position.

"Mainly, I've got a lot of sympathy for this old woman now."

Upland city, schools continuing talks on sharing recreation costs

Upland city and schools officials will continue negotiations next Tuesday in an effort to work out a financing plan to offer recreational facilities for citizens.

At the December meeting, Upland School District administrators complained that schools were bearing an inordinate amount of recreational costs by allowing citizens to use school grounds for organized baseball and unorganized play.

Lawns are suffering and when attempts are made to water grass during pre-dawn hours so that afternoon and evening recreation seekers can have dry grounds, early morning joggers complain of sprinklers and wet sneakers.

School trustee William Hutson reported at Tuesday night's board meeting that some headway was made in a city-school district meeting last month. More progress is expected at Tuesday's meeting when efforts are made to iron out financing and cost sharing details between the two governmental bodies.

In other action:

— The board passed a first reading of an affirmative action resolution aimed at hiring more minorities within the system.

— Accepted the resignation of Magnolia School Principal Don Brownell.

— Accepted gifts from private citizens and the PTA of more than $1,100.

— Approved a student teacher agreement with La Verne College and an apprentice program with Chino schools.

Brownell, 40, with the Upland school system 15 years, announced his resignation effective Feb. 1 to become manager of Royal Creations, a furniture manufacturing firm in Cucamonga. The company also operates a plant in Georgia.

Brownell was a teacher in the Upland district five years and served as principal of Magnolia School 10 years.

Frank Migaiolo, a special education teacher, was appointed by the board to fill Brownell's vacancy through June 30.

Restaurant plans will be reviewed

Review of plans for two restaurants will come before the Claremont Architectural Commission when it meets at the Council Chambers tonight at 7:30.

Architect William Abbott is applicant for the Ruddy Duck restaurant, proposed for the site of The Wine Place at 912 W. Foothill Blvd.

The Planning Commission already has approved a conditional use permit to allow the on-sale of alcoholic beverages.

Applicant Bo Farmer wishes to convert a vacant service station at 140 N. Indian Hill Blvd. into "Bo Bun Bin," a fast-food restaurant.

Also on the commission's agenda are a proposed 75-foot-long, 29-foot-wide addition to City Hall, a review of the architectural and site plans for a condominium complex at Seventh Street and Yale Avenue, and permanent signs for the Claremont Playhouse at Griswold's a service station at 806 S. Indian Hill Blvd., and Howard's Carpets at 226 ½ W. Foothill Blvd.

Youth Night at Kingsley PTA

Pomona's Kingsley School PTA meeting Thursday night at 7:30 in the school cafeteria will feature the annual Youth Night.

The various youth organizations will entertain with songs, skits and group activities. The school's music department will also perform. A special presentation will be made to the PTA and the school by the participating groups.

Crafts and activities completed by the youth organizations during the year will be on display.

Malpractice dispute

Dr. William Hendricks of Watts arrived Monday wearing a white smock and stethoscope.

Hendricks said he makes $50,000 a year from his basically Medi-Cal practice, but has joined other Southern California physicians in a boycott of routine services because he can't afford higher premiums.

"Sure it's embarrassing to be sitting here," said the 56-year-old doctor, who brought along a sleeping bag and a sack full of books. "I'll stay until Brown and the legislature put their heads together and come up with a solution."

Hendricks said he was part of a doctors' negotiating team in Sacramento last week.

He said Robert Gnaizda, Brown's negotiator, "orchestrated us. These politicians don't seem to realize someone could die any time in this slowdown."

Hendricks added, "I don't go for any trade-offs. The governor wants this medical Peace Corps thing — this aid to MediCal patients thing. I say it's ugly. Those problems are his problems and they've been around for years and he's trying to make them the doctors' problems now."

Hendricks said an insurance company wants to raise his 1976 premium to $36,500, compared to the $650 he paid in 1956.

Free clinics get malpractice aid

SAN DIEGO (AP) - San Diego County has agreed to pay six months worth of malpractice insurance premiums for the county's free health clinics.

Representatives of the county's 18 free clinics had said they would have to cut services or close their doors unless they received some sort of relief from skyrocketing malpractice insurance rates.

County officials said the clinics handle 180,000 patient visits a year and have had only one malpractice suit, which was settled for $1,000.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This article is written to clarify some of the unfair remarks that are being said about the Downtown Pomona Mall. We will be the first to admit that the Mall is in need of help, but we refuse to admit that it is a place where only the Riff-Raff, Derelicts and Drunks prevail. If the people who think the Pomona Mall is such an area, they are badly mistaken.

The Business Houses on the Mall are as fine as you will find anywhere in Pomona. You will find two of Pomona's finest Department Stores, an Electrical Shop, Ladies Ready to Wear Shop, Lamps, Draperies, a Photography Shop, Savings & Loan Offices, a Book Store, Toy Store, Sporting Goods Store, a Variety Store, Beauty Shop, Banks, a Shoe Store, New & Used Furniture Stores, Gift & Curio Shops, Antique Shops, Attorneys, Fine Antique Auction Gallery, a General Store, Upholstery, Child's Care, Optical Service, plus many Professional Services. And, only a block off of the Mall, you will find Travel Bureaus, Restaurants, Barber Shops, Pawn Shops, The Telephone Company, The Light & Power Company, The Gas Company, Insurance Companies, Armstrong's Gallery, and many more Business and Professional People. There are fine new stores now opening, and a deluxe new Sandwich Shop soon to open, plus other shops that are in the process of negotiating for buildings for business.

We feel sure if you talk to any of Pomona's fine Police Officers, you will find that the crime element on the Mall is no greater, or as great, as it is in any other area in Pomona, or elsewhere.

To those people who think the Pomona crime rate is so bad, look at your newspapers in surrounding towns, and you will find it just as bad, if not worse. So, to those who think you will be robbed, mugged, or raped if you walk down the Mall or come to the Downtown Areas, there is a chance it could perhaps happen the same as it could happen in any other area or city or town in the country, but certainly it is no more likely to happen here than anywhere else.

This article is written and paid for by The Cullum Auction Service, where for some two years from 250 to 350 fine people come from a radius of over 100 miles, two and three times a month, to attend our fine Antique Auctions, and not one of them has been robbed, attacked, raped or accosted in any way. So, you can come and stroll down the Downtown Pomona Mall, and more than likely you will meet some of your friends or relatives.

We cordially invite you to come and see all of us.

Ford to offer states health care plan?

Report it counters challenge by Reagan

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford will propose relinquishing control of $10 billion in federally funded health care programs, including Medicaid, to the states, the New York Daily News says.

In a dispatch from Washington in today's editions, the newspaper quoted unnamed federal officials as saying the proposal was tailored to counter former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's challenge to Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

"It doesn't matter if Congress will ever approve the plan, and undoubtedly it won't," a source described as a veteran official of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was quoted as saying.

"They just want to have something down on paper to counter Reagan, and this is it," the official reportedly said.

Reagan has proposed shifting federal programs to states and local government. He has estimated that $90 billion might be cut, although he says the figure was not something that could be cut immediately and was being used only as an example.

The News said Ford was expected to announce his blockgrant proposal in his State of the Union message on Monday.

The still incomplete plan would give the states complete control over spending for almost all health programs that provide services directly to the public, beginning at the start of the next fiscal year, on Oct. 1, and phased to be completed over several years.

The programs include Medicaid, community mental health progams, child immunization, family planning, emergency care and programs that deal with venereal disease, the News said.

Money proposed for these programs could total $10 billion, according to the newspaper.

A White House spokesman, William Roberts, declined comment on the contents of the State of the Union address. But he said Ford had favored the concept of block grants to states years before Reagan came up with his $90-billion plan.

Ford nominates woman as envoy to Great Britain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today nominated former White House counselor Anne Armstrong of Texas to be the first woman to serve as U.S. ambassador to Great Britain and said he expected her to do "a superb job."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Mrs. Ford stood alongside as the President named Mrs. Armstrong to her new job and promised to continue to name women to government posts.

The British Foreign Office gave its approval Tuesday to Mrs. Armstrong's appointment, finishing in one week diplomatic formalities that normally take four to six weeks.

Mrs. Armstrong, 48, succeeds Ambassador Elliot L. Richardson, who is coming home to be Ford's new commerce secretary.

Mrs. Armstrong, who has had a long career in Republican politics, including service as the top-ranking woman in the Richard M. Nixon administration, thanked the President for the honor of appointing her and said she considered the ambassadorial post the greatest honor of her life.

Ford said that some of the credit for the nomination goes to his wife, Betty, who he said "persistently keeps reminding me that there are the most qualified and extremely able women representing (the U.S.) whether at home or abroad."

He said Kissinger also joined him in his belief that Mrs. Armstrong would do a superb job. Ford said she would be "well received in Great Britain and what you do will be a credit to you as well as to our country."

If confirmed by the Senate, Mrs. Armstrong will join six American women now serving as ambassadors. She will be the first woman to hold such a diplomatic post in a major country since Clare Boothe Luce was U.S. ambassador to Italy in the 1950s.

Ransom paid, but kidnaped woman is already dead?

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — When banker Charles W. Marter paid $25,000 in a desperate attempt to win freedom for his kidnaped wife, the woman may already have been dead.

"She had been dead several hours," Coroner Edgar Little said Tuesday after authorities were led to the crumpled body of the 36-year-old mother of two. She had been shot in the back of the head.

"The pickup was made this morning," Little said of the ransom paid by Marter, "and the arrest at about 3:30 this afternoon, so that's quite a time span."

Little said only an autopsy will tell for sure when the woman died. He said he will conduct the examination today.

An unemployed shipyard worker was held without bail today, charged with murder in the kidnaping and death of Edwina Marter.

The FBI said Marter, vice president of Gulf National Bank here, paid $25,000 in a futile attempt to buy his wife's life.

Dist. Atty. Albert Necaise refused to say whether the ransom was recovered. He did say that the man arrested, Richard Gerald Jordan, 29, of Hattiesburg, Miss., led police to the victim's body. But Necaise said no weapon was found.

The body was found in a thicket in a wooded area north of here.

Jordan, a stocky man wearing a red jump suit, appeared in Harrison County Court Tuesday evening and Judge Gaston H. Hewes appointed Gulfport attorney Rhett Russell to represent him.

Conviction carries an automatic death penalty in Mississippi.

Jordan was taken from a taxicab in Gulfport by police who were checking all cars after losing their quarry in a hot pursuit following the ransom drop.

Mrs. Marter was kidnaped from her home in suburban Mississippi City Monday afternoon, Necaise said one of her children, a 3-year-old, was left in the house unharmed.

The FBI said Marter then received telephone calls demanding ransom and giving directions for dropping it off. The first two delivery efforts were aborted, officers said, and may have been simply ploys by the kidnaper to make sure police were not watching.

Marter dropped off the package of money at a prearranged spot on Interstate 10 Tuesday morning. Necaise said officers saw the money picked up, gave chase but lost sight of the speeding auto, which was later found abandoned in Gulfport.

Can't sell her memoirs—JFK mystery woman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mystery woman Judith Campbell Exner, who said she had visited former President Kennedy many times at the White House as a close friend, is trying to sell her memoirs for $2 million with no immediate takers, it was reported today.

Mrs. Exner, 41, San Diego, had recently disclosed a relationship which she called "of a close, personal nature" with Kennedy over a 13 month or so period in the early 1960s. The asserted relationship came out when she was linked to two alleged Mafia kingpins.

Grazed by bullet as he disarms youth

A Pomona service station attendant was grazed by a small-caliber bullet fired when he disarmed a youth attempting to rob him late Tuesday afternoon, police reported.

The victim, Charles L. Montgomery, 51, said he was working at the Go-Lo service station at 2155 Murchison St. when a youth approached, asked about a job and then pulled a sawed-off, .22-caliber rifle from beneath his jacket. As the youth demanded money, Montgomery grabbed the weapon and pulled it away. As he did it fired, grazing his stomach. The youth fled over a fence bordering Ganesha High School.

A few minutes later Officer Jess Yates noticed a youth matching the description of the would-be robber near the gym at the high school. He arrested the suspect, who is 13, and Montgomery later identified him as the one who tried to rob him.

The suspect was booked on suspicion of robbery and attempted murder.

The suspect is Pete Lalo Lozano, who was being held by sheriff's deputies on charges of kidnaping, rape and one other sex offense. He was to be arraigned today in Citrus Municipal Court, West Covina.

The incident of which Lozano is accused began shortly before 6 a.m. The victim was preparing to enter her car parked at the rear of an apartment building in La Puente when a man grabbed her, slugged her and dragged her into his van. Inside the vehicle the victim was beaten about her head and attacked.

About 30 minutes later, sheriff's deputies stopped to investigate a van parked in an industrial area at Unruh Street and Nelson Avenue in Industry. They said that as they stopped, the girl leaped from the van and ran to them, crying hysterically. When she told them she had been attacked, the van owner, Lozano, was arrested.

The girl was taken to a hospital where she was released after treatment of her injuries. Lozano was held in lieu of $14,000 bail.

A 23-year-old market clerk was struck over the head with a pop bottle Monday night by one of two men who attempted to rob the E-Z Market, 1855 N. Baker Ave. in ONTARIO, police reported.

Store clerk Ronald White was treated at the store by the Ontario Fire Department rescue squad. Police said White suffered a head laceration.

White told officers the two men had given him some difficulties in the past. One pulled a small caliber handgun and ordered him into the back room. White said he refused and was kicked in the leg.

White said he turned to walk behind the counter and was struck over the head with a pop bottle. The two would-be robbers then fled.

Police said the robbers were both described as Latins, 17 or 18. The gunman was 5 feet 8, 120 pounds with medium length black hair and a blue jacket. The man who struck the clerk over the head was described as being 5 feet 7, 120 pounds with black hair and a red and black plaid jacket.

An antique nickelodeon valued at $5,000, a large amount of cash and a gun were taken by burglars Monday from a home owned by Harwood Garland of 10024 Turner Ave. in ONTARIO, police reported.

Police said the burglary was reported by neighbors who saw a car leaving the residence at a high rate of speed. Police found that the front door of the residence had been forced open.

Garland told police that the burglars had taken two antique nickelodeon with a wood cabinet, a .35 caliber pump action rifle, cash and a check made out to Garland Home Paving Co.

Two youths have been arrested by MONTCLAIR police in connection with a burglary at the Kingsley Elementary School over the weekend.

The youths, one 13 and the other 16, were arrested Monday by Officer Bob Abshire following up on the reported burglary. Police said the youths, who have been turned over to their parents pending action from the juvenile court, smashed a cafeteria window to gain entrance to the school.

Gambling group in new try

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proponents of the parimutuel wagering and gaming initiative which failed in California last year will have another try, says the secretary of state's office.

The office said Tuesday that proponent Robert Wilson of Studio City has filed intentions to collect 499,846 signatures by June 3 to qualify the constitutional amendment for the November ballot.

The measure would permit the issuance of 1,000 gambling licenses to restaurants. Also, the City of Adelanto in San Bernardino County could be granted permits for slot machines, roulette, blackjack and other games. Last year's effort failed to get on the June 1976 ballot because of a shortage of signatures.

Convicted for altering Nixon papers, elected to library post

CHICAGO (AP) — Ralph Newman, fined $10,000 last week after being convicted of altering former President Nixon's personal papers for a tax break, has been re-elected president of the Chicago Public Library Board.

Newman, 64, a literary appraiser, was re-elected Tuesday on a 6 to 0 vote. Two board members were absent.

Pierson B. Greer

Pierson Boyd Greer of 5228 Washington Ave., Chino, died Monday at San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland.

He was born June 18, 1892, at Pittsburgh, Pa., and came to Chino from Pasadena 53 years ago.

He was a bookkeeper 40 years, most recently at Pomona Valley Wholesale Nursery.

Mr. Greer was a member of United Methodist Church of Chino.

Surviving him are his widow, Lela; two sons, Harold of Concord and Robert of Riverside; a sister, Mrs. Mary Blanche of North Hollywood; and eight grandchildren.

Services will be held Thursday at 10:30 a.m. at Griffith Mortuary Chapel, Chino, with the Rev. W. Stanley Creighton of United Methodist Church of Chino in charge. Burial will be made in Bellevue Cemetery, Ontario.

Blanche Connor

Blanche Louise Connor of 167 10th Ave., Upland, died Monday in San Antonio Community Hospital after a brief illness.

She was born in Los Angeles on Aug. 12, 1901 and resided in Upland for the past 53 years. She was a retired employe of the Upland Lemon Growers Association.

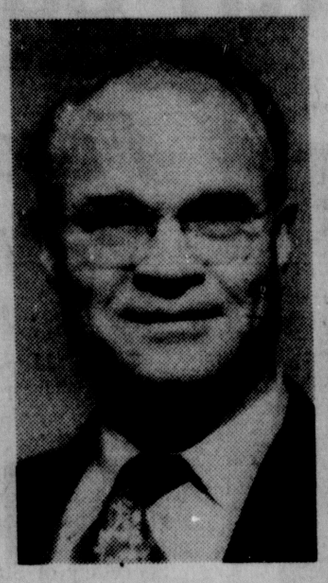
Survivors include a daughter, Billie G. Connor of Upland, one grandchild and two great-grandchildren, all of Phoenix.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the Stone Funeral Home in Upland, with the Rev. Charles Dennison, minister of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Upland, officiating. Private burial will follow in Bellevue Cemetery, Ontario.

Friends may call at the funeral home between 5 and 9 p.m. Thursday. Memorial contributions may be made to the Emphysema Foundation of San Antonio Community Hospital.

Island born

Kovachi, a submarine volcano in the British Solomon Islands of the South Pacific, was first observed in eruption by an airline pilot in October, 1969. What began as a bubbling discoloration of sea water eventually turned into a new island.



Leonard F. Collins

Leonard Franklin Collins, superintendent of the Chino Unified School District from 1928 to 1946, died Monday in a Montclair rest home following a lengthy illness.

He was a resident of 12794 Central Ave., Chino.

Mr. Collins was born in Rapid City, S.D., on July 1, 1892.

Before he came to Chino, he was principal and superintendent of Burbank schools.

In the Chino district he was teacher and principal in addition to his service as superintendent over a total of 18 years.

Mr. Collins was a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church of Pomona and of Chino Valley Masonic Lodge 427.

He also belonged to the Toastmasters, Rotary Club and Odd Fellows in Chino and the Dale Carnegie Club of Pomona.

Upon retirement from his work in the Chino schools, he was awarded the Dale Carnegie Club award for good human relations in education.

He was active in Boy Scout work in both Burbank and Chino. He was chairman of the Chino Advancement Committee of the Old Baldy Council four years and was merit badge counselor for citizenship work.

Surviving him are his widow, Mabel; two daughters, Mrs. Bertha Plummer of Hesperia and Mrs. Mabel Barlow of Riverside; a son, Leonard F. Jr. of Orange Valle; five brothers, Frank of Redlands, Lee of Montebello, Albert of Inyokern, Herbert of Santa Cruz and Abe of Whittier; nine grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

Services will be held Friday at 11 a.m. at Pomona Mausoleum. Griffith Mortuary, Chino, is in charge of arrangements.

THE GOVERNOR

Criticized the Senate Judiciary Committee for rejecting a bill that would have abolished automatic yearly cost-of-living pay increases for judges.

THE ASSEMBLY

Bills Introduced

Farm Labor — Would subject farm labor wages to state income tax withholding requirements; AB 2708; Nimmo, R-Atascadero.

Aliens — Would repeal a provision of existing law declared unconstitutional which prohibits employment of illegal alien in California under certain circumstances; AB 2707; Alatorre, D-Los Angeles.

Teachers — Would allow teachers to retire at age 50 and collect a certain percentage of their full retirement benefits each month; AB 2704; Deddeh, D-Chula Vista.

Registration — Would require the Department of Motor Vehicles to give motorists a 10 per cent reduction in their 1976 vehicle registration fees.; AB 2705; Paul Carpenter, D-Cypress.

THE SENATE

Bill Introduced

Elections — Would provide for partial funding of campaigns for partisan office and superintendent of public instruction through payment for, or reimbursement of, qualified campaign expenses from public funds; SB 1414; Rains, D-Ventura.

Raps Judicial committee defeat of bill

Brown pushes judge pay reform

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. describes as "unseemly" the opposition by judges that helped defeat a bill to abolish their automatic cost-of-living pay raises.

Brown will not let the Senate Judiciary Committee's rejection Tuesday stop him from pushing for judicial pay reform this year, said his press secretary, Bill Stall.

Three Los Angeles-area judges, stating that passage of the bill would destroy their independence and throw them into the political arena, appeared before the committee to oppose the bill by Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Los Angeles.

While Brown did not actively campaign for Beilenson's bill, which did not go as far as the governor wants, he felt it could have been a vehicle for his concept with amendments, Stall said.

Brown wants flat $65-a-month pay increases for judges in 1976-77, not the average percentage pay hike of all state workers proposed by Beilenson.

"Judicial salaries in California are very generous," Brown commented. "They are among the highest in the nation, ranging from $41,677 to $61,609 (a year).

"Under present law, the judges are in line for automatic pay raises this September ranging from $4,355 for municipal judges to $6,438 for the chief justice.

"For those enjoying such privileged status to now oppose realistic limits that would treat them like other state employes is unseemly and in the long run against the best interests of the judiciary."

Beilenson did not want to put the flat dollar raise in his bill, according to aide Gail Osherenko. "We feel the legislature would have balked at Brown's proposal," she said. "Beilenson's bill is probably the best we could expect the legislature to accept."

But the committee voted 2-5 to reject it.

The three judges who argued against the bill were Joseph Wapner and William Munnell, both of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, and George Zucker of the Beverly Hills Municipal Court.

Judges' pay does not go down if the index declines, and last Sept. 1 they got a raise of more than 12 per cent. The judges said future raises probably would be lower.

Judges would receive less than 2 per cent raises under Brown's $65-a month proposal.

Century of cancer: Nader hits corporate abuses

WASHINGTON (AP) — This may be the century of cancer, caused in part by corporate-produced chemicals used in an "historic abuse" of the environment, consumer advocate Ralph Nader says.

At a House Environmental Study Conference session on cancer, Nader said Monday the world is "clearly entering the carcinogenic century" with growth in pesticides and other chemicals "produced by corporations and allowed to enter the land, air and water."

The bipartisan 160-member conference also was told by Dr. Samuel S. Epstein, environmental health program director at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, that there is a "major epidemic in cancer which is killing one in five Americans."

Over-all cancer death rates since 1933 have increased annually "by about 1 per cent until 1975, when the increase for the first seven months was reported to be about 5 per cent," Epstein said.

There is a "growing consensus" that a majority of human cancers "are due to chemical carcinogens in the environment and that they are hence ultimately preventable," Epstein said. Several experts estimate 70 per cent to 90 per cent of cancer in humans is "environmentally induced," he added.

Federal agencies should give higher priority to research on "environmental cancer," Epstein said, and "should regulate environmental carcinogens more vigorously."

Dr. John A. Zapp Jr., director of duPont's Haskell Laboratory for Toxicology and Industrial Medicine, told the panel there is a need for additional research and testing of certain chemicals.

"The fact is that the chemical materials introduced into modern life by industry are not the cause of any large increase in cancer within the population, but at the same time we are learning that some compounds could be causing trouble, and we have to look at them more thoroughly," Zapp said.

Prediction comes true

Ex-PT boat officer defends JFK honor

SACRAMENTO (AP) — John F. Kennedy predicted with anger that his war record would someday be falsely maligned, says a PT boat officer who served with Kennedy.

The emotional conversation took place during the months that the late President — then a young naval officer — was recovering from war injuries on the island of Tulagi.

Theodore M. Robinson, a Pacific Telephone engineering manager, said he was shocked by recent news stories quoting the book "The Search for JFK," by Joan and Clay Blair Jr., which in Robinson's words "almost depicts Kennedy as a coward."

Robinson said he was executive officer of the PT boat that rescued Kennedy and his crew from PT109 nearly 33 years ago. He described Kennedy as "a naval officer with courage who performed with honor."

In an interview with The Sacramento Bee, Robinson said he shared a recuperation tent with Kennedy on Tulagi for two to three months after Kennedy's boat was rammed on Aug. 1, 1943, by the Japanese destroyer Amagiri.

He reconstructed this conversation with the future President:

"He said to me, 'Ted, I'm nobody, but my father does have a pretty good job (ambassador to Britain) so I've had a little experience with reporters.'

"And he said, 'I'm afraid that someday, somewhere, perhaps after I'm dead, somebody who didn't understand the blackness of Blackett Strait and those appalling conditions will misunderstand'," Robinson quoted Kennedy as saying.

He said Kennedy continued, "If it happens while I'm alive, I'm going to get that person in a perfectly dark room. And I'm going to twist him all around until he's all confused. And then I'm going to flash his flash camera in his face, and then I'm going to hit him in the face with his camera and say, 'You figure it out, you son of a bitch.'"

Blair said his book, which depicts Kennedy as an inept PT boat commander at best, was based on material from "declassified naval documents and interviews with officers and PT boat crew members."

But Robinson said most boat logs were destroyed and it would be impossible for anyone who wasn't there to get a true picture of what happened.

"Now, it's true that way behind the lines someplace some upper-echelon officers who wore ties and sat behind desks and had epaulets on were making reports on what they thought we were doing up there," Robinson said.

"But your only true record is what the officers that were in the forward area, operating with Kennedy under these conditions, knew about it."

Robinson said a better measure of Kennedy's performance is the fact that Kennedy was "officially given the Army/Navy Medal for his actions by his superiors shortly after this incident, so if any of them disagree today, they've either changed their minds 33 years later" or were not there.

Robinson added on the question of personal courage, "PT boats was an entirely volunteer outfit. Nobody who hadn't volunteered was on a PT boat because they were known as suicide boats...so it's hardly the type of service that a coward would volunteer for."

Robinson also commented on published suggestions that stories criticizing Kennedy are being printed now to damage chances of the late President's brother, U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts, a potential presidential candidate.

Robinson said he considers himself a staunch Republican who wouldn't vote for Ted Kennedy "if you paid me, so I have no ax to grind."

Moluccans face long prison terms

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Seven South Moluccan nationalists who held 25 hostages in the Indonesian consulate for 16 days have been charged with unlawfully detaining hostages, menacing behavior and illegal possession of firearms.

They could get as much as nine years in prison.

The seven young men surrendered last Friday. The city prosecutor said additional charges may be brought in connection with the death of an Indonesian diplomat who injured himself fatally escaping from the consulate.

Seven other South Moluccans who occupied a hijacked train in northern Holland for 12 days have been charged with murder because three of their hostages were killed.

A COUNT, OR COUNTESS?—A baby vampire bat is seen at center left, snuggling close to its mother after being born at the Milwaukee County Zoo. The mother, about 10 inches long, hangs upside down by her feet. She was one of the two females brought to Milwaukee from the Cincinnati Zoo last year. The baby, first vampire bat born in Milwaukee, will be named Dracula or Draculette as soon as its sex can be determined.

Trend looms as blow to hiking employment

Business again to spend less in '76

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second straight year, businesses expect to buy fewer goods in 1976 in expanding their production and marketing facilities, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said its latest survey of spending plans shows businesses expect to spend $119.68 billion for plant and equipment this year, an increase of $6.19 billion.

But business leaders also expect the price of capital goods to increase by 10 per cent this year because of inflation, and this erosion in the buying power of the dollar means the actual volume of machinery and other equipment purchased will be down 4 per cent, the department said.

The expected trend is a major reason economists expect slow progress in reducing unemployment. New production facilities generally mean new jobs. Economists also consider business spending a key factor in sustaining recovery from recession. The resurgence so far has been powered prmarily by consumer spending.

The Commerce report came one day after the Council on Wage and Price Stability said the Ford Motor Co.'s recent 2.2 per cent price increase on its new cars seems to be an attempt to increase profits.

The Jan. 5 increase, the council said, "is not a reflection of industry cost increases since new 1976 model introductions, but rather it appears to be an attempt to widen margins in a period of rebounding sales volume and diminished import competition."

The council estimated the increase would add $91 per vehicle compared with similarly equipped 1975 models.

When Ford announced the price hikes, it said they were necessary "to recover increased costs for labor and materials, including new government-mandated safety equipment."

However, a Ford spoksman said Monday the company is "certainly attempting to increase our profit margin. In the 1975 model year we lost $100 for every North American car we produced and sold."

The company said the price increase recovers only $80 of that $100, but that Ford expects the boost to mean an actual profit in the long run. The company said the amount of the profit would depend upon how many cars are sold.

In two other economic developments:

— The Federal Reserve Board reported that despite a near-record pace in the volume of lending for automobile purchases, the growth in consumer indebtedness slowed to $803 million in November 1975.

That compared with an $829-million advance in installment debt — an indicator of consumers' confidence in the economy, as well as fuel for continued strength in retail sales — during October.

The Fed said the total amount of indebtedness outstanding represented a 1.4 per cent increase from the same month a year earlier.

The Fed said there was a record rate of repayment of debts for November — $14.07 billion, bettering the $14-billion record set in October.

— And the White House indicated that the figures President Ford presents in his State of the Union address next week may vary from Commerce Department predictions of total economic output for this year.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Commerce forecast of 6 to 7 per cent growth and unemployment averaging between 7.5 and 7.75 per cent was a projection based on the study of 200 industries in a mid-1975 economic review.

"The President's assessment will be based on more recent information and developments since the mid-year review."

Woman appointee

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "It's a man's world but I'll get by," says Yeoman 3.C. Amber Hernandez, one of the first two Waves appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

The 20-year-old Chicagoan, named by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., is packing her sea bags for home leave. In July she'll join another 78 girls appointed directly from civilian life to the class of 1980.

The young women report first to the Naval Academy Preparatory School at Newport, R.I., and then to Annapolis as plebes in July.

To get in shape, she's been running two miles daily since applying last year for the previously all-male school which turns out naval officers.

Amber also gave up smoking.

Her father, a Chicago police sergeant, was somewhat concerned when she joined the Navy out of college.

"But when I called to say I was going to Annapolis," she recalled today, "he shouted, 'Hey, my kid just made history!' "

Candidates down to 10

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The number of candidates for San Diego police chief has been boiled down from 44 to 10, city officials say.

Deputy City Manager Ray Blair refused Wednesday to list names but sources indicated Bill Kolender, the acting chief, remains among the candidates for the job.

The search for a new chief began last September when Ray Hoobler resigned under fire in a controversy over confidential police personnel files.

When the final candidate is chosen by City Manager Hugh McKinley, he will have to undergo a three-week public confirmation process and then be approved by a majority vote of the City Council.

Law unconstitutional

Fined for speeding in Bloomington in last 16 years? try refund

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — If you got a speeding ticket driving through Bloomington in the past 16 years, you might find it worth while to drive back again. The city's speeding ordinance has been declared unconstitutional.

That means anyone fined under the ordinance could try to get their money back, says Paxton Bowers, the city attorney.

No one knows how many speeding tickets were handed out since the ordinance went into effect in 1959. Police said nearly 7,000 speeding tickets were issued in the city last year alone.

Most speeders paid fines of less than $30, but city officials aren't expecting any sudden drain on the treasury. Bowers said the court action required to recover the fine is "not a simple procedure" and there's no guarantee the driver will win.

The ordinance set a speed limit of 30 miles per hour, except where otherwise posted, in this central Illinois city of 40,000 persons. There was, however, no language in the ordinance specifically forbiding motorists from exceeding the speed limit.

That oversight was corrected by the City Council last October. But that was after Greg J. Guess, 21, was ticketed in September for driving 38 miles an hour in a 30 mile-per-hour zone.

Guess hired an attorney and fought to have the law declared unconstitutional. Circuit Judge Joseph Kelley did just that last week, saying the ordinance failed "to prescribe any prohibited conduct."

That opened the possibility of past Bloomington speeders seeking to exploit the city's legal Achille's heel.

Trying to get a refund on the fine would probably be more trouble than it's worth, however.

Bowers pointed out that, with the $30 fines paid by most speeders, you "couldn't get an attorney to do other than talk to you."

In addition, the city might appeal Kelley's ruling, he said. Even if it doesn't, it might be able to refile the speeding cases under a state law that sets a 30 mile-per-hour municipal speed limit, he said.

Finally, Bowers said there are a number of Supreme Court cases that allow convictions to stand even following constitutional reversals.

And if you're thinking about speeding in Bloomington once more, think again. That new ordinance hasn't been challenged by anyone.

La Puente bilingual program spotlighted

A number of California educators and parents are expected to visit two Hacienda-La Puente District schools to observe their bilingual programs in action on Thursday.

The schools were selected by planners of a statewide conference for their outstanding programs.

The visitors will be in the area to attend the California Bilingual Education Conference in Anaheim and will devote part of their day to observing bilingual classes at Dibble and Nelson elementary schools. Parents and interested district staff members are encouraged to join the visitors at those schools any time between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. that day.

"Our bilingual programs have had a real impact on narrowing the historic gap in achievement between children who come from non-English speaking backgrounds and those who are English dominant from birth," notes Juanita Cirilo, coordinator of bilingual programs for the Hacienda-La Puente schools.

There are probably a number of reasons why the achievement in basic academic skills have improved consistently among both Anglo and non-Anglo children in these programs, Mrs. Cirilo suggests.

"The programs provide vital help for non-English speaking or limited English speaking youngsters, but they also enrich the education of other students by giving them competence in a second language.

"A more intangible — but just as important — benefit is the better understanding that is encouraged between children from diverse cultural backgrounds," Mrs. Cirilo said.

"Our children from foreign backgrounds learn to take pride in their heritage and their native American classmates develop a greater appreciation of other people's language and culture."

The Anaheim conference is expected to attract about 3,000 participants from California and other western states to learn techniques for developing, maintaining, and evaluating bilingual programs for different minority students.

A number of sessions will deal with education for Vietnamese children — a fairly new dimension in bilingual programs.

Forty-six parents, teachers, administrators, and classroom aides from the Hacienda La Puente Unified School District are expected to attend the conference sessions scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

SEN. CLAIBORNE PELL

Pell to speak

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., will discuss "American Foreign Policy After Vietnam" Friday at 3 p.m. in the Bauer Lecture Hall, Claremont Men's College.

The public is welcome to the college's Public Affairs Forum.

Pell, the leading Senate spokesman on education, serves as the chairman of the subcommittee on education and was the principal sponsor of the Higher Education Act of 1972.

L.P. board launches school chief search

Three educators with a wide variety of experience in the screening of administrative personnel have been hired by the Hacienda La Puente school board to assist in the search for a new district superintendent to replace Earl W. Denton who will resign on June 30.

R. Bruce McPherson, president of the school board, has announced that Conrad Briner, a professor at Claremont Graduate School, will serve as chairman of the advisory team which will recruit and screen applicants for the superintendent's position.

Briner has been retained by the board on several occasions over the past five years as a management consultant and has become familiar with the district. Serving with him will be John Nicoll, superintendent of Newport Mesa Unified School District, and Ken Peters, superintendent of the Beverly Hills Unified School District.

In developing desired qualifications for applicants, the advisory team interviewed several community leaders, district personnel, and presidents of employe organizations to discover their expectations for a new superintendent. A brochure outlining qualifications and application procedures is available from the district certificated personnel office.

The team will review applications and placement papers of prospective candidates in March.

SIGN LANGUAGE CLASSES — Classes in manual communication, designed for families and friends of persons with impaired hearing, will be taught at the Yorba School in Pomona beginning Jan. 19.

Sessions will be held each Monday until June from 7 to 9 p.m. Instructors are Winifred Flowers and Marlee McWain, teachers of the deaf in Pomona schools.

There is no charge for the classes but regular attendance is expected.

HUNTER COURSE — A hunter safety course will be held Thursday and Friday, 6 to 10:30 p.m., at 142 N. Prospectors Road, Diamond Bar.

Harry J. Swangler is the instructor. The course is open to men and women. For registration, persons may phone 595-0171.

REDUCED PHONE TAXES — Customers of General Telephone Co. will pay less taxes this year on their phone bills.

Beginning Jan. 1, the federal excise tax on all telephone bills was reduced from seven to six per cent as required by law.

SUNSHINE AWARD — Elva Black of Ontario has won a special "sunshine award" from Sonny Melendrez of radio station KMPC for brightening the lives of others.

Mrs. Black, of 927 W. J St., was nominated by her husband who said his wife "expects, and has received, very little from life but her outlook of sunshine is one to behold. I treasure it every day.

"After 30 years of marriage, it's difficult for me to recall a time when she was negative, belligerent or cross," he added.

Besides a certificate, Mrs. Black also received merchandize prizes.

30 YEARS OF SERVICE — John D. Dickerson of Montclair recently completed 30 years of service with the General Telephone Co.

He is employed as a special equipment installer in Pomona. Dickerson began his career as a plant construction installer in 1945.

REUNION PLANNED — Members of the 58th Bomb Wing Association, consisting of the 40th, 444th, 462nd and 468th bomb groups during World War II, will hold their reunion July 21-25 in Denver, Colo.

The wing served in India, China and Tinian. Persons wanting information about the reunion may contact John Kavulich, 145 N. Fifth St., Indiana, Pa., 17501.

ALUMNI REUNION — Members of the Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside Area Creighton Club will hold their annual party Monday at Pitruzello's restaurant, 287 La Cadena Drive, Riverside.

The reunion starts at 6:30 p.m. with a social hour, followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Carl M. Reinert, vice president of Creighton University, will be a special guest.

Creighton is a private Catholic university in Omaha, Neb. It has 4,700 students. The area club is one of 60 alumni groups in the United States.

SERVICE AWARD — Willis A. Lawrence of Upland recently celebrated his 25th year of service with the General Telephone Co.

He is employed as an engineer at the utility's headquarters. Lawrence began his career in 1950 as a cable splicer helper.

CLUB OFFICERS — Wayne Adams has been elected president of the Pomona Downtown Toastmasters Club 110-F.

Other officers serving six month terms are John Gartland, educational vice president; Rudy Rangel, administrative vice president; Ed Secor, secretary; Hal Simpson, treasurer; Dave Hendrickson, sergeant-at-arms.

Meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at St. George's Restaurant in Pomona. For more information, persons may phone 629-0950.

Music and fitness classes at Chaffey

Chaffey Adult School is accepting registrations for music and physical fitness classes which will begin Jan. 26.

Classes are open to adult West End residents tuition free regardless of educational background. Students must purchase textbooks if needed and pay for materials and supplies.

The adult school office, a trailer behind Tower Hall on the Chaffey High School campus in Ontario, is open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. It is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday. The telephone number is 983-2010.

Physical education classes for men will meet Monday and Wednesday 7 to 9 p.m. at Montclair High School. They will include weight lifting, calisthenics and jogging.

Classes for women, also at Montclair, will meet the same nights.

Classes are scheduled for beginning and experienced musicians. Orchestra will be taught Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Montclair Recreation Building.

Guitar fundamentals will be taught Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. at Chaffey High School.

School nurses to fete bosses

Area school nurses will honor school administrators when the San Bernardino-Riverside California School Nurses Organization stages its Bosses Night on Thursday.

Each school nurse will invite her "boss" to dinner at Griswold's Country House in Redlands.

Charles Kondrit, assistant superintendent of instruction for Rialto Unified School District, will be the speaker. His topic is "School Nurses on the Educational Team."

Lloyd regards dependence on foreign oil as critical problem

One of the most critical issues facing the United States today is its dependence upon foreign nations for its oil supplies, said Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

Returning to Washington, D.C., after the Christmas recess, the Covina lawmaker said the nation must develop every energy source — including nuclear power — as rapidly as possible.

Having served on the House Science and Technology Committee, Lloyd believes the ultimate energy source will be the sun.

"I think by the year 2000 we will have mapped out the way to go. I see deficit spending continuing for another three years because of the need to import oil.

"But if between three and five years we have not shut it off, we will have created havoc. It is a tenuous situation."

Lloyd believes both off-shore drilling and "strip-mining" will go forth to supply the nation with these energy sources.

"It is that or we will have to depend on other nations. Some people ask why we don't use their oil first and then use our oil."

Lloyd said the nation has other energy sources available such as nuclear, solar, geothermal and wave and wind actions.

He predicted that several comprehensive measures will be coming "down the line" this legislative session to hold down oil prices.

These will be designed to improve automobile efficiency, create petroleum reserves and provide for standby rationing authority.

People are aware of the energy shortage and if they fail to conserve, then rationing may be needed, he said.

Lloyd hopes a budget committee established by Congress last year will help resolve another major problem — that of deficit spending.

"We had a bad situation in Congress since it had been committed to $71.4 billion in deficit spending for 1975," he said.

For the first time, he added, Congress has its own budget committee which can keep a better watch on federal expenditures.

"Always before, the President had the budget committee and would submit the budget to Congress, which could either accept or reject it.

"Congress had no way of working on any line items. But the public did not understand this. They asked why Congress did not stop spending. It didn't because Congress didn't know where to stop the spending," Lloyd empahsized.

Under the new program, the members of the Ways and Means Committee and the Appropriations Committee can work on their own projects and then check with the budget committee to determine if they have overspent their allocations.

"They are losing on the floor on that basis," he said. "If these committees overstep their bounds, members have to indicate if they are in excess or less than is budgeted by the budget committee."

This new budget committee allows Congress to set up parallel budgeting comparable to the federal budget bureau, he explained.

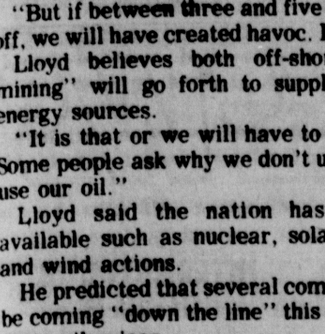
"We now know where we are going as far as the money is concerned."

Regarding the upcoming presidential election, Lloyd believes there is a possibility that Sen. Hubert Humphrey could emerge as the nominee although he isn't running at this time.

He believes Gov. George Wallace will not lose or gain votes, but will hold steady. Lloyd also noted that former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia has a good chance of being the vice presidential nominee.

"Carter wouldn't be my choice at this point," said Lloyd. "There are other people who are just as capable or more capable. He doesn't know the problems in California."

Regarding his own political future, Lloyd declared: "This next year, barring the unforeseen, there will be no change in the federal leadership in the 35th District."



FRANK REMSKI of Ontario has been promoted to relief manager for West End branch offices of the First National Bank and Trust Co.

Children's theater enrolling

Diamond Bar Children's Theater will take registrations for boys and girls 7 to 10 at a parents meeting Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Diamond Bar Congregational Church.

The tuition fee is $33.50 which includes insurance. Instruction will begin Feb. 3 at 4 p.m.

Image and involvement were key words in a 60-minute "rap session" Tuesday at Park Avenue High School in Pomona.

Near the end of the discussion, which was monitored by teacher Robert Jones, it was announced that student body elections will be held Jan. 27.

This is the first time since the continuation high school opened at 605 N. Park Ave. in 1966 that student body elections have been scheduled on campus.

The school's "image" or "bad reputation" in the community was cited by the 13 students in attendance as a major concern. They feel it was actually earned four or five years ago, and it is not deserved by students now in attendance.

Involvement in the community was discussed as probably the best way to earn a good reputation and establish a better image for the school and the students who attend.

Students who attended the rap session were Dan C. Taylor, Phil T. Desmond, Priscilla Perchez, Laurie Derck, Ed Morgan, June Harmsen, Doyle Shields, James Herring, Ivan Turner, Paul Harris, Scott Anthony Hempstead II, Kenny B. Corley and Marcus Smith.

Principal Charles Fleenor and counselor Al Bjermeland participated in the discussion, as did Douglas Robertson, communications officer for the school district.

Jones told the students that similar rap sessions will be held at the school on a weekly basis primarily to give students a forum for voicing their concerns.

"And the main reason we want to do this," said Jones, "is to get students involved. This is the important thing."

Miss Harmsen said plans are being made to hold meetings of groups of 15 students in private homes in an attempt to acquaint parents with school programs and with Park Avenue students.

Fleeson, who said he meets with parents when students are enrolled, told students that parent participation is needed.

"Because we have a bad reputation, many parents come here looking back over their shoulders all the time. We just ask that people don't judge this place until they've been here," he said.

Desmond said better communication with parents would help stop rumors which spread rapidly every time there is a "little fight" or fire at Park Avenue.

Student-teacher relations were discussed. There was some criticism of "uncaring" teachers who "tell you to read a book then give you an exam."

"Teachers are no problem to me," said Hempstead. "I think they're doing a job. I've learned more here than anyplace else."

Bjermeland reminded the students "you are responsible for what you become. The purpose of education is to challenge the individual."

State law requires students to attend school until they are 18. Continuation high schools serve those who, for many reasons, do not make progress in regular high schools.

"Each of our young people is so unique, with emotions so volatile, it is impossible to categorize them as a group," Bjermeland said following the meeting.

The girl, Simone Wiley, 8, 937 Erickson St., suffered a slight cerebral concussion and was released after treatment at County-USC Medical Center.

Acupuncture for Rotary

Dr. Robert M. Stork, a Montclair physician, will discuss acupuncture Thursday noon when he talks to the La Verne Rotary Club at Castaway Restaurant, Pomona.

Dr. Stork, a pediatrician for 22 years, turned to acupuncture two years ago. He will trace the history of that ancient form of healing from its inception thousands of years ago to the present.

Classes in arts and crafts for adults will be offered by the Bonita School District starting Feb. 2.

The classes will be held at the Cienega Valley Mobile Home Park in San Dimas from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays, and at Roynon Elementary School in La Verne from 9 a.m. to noon and from 7 to 10 p.m. on Wednesdays and from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursdays.

Those who are interested in enrolling are urged to contact the district office, 599-6787.

Poll shows most favor swing to conservatism

NEW YORK (AP) — A 43 per cent plurality of Americans surveyed would like to see the country move in a more conservative direction but only 27 per cent label themselves conservative, a Harris poll says.

The nationwide survey of 1,475 adults showed that 19 per cent preferred a more liberal direction, while 20 per cent said they did not want the country to move either way. Eighteen per cent were not sure, the Harris organization said.

In addition to the 27 per cent who called themselves conservative, 19 per cent described themselves as liberal, 40 per cent as middle-of-the-road and 3 per cent said they were radicals. Eleven per cent said they were not sure of their position.

Harris said the number of persons preferring the conservative label has gone down steadily in the past seven years, from 37 per cent in 1968.

WEIGHT WATCHERS INTERNATIONAL INTRODUCE "PERSONAL ACTION PLAN"

The Weight Watchers organization has reached a new peak in its continuing battle against obesity, according to Selma Rifkin, Area Director.

"Weight Watchers International has introduced a new "Personal Action Plan" here and across the country," relates Mrs. Rifkin. "The plan provides action oriented methods to help members achieve control of their eating habits."

The plan represents an individualized day-by-day approach to weight loss that is utilized within the framework of the weekly class sessions.

Mrs. Rifkin stated that the plan is based on awareness that there are many roadblocks that can divert even a most dedicated person pursuing any weight-loss method. With the "Personal Action Plan," members can be helped in their ability to cope with many situations in weight reduction and helped to strengthen their resolve to lose weight and keep it off.

Each member receives regularly at Weight Watchers meetings a "module" — an easy to follow guide that offers ways to handle a specific problem. During subsequent meetings, members are able to describe the methods they used with the guidance of the module to resolve an eating problem.

For example one module is devoted to avoid temptation. Another module tells how to cope with "pressure feeders," friends and family who force food on people. A third module helps to escape "eating traps" when dining out. A fourth is devoted to prudent shopping.

The modules are designed to meet four fundamental needs: how to control problem eating; individualizing part of the Weight Watchers Program; reminders of action to be taken on a daily basis; and keeping personal records of weight control habits.

MEXICO CITY and YUCATAN SAFARI SCHEDULED

A seventeen day trip to the land of the ancient Aztec, Toltec, and Mayan ruins in early Spring offers an exciting adventure for POMONA travelers. The tour departing February 6th will fly to Mexico City for a two day visit including the Pyramids of the Sun and Moon, the Temple of Quetzalcoatl, and the Ballet Folklorico.

Deluxe motor coach will be the mode of travel through Cholula, where the world's largest pyramid exists, to Puebla and Oaxaca. Here Monte Alban on top of the sacred white mountain affords one of the most beautiful panoramic views anywhere in the world. The route through the Isthmus of Mexico is rural and unique to this tour. Fording streams and crossing valleys seldom visited, the travelers pass through Tuxtla Gutierrez and view the spectacle of the Sumitero Gorge.

The trip into the high mountains to San Cristobal Las Casas, the home of the Chamula Indians, brings the group into a civilization that in style, dress, and customs is strikingly similar to that of the high Andes. By complete contrast, Palenque which is totally immersed in jungle is a mystery of an earlier lost Maya civilization. The most famous of all the ruins in Uxmal and Chichen Itza leaves modern day explorers full of awe for the engineering and astrological feats of the ancients.

The colonial city of Merida, famous for style and bargains, is the last city on the tour. Extensions to Cozumal and Guatemala are available upon request. For a complete descriptive brochure of this unique adventure, call or write Hillsen's Holiday Tours, P.O. Box 3 or 102 Orange St., Redlands, California, 92373. The phone is 793-2411.

SONY BETAMAX HOME VIDEO RECORDING SYSTEM GOES ON SALE IN L.A. STORES

COMPTON — November 13 — Sony Corporation of America announced today that its Betamax home video recording system is now available at Hillen's, 740 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

The Betamax LV-1901 combines a 19-inch Trinitron color television set with a video cassette recorder/player in a handsomely designed enclosure. It offers viewers a practical system to record TV programs and view them at their convenience; for example: when networks schedule two "must-see" specials in the same time period. Through the use of a dual-tuner system, one program may be viewed and the other recorded for replaying at the viewer's option.

Should prior commitments keep the viewer from watching any program whatsoever, a built-in timer can automatically activate the unit. This allows a desired program to be recorded for later re-play and not missed. The unit will also play back pre-recorded cassettes, thereby permitting an individual to build a personal library of favorite and significant programs.

The suggested retail price of the Betamax is $2295. The cassettes used, of half-inch magnetic video tape, are the size of an average paperback book. The tape can be erased and used again and again. A blank 60-minute cassette has the suggested retail price of $15.95 and the 30-minute cassette, the suggested retail price of $11.95.

LONG EXPERIENCE

The Betamax LV-1901 is the result of long research, with Sony using its experience in both audio and video tape recorders to develop this newest consumer entertainment product. The company introduced the world's first all-transistor video tape recorder in 1961, and a company executive stated that this expertise over the last fifteen years has enabled engineers to design the Betamax for simple, easy home operation. No technical skill is required, and anyone who has operated a T.V. set and an audio tape recorder, can use it.

"Sony is recognized as a leading manufacturer of video equipment for the medical, industrial and educational fields," Morton Fink, vice president, said. "Tens of thousands of Sony U-Matic videocassettes are now used throughout the world."

IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE HOME

"Television has an important role in the home," Mr. Fink continued. "It provides entertainment, information and cultural enrichment. The big challenge was to develop a system that would use the medium of television more effectively within the home.

"We believe the Betamax system has met this challenge. It allows people freedom to schedule television viewing largely for their own convenience. It is the home entertainment product for today and for the future."

Los Angeles is one of the first cities in the U.S. to market the Sony Betamax. New York, Chicago and San Francisco are other cities making the unit available. By early 1976, distribution in other major cities will be added, a spokesman said.

Lepire asks grand jury to probe refugee case

Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire appeared before the Los Angeles County grand jury Tuesday to ask for a grand jury investigation of the mass resettlement of Vietnamese refugees here.

The full City Council voted in mid-November to seek the investigation. Since then the city has been assembling various reports to support the request.

Because grand jury testimony is secret, it is not known exactly what information was given to the grand jury by Lepire although it is certain to focus on the role of Gerald Martin, the Oregon land developer who brought about 200 refugees to Pomona in September and formed a gardening company in Garden Grove to employ the refugees.

Although Martin received more than $100,000 in government funds for the resettlement, the sponsorship was plagued from the beginning by poor communications and apparent shortages of many essential needs, spurring rumors and public charges of neglect and wrongdoing.

Martin funneled at least $20,000 into the Golden State Gardening Co. in Garden Grove, which for a time employed about 80 refugees from Pomona and Fontana. The company later laid off the refugees but continued operation with American laborers.

When Martin's sponsorship of the refugees was ended in late November by the nonprofit Tolstoy Foundation, which approved Martin four months earlier, a certified public accountant was unable to unravel the gardening company's books — so it is not known exactly how much federal money Martin actually put into the company.

It was not immediately known when the grand jury would decide it it will further investigate the case.

Many refugees have claimed Martin still owes them back wages.

It was reported that about 70 workers in the Fontana-Pomona group had filed claims with the state charging Martin with failure to pay.

A state deputy labor commissioner in Santa Ana said complaints had been received within the past 10 days from refugees charging Martin paid them no wages for periods of from two days to three weeks.

Tim Cepperly, a West Coast representative for Tolstoy Foundation, said damages sought by the refugees, and half a dozen Americans who had worked for Martin, amount to more than $7,000.

Cepperly said he doubted there is money available to pay the claims, should the state decide in the workers' favor.

Blazes hit dwelling, apartment

A small child playing with matches set a fire which severely damaged a Pomona home Tuesday, according to Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes.

Loss estimate was set at $10,000. There were no injuries.

Fowlkes said there was $8,000 damage to the house at 428 Jansu Place, and $2,000 loss of contents. The occupant of the house, Willie Wilson, was not at home at the time of the fire, the chief said. The alarm came in at 1:24 p.m.

Fowlkes said the blaze started in a bedroom and quickly spread through the sleeping area of the four-bedroom house.

In another Pomona blaze, boys 10 and 12 set fire to the seat of an upholstered chair in the laundry room of the apartment house at 1384 W. Eighth St., Tuesday, starting a blaze which destroyed the room. Loss estimate was $400.

Fowlkes said witnesses saw the boys inside the laundry room run from it as flames were visible through a window.

Bonita lowers the boom on students: spanking approved

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Open handed or wooden paddle spankings today face class disrupters or other student malefactors in Bonita Unified School District.

Forms to be sent to parents of student troublemakers authorizing discipline "taught to the tune of a hickory stick" went to all principals today. School trustees approved the new student conduct policy at Tuesday night's board meeting.

Administrators explained that the policy is a result of a state-mandated program charging school districts with drawing up a formal policy on corporal punishment — either in favor of or against it.

Under the newly adopted code, spankings will not become wholesale and only can be administered with the approval of parents. Basically it is up to teachers to spot troublemakers and inform principals.

Principals then will send a form to parents or guardians of such pupils asking permission to spank the child in the future if he causes further disturbances.

Such spankings only can be administered by teachers, principals or vice principals and in the presence of a principal or vice principal witness.

Pupils who maintain a good demeanor will not have such corporal punishment consent forms sent to their parents, board members said.

In other action the board approved:

—Posting signs barring the riding of all bicycles, horses, motorcycles, skateboards and dogs on campuses in the district.

—Agreed to authorize Supt. James T. Johnson to back a bill lobbied in Sacramento by the Association of Low Wealth Schools which would impose a $4 per $100 valuation property tax statewide for school district financing.

—Voted to expand a high school program aimed at cutting down the number of teen-age smokers based on a survey of parents.

Trustees and administrators said posting of signs banning horses, dogs, motorcycles, bicycles and skateboards from campuses was in compliance with police requests to do so. Unless signs are posted, aides quoted police, officers are powerless to enforce such an edict.

The proposal does not affect students who ride bikes or skateboards to school and who are cautioned that once they reach school property, they are to walk bikes to a bicycle parking orea or check skateboards into an appropriate safeguarded area.

Trustees agreed in principle with the low wealth district bill but voiced an objection to raising taxes included in the bill by board action rather than allowing voters to decide.

The measure, due to be introduced in the legislature next week, would shift about half of the school financing from local districts to the state in an effort to standardize school financing statewide. As yet unnamed or numbered, the bill is a result of the controversial Serrano-Priest court decision of several years ago.

Pomonan dies; drug suspected

A young Pomona woman died in County-USC Medical Center, apparently as the result of a heroin overdose Jan. 4, police reported.

Meanwhile, her husband faces arraignment Monday in Pomona Municipal Court on charges of being under the influence of narcotics. He was arrested that day after summoning help for the victim.

Police gave this account:

Denhis Jerry Rennie, 23, said when he returned to his home at 2385 Gabriel St. he found his wife, Michele Ann Rennie, 21, unconscious on the bathroom floor apparently the result of an overdose. Firemen said that when they arrived it appeared that her heart had stopped and physicians at Pomona Valley Community Hospital feared brain damage because of severe oxygen loss.

Rennie appeared to be under the influence of some drug or narcotic and was arrested after his wife was taken to the hospital. He was released early the next morning.

Late Monday night, Mrs. Rennie, who had been transferred to County-USC Medical Center, died. Coroner's investigators said an autopsy was planned to determine the cause of her death.

JUDGE ROBERT FIRTH

City lauds Firth's help

Federal Judge Robert Firth was honored by the Pomona City Council this week upon his resignation after 10 years as a member of Pomona Civic Center Corp., which holds the 30-year lease on Pomona City Hall.

Firth, a federal judge in Los Angeles and formerly a Superior Court judge in Pomona, had been a member of the nonprofit corporation since 1966 when the organization arranged the financing for the construction of the $2.2 million City Hall, which was dedicated in 1969.

Judge Firth said his judicial duties required that he resign from the corporation's board of directors.

Special rubbish pickup costly but Claremonters prefer it

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Claremont residents are willing to pay a much higher rate to keep their backyard or sideyard rubbish pickup, according to a flurry of letters and telephone calls received by City Council members.

The council Tuesday night unanimously voted to retain the present system of weekly rubbish pickup.

City Manager Norman King reported that the rates for residential pickup may be 10 to 15 cents higher than the estimated $4.50 a month if backyard pickup is continued.

At present, residential customers are charged $4 a month for rearyard pickup.

On the other hand, if residents had chosen curbside service, they would have been charged only about $2.80 a month.

Mayor Bertye Smith said that overwhelmingly the comments she received were in favor of retaining backyard pickup.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald said that she was pleased with the backyard service, and suggested that maybe the city could put more persons to work on the recycling of paper and glass to pay their own salaries.

Councilwoman Eleanor Cohen said that some callers told her they were willing to pay a double fee to keep the present system.

Councilman Frank Hungerford said he was glad the council had gone through an effort to find out what residents want in the way of services. He noted that he had suggested such a program some time ago.

"If the community is willing to pay more, that's how it ought to be," he said.

Hungerford noted that rubbish pickup is an expensive service, and accounts for $100,000 of the city's budget or 16 cents per $100 assessed valuation on the tax rate.

He said he thought it was one frill that the city could cut out if necessary.

Mrs. Cohen contended that citizens don't consider the backyard pickup as "a frill."

"I'm glad the large majority are willing to pay more," commented Councilman Richard Newton.

Upland

Councilman Gibson seeks mayor's post

"I've kept my promises to the people of Upland for the past 12 years and am willing to serve them another four years," says Councilman George M. Gibson who is making his second bid for mayor in the March 2 municipal election.

Gibson was first elected to the Upland council in 1964 and served as mayor from 1968 to 1972.

In announcing his candidacy for mayor, the councilman said that he is retiring from Kaiser Steel Corp. at the end of the year and, therefore, will be able to devote the necessary time to the position.

"The people know where I stand," said Gibson. "Sometimes the developers or business owners feel that the city is too restrictive but I feel we've come a long way toward establishing a sound community.

"While some people don't always agree with me, I've found over the years that they trust me and know I stick behind what I believe."

Gibson was instrumental in the establishment of the city's Architectural Commission which reviews and makes recommendations on all residential, commercial and industrial development in the city.

He would like to see the sales tax revenue in the state distributed according to the population in the same manner that the gas tax revenue is made.

Gibson feels that this would be more equitable than the present system where the sales tax money is kept in the city where the sale is made.

He has been superintendent of plant protection at Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana since 1961. Before that, Gibson was a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation assigned to San Bernardino County from 1947 to 1961.

A resident of Upland since 1947, Gibson and his wife, Louise, reside at 894 N. Second Ave. They have four children.

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Should students be "enriched" by a week in the mountains at Big Bear?

Chino school trustees indicated Tuesday night they would take a close look at the district's enrichment courses after board member Roy Ward leveled a blast at one outdoor education program.

The course, involving a trip for Don Lugo High School students to Camp Oakes at Big Bear, was approved on a 3-2 vote by board members. Ward and trustee Lyle Briggs voted against it, while Augustine Tapia, Pete VanderPoel and Al McCombs favored the class.

Students making the trip from Feb. 2 to 6 will be learning about their environment and "wilderness safety," according to school officials. The course is offered during "intersession," the three-week break between regular nine-week year-round school sessions. Both enrichment and remedial instruction are available at intersession.

Ward, a frequent critic of non-academic courses, strongly criticized the Big Bear trip. "I urge the board to take a hard look at intersession activities," he declared. Citing what he called the district's "atrocious" reading test scores, he indicated he was "more interested in bringing up reading grades than enrichment."

"We may be enriching kids to the point of illiteracy," complained Ward. "Why send kids to a fun and games activity when they can't read? This is an activity they can have through Boy and Girl Scouts."

A student might see a leaf outdoors but he doesn't really know what it is unless he reads about it, Ward added.

Don Lugo Principal Dan Garner defended the outdoor program, saying the course was not designed for "fun and games."

"They have planned a course of study for this trip with actual performance objectives that kids have to meet," he noted. "They must take a test when they're through."

Students will spend the first week of the intersession at Don Lugo, the second at camp and the third in post session back at the school, Garner explained. "There also will be a remedial program during the intersession."

After the board voted narrowly to approve the field trip, McCombs recognized a "division" on the issue, and a "difference of philosophies."

He called for a discussion" among board members on basic feelings toward intersession. "I don't think we're as divided as this might show."

Claremont recall group will confer Thursday

A citizens committee to recall Claremont school board members Ernest Taylor, Beverly Shacklett and William Anderson has scheduled a town meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Griswold's Pavilion.

A steering committee elected last Thursday night at a meeting at Condit School will present nominations for candidates on the recall ballot, reported Pat Huffman, steering committee secretary.

Taylor, Mrs. Shacklett and Anderson last Thursday night at a special board meeting voted to close Sycamore Elementary School in June and to replace the program next fall with San Antonio Continuation High.

The trio's vote triggered the town meeting and the subsequent move for recall.

Mrs. Huffman said that citizens will be allowed to make nominations from the floor and that if the group desires, there may be balloting for just three recall candidates.

Mrs. Huffman said that the steering committee after meeting Sunday, Monday and Wednesday evenings has decided that 2,700 signatures are needed to force the election, but "we are going to try to collect between 4,000 and 5,000 within a two-to-three week span."

Massage phase out plan due

The Pomona Planning Commission tonight will be asked to establish an amortization period for massage parlors which don't conform to the city's zoning code.

Under the zoning ordinance, massages and saunas are permitted as an accessory use to an athletic club or association which offers a full range of physical fitness programs such as swimming, basketball, handball and weight lifting.

The commission will be presented a draft ordinance amendment which will set a definite date by which all nonconforming massage parlors shall be removed unless, after public hearings, longer amortization periods are approved.

Officials identified 11 massage parlors which don't conform to the city's zoning code. The commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers.

Brockway closing for 3 months

Brockway Glass Co. in Pomona will close for about three months beginning Jan. 24, C. W. Singleton, plant manager, announced today.

The closure, which will include the recycling collection center normally open to the public, is for major maintenance on the plant's heating tank in which raw materials are melted.

Approximately 300 workers will be affected by the temporary closure.

According to Singleton, the closest glass companies where persons may take glass for recycling during the Brockway closure are Kerr Glass Co. in Santa Ana, and Ball Corp. in El Monte.

Drawing from shallow pools

Add now, the federal bureaucracy-university complex, less publicized, but as powerful.

Some major schools reportedly cooperate with agencies of the government to give accreditation and mythical job appointments to certain individuals so that they will be eligible for high-paying influential government posts under special regulations, replacing men and women who have worked their way up through civil service channels.

Then there's the matter of overpayment. The various departments of the government regularly pay excessively high rates to certain universities and other favored academic groups for hurried superficial studies which would not meet the standards imposed by open competition in a free marketplace.

The price the government paid for those pieces of research, and the low quality of much of the material is really shocking. In some instances it was quite clear that the researcher, usually a Ph.D., had clipped and pasted material from newspapers, books, pamphlets and other such sources, then typed them together with some limited continuity.

The research, in short, was abominable. The quality of the language was frequently submarginal. It was frequently difficult to determine what the author was driving at. After a careful study of his paragraphs, it became clear that he was hiding some obvious, simplistic statement behind polysyllabic words in order to make the reader believe he had deep insight into the situation.

In modern English, not a few of these studies are ripoffs. Yet the government agencies go back, time and again, to these same favored universities and private academic groups.

Recent studies have shed some light on these connections. There seems to be a definite pattern of personnel circulation between certain colleges and universities and certain departments, agencies and bureaus of the government. Graduates and professors regularly move into departments, where friends and associates are located, then back to the university or to special research institutions which have become "holding groups" for scholars out of government, perhaps because of a change of administrations, until the time is ripe to move back into the federal system in higher positions. These men, in turn, bring in their proteges who, more frequently than not, receive rapid promotions.

Sometimes, more commonly today than in the past, the circle is enlarged to include certain major corporations. In the main these companies themselves seem to have been heavily infiltrated by the men from the same academic institutions.

One might suppose offhand that these colleges and individuals were chosen for their excellence. As indicated above, the examples of the work I have seen suggest this is not always so. The favored colleges are not always those with the highest reputations. A goodly number of the nation's higher ranking institutions are not represented in appreciable numbers in the upper ranks of the bureaucracy. They are not numbered in the "in" group.

We suggest the growth of these cliques forms an unhappy pattern, dangerously narrowing the base on which government decisions are made.

A sense of proportion

Dear Editor:

Under the title "Americans Aren't the Guys in the Black Hats!" well known feature writer Ernest Conine points out we of these United States have made as a nation mistakes — very serious ones. We sure have. From the very beginning. There was a movement to impeach our first President because, as they said, he acted like a king. Though he had a positive aversion to conducting the office of president as would a king. The writer of the Declaration of Independence had a mistress of another race. Bore her a child out of wedlock. Our first Secretary of the Treasury was shot and killed by a political opponent in a fatal duel. He who so dramatically cried out "Give me liberty or give me death" voted against granting the right of another race to be free. For him liberty was only for people of one race — his.

We most certainly have had imperfections in our government from its inception. And we can count on glaring mistakes in the years to come. Though past sins cannot be justified, Ernest Conine reminds us that compared with the errors of all other nations of the world ours is not quite that bad. We've always insisted politicians promise us the impossible. We deep down in our hearts know they can't be kept. Yet when they aren't we are disillusioned. And complain all politicians are crooked. It is really silly. Like making in the marriage ceremony the promise to live together until death parts knowing full well one of four of these marriages ends up in the broken promises of divorce. We like to hear others make promises we know they can't keep. We do so ourselves.

Under the pressure of the human weakness to prefer reading what is wrong instead of what is right the news media becomes the "Glad bearers of sad tidings." We with them wring our hands in that desperation which grows out of fear. What a relief to read Ernest Conine's "Casting the mote from one's own eye is one thing. Gouging out the entire eyeball is another." Then he continues "The press and podium seem driven to convince us we live in the worst of all possible countries . . . Such a proposition is ridiculous . . . It is also counter-productive. For then the politics of hope gives way to the politics of defeatism and despair." How true.

Ernest Conine concludes with "What is needed is not a myopic ability to see the injustices . . . but a sense of proportion. A balancing of the good against the bad." Then these encouraging words for our bicentennial, "Judged in this way America still comes out on top." And it sure does. It is great to be alive in today's America. — W. Hamilton Aulenbach, D.D., Claremont

Homework undone

Dear Editor:

I can only support Mr. R. Bragg's letter (PF, January 8, 1976), denouncing your statement "White flight" from Pomona continues". Not only did the Progress Bulletin use poor judgement in printing the story, but the conclusion was based upon one single fact, public school enrollment figures, again confirming my feeling as to the poor quality of the editorial staff.

The article ignores the tremendous expansion of private schools in the Pomona area, with increased enrollment, mainly white, the expansion and development of new mobile home sites, mainly white, the influx of fraternity and sorority houses from surrounding college areas, mainly white, the establishing of housing for the elderly, mainly white, and the sale and rental of houses to young unmarried individuals and elderly persons, who can find accommodations within the community, again mainly white. I can only conclude that, once again, the Progress Bulletin editorial staff did not do its homework! — Bart P. Vlietstra, chairman Pomona Planning Commission

No supporting data

Dear Editor:

As an 11-year resident of the city, one involved in the real estate field, and a Pomona homeowner, I wish to express my almost violent opposition to the lead article in your Sunday, January 4, 1976, edition, "White flight from Pomona continues." I have no objection whatsoever to the publication of the statistics — they only show that Pomona offers one of the finest and most varied multicultural opportunities for education in all of Southern California. I find it extremely difficult, however, to reconcile the purported attempt to assist the city through your campaign against crime with this headline.

Nowhere in the article is there any data to support the "sensational" headline. It would appear that at a time when some definable progress is beginning to be made in the areas of rising property values, decreasing number of abandoned homes, increases in business volume, and significant citizen participation in all aspects of life in this city, the Progress Bulletin has made a concerted effort to negate these positive steps.

I can do no more than express my outrage at a poor example of journalism and my disappointment with the Progress Bulletin for this unfortunate attempt, apparently, to sell newspapers. — Ella M. Ruby, Executive Officer

The mismanaged postal service

WASHINGTON — Once again, the Postal Service has sought relief from its own mismanagement by increasing first-class rates. Thus the people who use the mails the least will continue to be charged the most.

In the past four years, the price of a first-class stamp has more than doubled. Yet the cost of handling a letter has risen only about 35 per cent.

The first-class users might not mind paying a disproportionate share of the mail costs if their letters were delivered a little faster to the right mailboxes. But the delivery service seems to decline, unhappily, in direct proportion to the rise in mail rates.

Of course, the Postal Service has been quick to blame inflation for the need to increase rates and reduce service at the same time. But the real cause of the mail mess, in our opinion, has been bad administration.

We have kept a close watch on the Postal Service since it went on a business basis in 1971. We wrote a series of columns about mismanagement and misfeasance, which forced Postmaster General Ted Klassen to resign in the middle of his term.

From confidential postal files, we showed how the authorities had made costly mistakes, had handed out fat contracts to their friends and had squandered money on their own comforts. Klassen's successor, Ben Bailar, has made some improvements. But the mismanagement is so entrenched that it would take a wholesale reorganization to correct it.

Inflation may have aggravated the fiscal crisis in the Postal Service, but bad planning, boondoggles and cronyism were the cause. The question of who should pay for this mismanagement was brought before the Postal Rate Commission.

With unerring logic, an administrative law judge, Seymour Wenner, proposed that those who create the greatest burden for the Postal Service should pay the biggest share of the cost increase.

He called for a two-and-one-half reduction in first-class rates and an increase in other rates. He suggested raising parcel post rates 57 per cent, second-class rates 100 per cent over five years, and third-class bulk rates by 7 per cent.

This brought howls from newspapers and magazines, who benefit from second-class rates. It also brought howls from the big corporations, which flood the Postal Service with third-class junk mail. This is mail that most recipients would rather not receive. Yet tons of it, addressed to the anonymous "occupant," are delivered every day by mailmen.

You guessed it, the postal authorities were more impressed by the corporate howls than the private grumbling. First-class mail rates weren't reduced two cents, as Wenner urged, but were increased three cents.

This means the individual letter writers will subsidize the corporations by helping to pay the mailing costs for their business solicitations. Or to put it another way, the anonymous agrieved "occupant" indirectly will help pay for the avalanche of junk mail he never wanted in the first place.

Congress voted to free the old Post Office from the fetters of the federal bureaucracy six years ago. The whole idea was to remove politics from the postal operation. The proponents in Congress promised that once the Postal Service was put on a businesslike basis, the mails would return a profit and government subsidies could be eliminated.

Instead, the postal deficit soared to an estimated $2.6 billion. Not that the efficiency experts failed to tinker with the postal machinery. They developed a streamlined, centralized Preferential Mail Network, which was supposed to speed up mail delivery.

Special sorting machines were built that were supposed to process letters speedily. But unfortunately, the infinite variety of envelopes, which come in all sorts of shapes and sizes, fouled up the works.

Another machine scanned envelopes so fast that it outpaced the antiquated machinery that served up the envelopes. The fancy machine constantly runs out of mail to process.

The Postal Service also invested $1 billion in a parcel delivery system that has turned out to be slower, more expensive and more damage-prone than the competing private service, United Parcel.

The bulk mail system is made up of 21 centers built near urban areas. They are supposed to serve as central clearinghouses for parcels in each area. This mechanization plan was supposed to replace hand sorting and provide speedier service.

Instead, the service has slowed and the deficit has risen. According to the Postal Service's own estimate, it takes more than eight days for the average parcel to make its way, for example, from Washington, D.C., to Los Angeles, Calif. The Pony Express made the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif., in about six days in 1861.

The drawbacks of a centralized system didn't dawn on the postal planners until the energy crisis sent their fuel bills soaring. Suddenly, ferrying packages to a central processing plant became exceedingly expensive.

Here's how it works. A package mailed to a neighbor in a nearby village, for example, has to be shipped hundreds of miles to the nearest urban center for processing. Then it is shipped back again to the addressee. This process obviously slows the service, boosts the cost and increases the damage risk.

Congress notwithstanding, the Postal Service is a service, not a business. It is a service, moreover, that is costing the taxpayers about $1.5 billion a year to maintain. It's going to go on costing the taxpayers billions more than it should unless it is completely revamped. And the reorganization, in our opinion, will have to start at the top.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Today let's examine a typical example of American morality in action. — First, because we feel it is our patriotic duty to conserve energy, we decide to cut down on gasoline consumption by enacting legislation setting the top speed for automobiles and trucks at 55 miles per hour.

In solving one problem, however, we suddenly realize we have created another. Fifty-five miles per hour soon becomes a nuisance and a bore. So, with typical American know how, we solve that problem, too. We invent a gadget called a "Fuzzbuster", a radar detector with snooper audio warning, which tells us when we are approaching radar speed traps.

That way we can point with righteous pride to our speed limit conservation efforts and, since the only real sin in America is the sin of getting caught, we can also speed up when the spirit moves us without fear of suffering the embarrassment of being flagged down by a cop.

In pursuit of King's dream

The question is not who killed him, but why?

The person asking the question is the widow of the man who was killed — Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Mrs. King is more than a widow and sad memories. She is a living force in today's civil rights movement, proprietor of the process that will institutionalize Dr. King's dream.

Coretta Scott King is president of the Martin Luther King Center for Social Change in Atlanta. It's a combination of brick and mortar and flesh and blood, a memorial center, a place where one can not only see what Dr. King meant to our past, but also learn how to make our future reflect what he worked, lived and died for.

This week, communities around America will celebrate Dr. King's 47th birth-anniversary (on January 15th). In Atlanta, the King Center is sponsoring a two-day meeting which includes leading figures from the world's of business, labor, politics and civil rights. The meeting's theme is economics.

"He was talking about income, about the redistribution of wealth," Mrs. King said last week, almost answering her own question.

Under another banner, Mrs. King is co-chairperson of the National Committee for Full Employment, a newly formed group which wants to make 200 years of American history come out right this year for the millions unemployed, overtaxed and under-served by their government.

"Economic injustice underlies racial, class and political injustice," Mrs. King said. King was shot down by an assassin in Memphis in 1968 because he stopped to help garbage workers win decent wages and working conditions.

Now his widow, family and friends have joined together to promote a full and fair employment economy among us all.

Here is a bicentennial project longer than the minutes we've been drowned with, but surely more worthwhile than stale memories of what happened 200 years ago.

Forty-seven years ago this month a man was born.

You served us well, and we must begin to carry on your legacy and ideals. To do otherwise would be to walk backwards.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

A lot of harsh situations in life are eased by one gentle and considerate person. These special persons possess such innter qualities of generosity and strength that they never even show disappointment when we fail to thank them.

French bishop Francis de Sales once wrote, "Nothing is so strong as gentleness; nothing so gentle as real strength." All of us want to look up to a strong person, but we too often pay attention to a loud voice rather than to a gentle heart. The true test of gentleness must surely be the helping hand when there is nothing we can do in return, except to be grateful.

Tell all people who think us ex-convicts are rotten that some of us need help when we come out of prison.

We do get $200 but we have to buy our own clothes.

I am 67. I couldn't get help from the welfare people. I was passed from one office to another. At each office I was given forms after forms.

When I asked whether I would get stamps to buy food I would get the answer that I would have to wait for weeks. All I got was polite words. I would rather they would call me a dog and give me stamps.

I am lucky that I have a good brother and sister-in-law or I would have had to steal again and maybe go back to prison.

I did 27 years in prison. It was my fault but I don't want to go back. I only want the money that the state and federal government say I have coming. — F. M., Pomona.

We learned that the Social Security office staff in Pomona concluded your need was genuine after you wrote to us.

You were issued $100 to help tide you over until those "forms after forms" were processed. You are right, it can be awfully tough on the outside, even for people who have never been arrested, let alone convicted.

On Oct. 23, 1975, True Color Studio in Los Angeles accepted from me the sum of $7.95 for a family portrait.

I made it clear I wanted it for Christmas. I have called seven times or more and the studio people keep saying someone will contact me.

The calls to Los Angeles amounted to more than the total for the picture.

Can you do anything at all about this, so that other people will not have this experience? — L. C., Diamond Bar.

Pat Ryan of True Color's adjustments office had a different version of what occurred.

At the time True Color photographers were in the Diamond Bar area, she said, an appointment date of Oct. 30 was given your family.

Someone in your family called the studio to cancel the appointment, she added, so you were told you would be contacted when True Color people were in the area again or you would be given a custom sitting at the studio at no extra charge.

On Dec. 26, Miss Ryan said, you were called again and could not be reached.

The adjustments representative said you would be contacted again when True Color photographers return to Diamond Bar or you would be given another opportunity to have the picture taken at the studio.

In this encounter between you and the studio, the telephone company came out the winner.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, Jan. 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're prone to be more considerate of those with whom you have no emotional ties. You'll eliminate problems if you're aware of this around loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's no reason you shouldn't have fun today, but be careful to live it up at the cost of your responsibilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your material prospects are bright today, providing you don't bank on iffy situations. Exercise prudent judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let self-doubts gain the upper hand today. If you think you're a winner, you are. Act like one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a tendency today to paint a picture which is true, but not necessarily complete. Get all the facts out in the open.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your business dealings today, don't let all the water come out of your well. Make sure that associates kick in their shares.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Muster allies today for your position. They'll be available if you make a proper approach, and show them gratitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have faith in your ideas today, but don't delude yourself into thinking they'll be approved by all. However, the majority will be in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be realistic in dealing with friends in business situations today. You're not the selfish type, but don't give away the store, either.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have to make an important decision today, think of its effect on the family. Then you'll choose the right path.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Want things done today? Get the ball rolling. It's fine if others want to help, but you can't depend on anyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Social functions you plan today should be restricted to those you know are compatible. Satisfying obligations could shake up the party.

Your Birthday Jan. 15

You're apt to form some very valuable alliances this coming year. One will be close to the family. It could be influential in a sphere in which you are interested.

Ex-in-laws have rights

Dear Ann Landers: At the time of my divorce our only child was 4 years old. Now she is 8. Her father has moved out of the state and sends the support checks regularly. But he never bothers to go out of his way to phone or see her. Last year he saw the child only once. He phoned her twice.

I remarried and now have other children. My problem is my ex-husband's parents. They are still determined to keep in close touch with their son's daughter. What is your opinion of ex-in-laws in a situation like this? My daughter seems to be very happy with her own little family.

Am I being selfish in not wanting her to see her ex-grandparents? —A Mess With The Ex'es

Dear Mess: You certainly are.

These grandparents have every right to keep in close touch with your child. Just because you are no longer married to their son and have other children is no justification for denying them a place in this little girl's life. She is the flesh of their flesh and I hope you will never forget it.

Dear Ann Landers: I always suspected it was true but now I have evidence produced by a research team at the University of California. Please print it, Ann. Maybe — just maybe — a few people will recognize themselves.

My theory — now proven: Booze makes most people bores. It plays hell with their judgment. It turns them into repetitive, non-stop blabbermouths and gets them to tell secrets. They forget what they are talking about in mid-sentence. Polite folks become clods when they drink — interrupting others as they drone on and on.

One of the researchers, Dr. Robert C. Smith, a psychiatrist (now at the University of Chicago), said he didn't want to make a moral judgment — but if a person goes to a party and someone who might play a significant role in his future should show up, lay off the sauce. — No News To Me

Dear No News: I didn't need to read about the research to learn the facts stated in your letter. After writing this column for 20 years I have plenty of "research" of my own. But thank you very much for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't have a problem I want solved, nor do I want an opinion of anything. I just want to extend a note of thanks to all the wonderful stepfathers out there. I am writing this letter because I was lucky and got a neat one. It's kind of rare to really get a perfect stepfather. One that never gets made at you, drops everything to help you with any problem and most important of all, loves you like his very own.

Please print this letter as a thanks to all the great stepfathers there are, and a special thanks to mine. — Good Fortune Cookie

Dear Cookie: I'm not giving a single clue as to where your letters came from. I'll bet lots of stepdads would love to believe it was written for them. Let's let them all think so.

Low fat diet cuts cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been on a low fat diet for over a year. My cholesterol was 337 and I brought it down to 294, 254 and finally 245. When I ask what level should I aim for my doctors just says I'm doing fine. What is the normal level?

I am 60 years old and in good health. I have read different articles on high cholesterol that say that it cannot be dissolved once it's in the arteries. Is that true? The triglyceride level is normal. I have brought my weight down to 143 from 163 pounds. I would like to know if I am doing all right and what is normal.

DEAR READER — In general the risk of having a heart attack or other complications from fatty-cholesterol deposits increases as the level of cholesterol increases and decreases as the level decreases. Different laboratory procedures also yield different results.

Depending on the type of test done, once your cholesterol level is around 220 or less your level is low enough that it becomes a less important factor.

I wanted to include your letter in the column for another reason. Your case is a good example of how a low fat diet works. You can debate the value of a low fat low cholesterol diet in some instances for the general population but there is very little doubt about its value in decreasing the cholesterol level in people who have high levels to begin with. Most physicians who have really tried this approach and who succeed in getting their patients to lose unhealthy pounds have observed such changes.

Your results sound like you are moving in the right direction and as you continue to lose extra pounds the results will probably be even better. While you are about it, gradually get rid of all your excess pounds so you don't have any significant amount of fat on your body.

Those articles you have read about not being able to dissolve the cholesterol in your arteries once it is there are completely wrong. A well planned study on monkeys put on a high-fat high-cholesterol diet and then put back on a low calories monkey diet showed that the changes disappeared.

From worldwide studies we know that the deposits disappear. Prisoners of war in World War II on calorie restricted low-fat diets who died and were examined had arteries as clean as a 17 year old girl. Heart disease nearly disappeared in occupied countries of Europe and in Germany at the close and after the war. It was common before the war and is now even more common. The limited food intake resulted in significant changes in the fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries.

Of course you can't reverse the actual muscle damage that might occur to the heart if you have had a heart attack or the brain damage from a stroke but you can accomplish a lot in the way of cleaning out your arteries with a good treatment program.

A lot of people don't get the results they should get because they don't go far enough. When you need to lose 40 pounds and lose only 10 you can't expect miracles.

Tape recording is rewarding

Modern technology, I'll be the first to admit, has gone way beyond me — and seems little the worse for it.

I use the telephone with casual assurance, but I have no idea how it works. I watch television, but I don't believe it. The automobile, radar, coin machines, automatic elevators — they are, for me, as mysterious as the workings of divine providence.

Not the least mystifying of the electronic gadgetry of our civilization is the tape recorder, a device reporters use to make politicians eat their words, and organizations like the CIA (Christian Influence Association) and the FBI (Friends of Bereaved Infants) use to put people in jail.

A tape recorder is equally malicious at suburban parties. Put it under the sofa, purring quietly, then play it back. You hear again in all its incriminatory fidelity the tumult, the raucous voices, the off-key songs and off-color jokes, ribaldry, giddy laughter, the sound of breaking glasses. What hath Edison wrought? (Or was it Franklin?)

There are now more than 20 million tape recorders in the United States, according to someone. That's more than the number of bathtubs, if you feel like brooding.

Dentists use tape recordings on patients to kill the pain (audio-analgesia) while drilling for gold. Must take all the fun out of being a dentist. (When the patient really needs the tape is when he gets his bill.)

An Alabama farmer says his chickens lay more eggs while listening to tape recordings of rock and roll music; soft music taped into a South Carolina diary farm reportedly makes the cows give more milk.

Maybe the Department of Agriculture (HEW) should have an Undersecretary for ASCAP.

Tape recordings are used in classrooms these days to facilitate the study of foreign languages like English; to accommodate students of different learning speeds (78, 33⅓ or 45 rpm) and to let the teacher sneak out for a smoke.

The most exciting use of the tape recorder is in "sleep learning," where you put a gadget under your pillow and loop off to dreamland with the soft-voiced electronic teacher droning into your ear. Spooky. Apparently while your conscious mind is getting its eight hours, your subconscious can be lapping up multiplication tables, sales talks, tax figures, foreign languages and Great Books.

There are certain dangers inherent in leaving your subconscious running. What if your wife changed the tape to little propoganda messages like "Get Mary that fur coat" and "What's wrong with a car with only three fenders?" Do-it-yourself brainwashing.

Ran into a friend of mine on the street (sidewalk, really), and I said, "Hi, Jim, how's tricks?"

"Parlez-vous Francaise?" he asked. "Parlez-vous Francaise? Parley-vous Francaise?"

"What's with you?" I asked, backing away.

He shook his head desparately. "My sleep recorder got stuck last night, stuck last night, stuck last night . . ."

Jacoby's bridge

This hand offers options

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The Jacoby transfer is very effective in responding to a two-notrump opening. As a starter, it gives you a chance to play three of a major with a bust hand opposite a two-notrump opening. In standard bidding, any response to a two-notrump opening bid is a force.

The Jacoby transfer makes it possible for North and South to play at three hearts which makes easily, since South loses two clubs and two hearts.

In standard American, North would have to pass at two notrump (down two) or bid three and four hearts. Four hearts would go one down, but it just might happen that South would refuse to stop there.

Now change South's spades and hearts so that he holds ace-small of spades and ace-king and two small hearts.

Standard American would get to game. So does the Jacoby transfer.

South looks at his hand and sees that he wants to be in the heart game as long as North holds five hearts. He wants to be in a heart slam if North has any real values. Therefore, instead of merely bidding three hearts, he jumps to four and wraps it up.

There is no good way to handle these very freakish hands. Our practice is to open one club, but we would not object to opening with five clubs. We definitely would not open three or four clubs.

What men don't like about girls

What girls most frequently find wrong with their gentleman friends has been reported here. Now comes research on what men object to mostly about some girls. No. 1 on that list of handicaps, they say, is unpleasant disposition. No. 2, moral standards lower than the man's. No. 3, inability to have children. No. 4, something other than good looks. No. 5, a religious faith not the same as the man's. Batches of fellows queried also objected to girls who had been divorced, who had experienced premarital sex, who had come from families the men considered inferior, and who seemed less intelligent, less educated and less well-to-do. Our Love and War man says he fails to see how this list differs all that much from the women's complaints.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "What was the first building owned by the United States government?"

A. The U. S. mint in Philadelphia. It went up in 1782.

Q. "How long can a pack camel under a heavy load travel in the desert without food or water?"

A. Three maybe four days.

Q. "Don't the female patients outnumber the male patients in hospitals?"

A. Over age 15, they do. By three to two.

This week's preferred classified ad reads: "Basketball fans — Tired of burning your fingers on hot basketballs? Buy one of our basketball fans! Lou's Sports Center."

ENDING IN 'GRY'

Did I say angry, hungry and puggry were the only three words in English that end in "gry"? Wrong! Am now advised that "gry" itself is an old word that means "trifle."

Research reveals that only one out of every 20 brave women over 40 hereabouts uses The Pill.

FRANKLIN'S SONS

Q. "How many children did Benjamin Franklin have?"

A. Two sons and a daughter by his wife Deborah and a third son by somebody else. One of his sons, William, helped him out in 1752 with that well-known kite-flying experiment.

The contacts on a television set tuner tend to get corroded. Sometimes this gives you mighty bad reception on one channel or another. It can be cleaned off with a simple solvent that's available quite cheaply at a lot of hardware stores. But experts who have looked into the matter contend set owners have paid out millions of dollars for unnecessary repairs because of such minor corrosion.

MALPRACTICE LAWSUITS

"Why is it that malpractice lawsuits against physicians are so rare in Canada?" inquires a customer. Canadian lawyers don't accept clients on contingency which would allow them a percentage of the winnings rather than a flat fee. Does that explain it?

There's a proper way

Dryer takes care

One popular beauty tool to be found in dormitories and home "beauty salons," the blow hair dryer, is often improperly used and may be initiating hair problems that are attributed to other causes.

Few people know how to use the dryers properly, claims Raymond Testa, director of the Caprice Academy of Jersey City, a training center in natural-motion hair styling for beauty operators.

"Hair can be ruined unless a blow dryer is used properly. If long hair is blown dry on a hot setting from the time it is wet until it is dry, it will simply get too much heat. Then, too, a brush is being drawn through the hair as the blower is directed on the hair and that combination can cause breakage and split ends, leaving the hair dried out and removing its natural oils and moisture."

The hair stylists he trains are told that there are two ways to blow-dry hair. The blower can be used on a low-heat setting or it can be used on a hot setting while the hair is wet if the heat is then decreased as the hair becomes almost dry.

While hair is wet, only brushes which can go through it easily should be used, he advises. A nylon twill brush with properly spaced bristles may be used. A wire wig brush is good while hair is wet, but when it is almost dry, a switch should be made to a natural bristle brush. The natural bristle brush should not be used while the hair is wet.

Professional people know those facts, he says, one reason certain beauty tools are labeled "for professional use only." Testa and the school's artistic director, Anthony De Sando, are consultants to Conair, a hair products line, and the two have designed many tools used in the trade.

"If tools are not understood, they can damage the hair. For example, the flow of air from a dryer must be in the same direction as the brush being used. Then, too, hair should not be blown dry every day as you are likely to do at home. Occasionally it should be dried naturally and shaped with the dryer in a few places.

"Most women use a curling iron after they blow their hair dry or possibly to retouch a style, but a curling iron should never be used on wet hair. For home use, a teflon-coated iron can prevent hair sticking and it will provide insulation so it does not get quite so hot as the professional iron. Other alternatives might be the mist or steam-type curling irons which can help put moisture back in the hair as you curl it," he advises.

Hair can be protected by frequent professional haircuts to snip the ends of the hair which receive the most damage. Low-alkaline protein, acid-balanced shampoos, can help condition hair, but the hair-dresser should be consulted, he contends.

"Remember, hairdressers want customers to look good all the time, not just when they leave the salon. The hairdresser is happy to recommend products that will keep her a walking advertisement looking good between salon visits."

It is a mistake to force hair into a style different from the one that was especially shaped to be dried with a blower. If other styles are wanted, the hair should be cut in layers or in graduated lengths from front to back, he suggests.

King and Winkle vows are repeated

Miss Vicki Gayle Winkle of Ontario and Samuel Edwin King of Ontario were married recently in the Trinity Methodist Church in Ontario.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin R. Winkle of Ontario and the son of Mrs. Sonna Stewart of Ontario and Ralph King of Indio were married in a double-ring ceremony read by the Rev. Roger Skinner.

MRS. SAMUEL KING

Honor attendant was Mrs. Brenda Sudol of Ontario.

Ushers were John Noon on Ontario and Bob Morris of Indio.

Flower girl was Katrina Roscoe of Lynwood and ring bearer was David Stewart of Ontario.

Following the rite, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Ontario. After a wedding trip to San Diego, the newlyweds established a home in Cucamonga.

GOP unit to meet

"Help Us, Help You" is a film which explains to citizens how they must become involved in caring for their property and working toward their safety in order to help the Police Department better serve them and help protect them from thief and wrong doer., and is to be shown during the program for the Thursday meeting of the Pomona Valley Republican Women's Club, Fed. at Orlando's Restaurant.

Speaking at the meeting will be Lt. Vernon M. Weigand of the Pomona Police Department who has been a long time resident of Pomona. During his 24 years on the police department he has taken numerous F.B.I. courses and attended schools in all phases of Police work. Lt. Weigand holds teaching credentials for the State of California and has taught Police Science and Criminal Justice subjects for Mt. San Antonio College and Pomona Police Department's Training Academy. He is presently on the faculty of Rio Hondo College.

The business meeting will open at 11:30 a.m. and luncheon will be served at noon. Lt. Weigand will speak at 1 p.m.

Miss Susan Radder will be the assisting hostess.

The program will be "How to Collect, Record and Compile Material into a Family History."

Resort lines thing of past

Fashion is seasonless

NEW YORK (NEA) — Once upon a winter dreary, the ladies who lunch shivered and flew South.

And Seventh Avenue designers, spotting a good thing, began creating resort lines for them. Lots of little white suits and linen dresses.

The ladies who lunch are still migrating, but while they're being catered to in first-class, a brown paper-bag contingent of secretaries, teachers and young women executives is migrating with them in the tourist cabin, trying unsuccessfully to flag down a stewardess.

There's no such thing as a resort line, declares Designer One. It's simply spring clothing delivered to the stores in November, December and January.

No, no, that's not so, chirrups Designer Two. Resortwear has a certain uninhibitedness, a devil-may-care flamboyance you don't find in spring lines. Just look at those magenta harem pants and bra tops.

That's not the point, snaps Designer Three. We're in an era of seasonless dressing. People are either layering up or layering down for cold or hot weather. And they're dressing more casually.

"There's a little bit of truth in each statement," judges June Weir, vice president of fashion for Women's War Daily, the knowledgeable trade paper of the country's garment industry.

"The market in some areas is very prone to thinking in terms of getting an early indication of looks for summer and that in some measure accounts for resort lines.

"Due to seasonless fabrics such as ultrasuede, matte and cotton jerseys, there's much more seasonless dressing now. Whether you love Levi's or hate them, the fact is cotton denims do get worn all year 'round. While evening dresses and expensive at-home entertaining clothes

They would have to be, because the resort woman considers herself a sportswoman. And that accounts for a trend which began in New York and, according to reports from buying offices and manufacturers, a rapidly becoming national. As one buyer put it, "If active departments aren't happening across the country now, they will be."

An "active" department is a centipede that grew out of the old, two-legged swimwear area.

"The whole concept of what a swimwear department should be has changed over the past couple of years," says Joseph Kaminsky, vice president of Eastern Region Sales for Sirena Swimwear.

"For one thing, it's becoming a twelve-month business. And we're now trying to cater to the total woman. An active department encompasses tenniswear, golfwear and leisurewear — pants, tops, skirts, etc. — sold as separates or as swimwear accessories.

"Today's woman, who has more time and money, wants to look good when she goes away in the winter. So she'll buy a matching caftan or poncho or long skirt to go with her bikini or unconstructed maillot. Matching accessories only sell well during the cruise season, as a matter of fact."

There is an incredible demand for bikinis nationally, he says, but that does not indicate a younger customer.

"It's true that younger women have more money now, but we do a very big business in large sizes because the mature woman wants to look and feel younger. She's partially responsible for the growth in the two-piece swimsuit category."

Marie Grant, group manager of misses better sportswear at New York's trendsetting Bloomingdale's, agrees. To a point.

"Women are body conscious and involved in active sports, or making an attempt at them. Today's older woman, therefore, is much more fit. That's why she wants a bikini. In New York, in fact, the customer is getting smaller. Emphasis has shifted severely from sizes 10, 12 and 14 to sizes 4, 6 and 8."

The customer who is attracted to the current resort line designed by Ronald Kolodzie for Concept VII, is defined by the company's president, Bob Miller.

"My woman still flies South, but she probably has a smaller house and a meager staff. She doesn't need a little jacketed costume because she'll be at the pool or the tennis courts, so she'll buy a great pair of pants or a great skirt, and a great shirt in pale gray cotton chambray, say, with a red tank top for accent. And to finish the costume, she'll throw on a matching lab coat or a smock jacket.

"Maybe she'll buy a little jumper that she can change by adding a tank top. Or a coral sundress or hot pink knitted bagdad pants with a zippered polo shirt with short sleeves.

"For evening, she may choose a red crop tunic over a long oyster skirt or a print crepe de chine dress with a hankerchief hem.

For these classifications from a prestige designer collection, she'll be paying from $70 to $200, depending on the outfit. Smashing clothes to travel in, lounge in, and, if you're a woman who nibbles but isn't quite lunching yet, to wear while worrying about the bill.

April rites slated

The engagement of Miss Deborah Ann Cook of La Verne to Dwight David Pfonner of Covina was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Douglas Cook, Sr. of La Verne.

The bride-elect graduated in 1974 from Montclair High School. She is a past honored queen of Pomona Bethel 47, International Order of Job's Daughters. She is employed by the Motherhood Maternity Shops in Montclair.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fred Pfonner of Covina, is a graduate of Northview High School. He is a past master councilor of the Paul Revere Chapter, Azusa, International Order of De Molay. Mr. Pfonner is serving in the U.S. Navy.

The couple will be married in April

Joyce Brothers

'Sins of the father'

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've been left a four-year-old daughter by a relative who died recently. She was not really a blood relative but we were very close friends. Before her death, she asked me if I would try to adopt this child and treat her as my own. I love this little girl very much, but I hated her father, who died after having served a long term in prison. What bothers me is whether this child will inherit all the things I so feared and disliked about her father.

Can a child be born neurotic, mean, and untrustworthy? My husband is afraid that children catch mental illness in the same way as they'd catch any other kind of disease if they were around it for a while. Is this so? — H.C.

Dear H.C.: No. Children learn from their parents, and imitate the behavior they see around them day after day. They also reflect the attitudes of their parents, and in this sense, each generation of children may be "infected" with the same attitudes. Your little girl, however, will grow up sharing many of your attitudes and she will learn how to behave from observing how you and your husband behave.

Dr. Jan Ehrenwald, a psychiatrist points out that mental illness is not due to contagion, in the usual sense. What is infectious is something else. It is a set of sick interpersonal attitudes, a certain fixed pattern of undesirable attitudes held by a person which may ultimately lead to various maladjustments. Fixed attitudes and actions can be transmitted and can be "caught." To what degree depends on at what age the exposure to sick attitudes began, and the length of time the person was exposed to these attitudes.

Since you liked this child's mother and since you and your husband now have the child and she will be with you for many years, she will probably grow up to reflect the values you and your husband hold. This child will react to the kind of love and affection you give her.

When there is an authoritarian, dominating, punishing, rigid, overly strict father and mother, there will probably be a tense, frustrated climate in the family. The children may be frightened, anxious and tense, and comply or submit to this harsh environment, or they may rebel and try to leave home. In either case, the children will not be healthy for they will be overly submissive or overly rebellious, becoming defiant and destructive.

This little girl has already been through a great deal of trauma and she most especially needs all the support and love you and your husband can give her. Because of the degree of the tragedy that has already fallen upon her, you might find that you need professional guidance with behavioral problems in the first few years in order to help her realize her full potential. Don't hesitate to ask for this counseling if you feel it's needed. It in no way reflects your failure, or the child's.

No matter what your own personal feelings may have been about her father, it's extremely important to respect the child's image of him. Every child needs to be able to respect both parents because a child is a part of the father and the mother. When a parent is attacked, the child is bound to feel attacked and diminished. When you discuss her father, try to put your own hatred aside and find something about the man that the child can love and admire. You will be helping your daughter to grow up into the warm, loving human being you'd like her to be.

ROBYN WEECH

February nuptials planned

Mr. and Mrs. Marlan K. Weech of Diamond Bar announce the engagement of their daughter, Robyn, to Charles Michael Howard of Sacramento.

The bride-to-be is employed as a dental assistant in Diamond Bar and attended Mt. San Antonio College. She is a 1970 graduate of Ganesha High School.

Mr. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Howard of Sacramento, is employed by the Los Angeles Police Department. He served in the U.S. Army. He is a graduate of Mira Loma High School and attended American River College.

The couple will be married Feb. 21, in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in La Verne.

Fashion hint

The woman of wide girth is best advised never to wear a shirt or sweater inside skirts or pants. This cuts the torso in half and draws attention to size by the line.

Bicentennial dinner-dance is scheduled

The Cal Poly Woman's Club will hold a Bicentennial dinner dance at Griswold's Claremont on Saturday evening. Dinner will be served in the Hacienda room with music provided by Dan Garcia and his group.

Reservations may be made for the event by calling Mrs. Allan Van Winkle, 593-1729, or Mrs. Quay Ives, 624-7824.

Fitness

Meal time and exercise time should be separate. A few minutes of exercise before a meal is fine (it may cut your appetite and will probably relax you so digestion is improved), but allow a couple of hours to elapse before you exercise after a meal.

DIGGING OUT FROM UNDER — Adams, N.Y., residents had their hands, as well as shovels, full after four to five feet of snow fell on the community over the weekend. Adams is in the heart of Northern New York snow belt.

Laurel and Hardy recording a hit

LONDON (AP) — Up in the top 10 best-selling records in Britain is a scratchy, long-forgotten disc recorded nearly 40 years ago by the late comedy team of Laurel and Hardy.

Their "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" was No. 3 last week and No. 2 the week before. It has sold nearly half a million copies since a television revival of "Way Out West," the 1937 movie in which Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy sang it.

Its success has startled United Artists, the record company that issued it in November.

"It shot right into the top 100 at No. 48," said United Artists executive Alan Warner, a Laurel and Hardy fan who dug the song out of the archives. "Three weeks later it was in the top five."

Warner, a specialist in reviving neglected songs from Hollywood musicals, included "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" in an album he compiled of songs and gag routines from vintage comedy classics.

He issued the Laurel and Hardy track as a single, hoping it would be played on radio networks to promote the album. It surprised him and record industry pundits by snowballing into the oddest hit of the decade.

"They laughed at us when we issued the record," Warner recalled. "But the deejays loved it."

"They played it day and night," said music writer Dave Meehan. "Everybody was humming it. It became an 'in' thing."

"We tapped the great affection people have for Laurel and Hardy," said Warner. "It has great charm. Even the kids like it."

Industry experts expressed a belief the record was a smash hit because of the public's nostalgia for a happier, less complicated era.

Hardy, the fat one, died in 1957. Laurel, the rubber-faced skinny one, died in 1965. He came from Lancashire, in England's industrial North, and went to the United States 60 years ago in a troupe with another English comic genius, Charlie Chaplin.

They split up in America. Chaplin made it alone. Laurel teamed up with a little-known "heavy" from Georgia, Oliver Hardy.

Cedar trees being rustled

BOVILL, Idaho (AP) — Giant cedar trees, some 300 years old, are being rustled in northern Idaho by chainsaw-toting timber thieves.

A "cedar cop" has been hired by the the U.S. Forest Service and the sheriff of Latah County, heart of the timberland, to patrol the backwoods. But he is frustrated by legal restrictions and the thieves' use of citizen band radios to dodge him.

Fines for convicted cedar rustlers have run from $7.50 to $57.50.

There has always been poaching in the area's vast cedar forests, but it has grown worse in the last two years because cedar is in demand for fashionable shake roofs.

A rustler can make $200 to $300 on the black market for a pickup truck full of illicit cedar. If pressed for an explanation, some say their logs came from trees felled by the wind or left to rot after legal timber harvests.

Authorities aren't sure how much timber is illegally disappearing from the rugged, mountainous country. But "we're talking about an awful lot of trees disappearing every year, hundreds of them," says Philip Dreisbach, logging supervisor for Diamond International.

Diamond, Potlatch Corp., Burlington Northern, Milwaukee Road and the federal government own most of the cedar.

Dreisbach says the rustlers usually take the best cut — near the base of 100-foot trees — leaving the rest of the cedar to rot.

"They take only the best 20 feet out of the butt of the tree," sighs Dreisbach.

He said the fallen "high-graded" trees can be sold, but at a lower price.

At present, stopping the poachers is the responsibility of Sheriff Edwin Pierson and the "cedar cop," Deputy Chip Whiteley.

Whiteley says cedar rustlers use CB radios to warn each other that he is approaching. By the time he reaches the scene, the rustlers are miles away, again revving up their chainsaws.

"I know who they are," he says. "They'll sit right in a coffee shop with me and admit it."

The "cedar cop" says he can't arrest these persons unless he catches them cutting, loading or transporting cedar without permission.

Pierson says he made about 28 arrests last summer.

While some persons "more or less wink at what is happening, like moonshining during Prohibition, this is a violation of the law," he adds.

The lot of the common sailor in the British navy was worse than the life of the enlisted man in the army. The service resorted to impressment (forcibly recruiting men off the street) to meet naval enlistment quotas. The seaman was endangered by typhus and typhoid which were common aboard ship, and often suffered scurvy, too. If he complained, he was lashed. The World Almanac recalls.

Buys Alaska

William H. Seward, as Secretary of State under President Andrew Johnson, bought Alaska from Czarist Russia for $7.2 million.

Draft system may get axed

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the military draft inactive for almost three years, the Selective Service System may emerge as a target of federal budget trimmers looking for places to cut costs.

The draft ended in 1973. Since last March 29, 18-year-olds have not been required to register on their birthday and the machinery was being developed for a mass registration on one or two days a year for all men who turn 18 that year. However, this plan probably will be called off this year because of the budget crunch, according to informed sources.

In past years, the date of the annual lottery which decides the order that men would be called up if necessary, has been announced by early January. But there are no signs of it happening this year.

Furthermore, President Ford has issued no proclamation setting a date for the once-a-year registration system for all men who turned 18 in that year. Nor is there any indication Ford will set such a plan in motion by designating the date.

If the lottery and registration are not held this year, it would be the first year since the two-year lapse of the draft law in 1947-1948 that 18-year-olds were not processed in any fashion.

Asked about this situation, Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone noted that future plans are up to Ford, and he declined to speculate on what the President's decision might be.

The service had a $37.5 million budget this year while planning for a stand-by draft and administering the jobs programs that were part of Ford's clemency program. The Selective Service maintains 626 offices and a staff of 2,000.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee that has jurisdiction over the Selective Service said the agency should be abolished.

Calling the Selective Service System the biggest boondoggle in government, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said in a statement today that keeping the agency in business after the draft has been abolished cannot be justified.

"The new budget should contain no more money for Selective Service than it will cost to kill the agency this year," said Proxmire, who has been campaigning for three years to abolish the agency.

"Some say it should be kept in place in case of war," Proxmire said. "The answer to that argument is two-fold.

"First, if we get into a small war, the Army and the beefedup Reserve and National Guard are supposed to be ready," he said.

"Second, if we get into a large war, there would be no time to call up the men and women, hear their appeals, put them in training camps, ship them to Europe, or Asia or Africa, and send them into battle. It would take a year to do that and by that time any big war with Russia or China would be over."

Proliferation of A-bombs feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enough plutonium will be generated by nuclear reactors in the world's less-developed countries by 1990 to constuct 3,000 small atomic bombs, an Energy Research and Development Administration study says.

Results of the study were contained in a compilation of data on nuclear proliferation released Saturday by the Senate Government Operations Committee, which is considering legislation to tighten controls on U.S. nuclear exports.

The committee's chairman, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, DConn., said that "perhaps the most formidable challenge to the United States diplomacy for the balance of this century is to reduce the incentives for other nations to obtain nuclear weapons.

"The worldwide spread of nuclear power technology, facilities and material — particularly to less-developed countries — is accelerating and threatens to outpace efforts by the supplier nations and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) to apply adequate safeguards against diversion, theft and sabotage."

He pointed to IAEA estimates that the total number of nuclear power reactors worldwide will quadruple to 800 during the next decade, while the number of plants built to separate plutonium from spent reactor fuel will increase from six to 17.

Plutonium, a highly toxic material formed as a by-product of atomic fission, may be used as reactor fuel, but also can readily be used to make atomic weapons.

Ribicoff said the United States, supplying more than 70 per cent of the world's power reactors, "should fully utilize its leadership position to win support of other supplier nations for strengthening IAEA safeguards and curbing the export of nuclear fuel facilities to individual non-nuclear weapons states.

"Equally important is the need to reach agreement on minimum physical security standards to reduce to an absolute minimum the risk of nuclear theft and sabotage by terrorist or criminal groups."

Sens. Charles H. Percy, RIll., and John Glenn, D-Ohio, also support the bill to restrict U.S. nuclear exports.

The ERDA-sponsored study of bomb-production potential among less-developed nations found that by 1990 power plant reactors in those countries could be producing 15,010 kilograms of plutonium annually, enough for 3,002 minimum-sized explosive devices.

A kilogram equals about 2.2 pounds.

Future of new NFL teams clouded

MIAMI (AP) — The future of the National Football League's new Tampa Bay and Seattle franchises was clouded today after the league postponed its expansion and college draft following a federal suit filed by the two teams against the NFL Players Association.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday the two drafts would be delayed pending the outcome of the suit filed jointly by Tampa Bay and Seattle, seeking a judicial green light for the stocking plan.

Rozelle said the veteran draft, which had been scheduled for Jan. 23-24 in New Orleans, would be delayed to give the federal district court time to rule on the Tampa Bay-Seattle suit. He also put off the college draft, which had been set for Feb. 3-4 in New York City, saying it would be "impractical to conduct it with the new teams prticipating and then find expansion to the two cities had to be postponed or abandoned because of their inability to receive the allocation of veterans."

At the heart of the issue was the suspicion by the new team that the NFLPA would seek to block the expansion draft. Tuesday's suit cites a Dec. 19, 1975, letter from Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players Association, to Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council, in which Garvey is quoted as saying that the veteran allocation "is in all probability, a violation of the Sherman (antitrust) Act."

It also mentions an Associated Press story dated Dec. 30, 1975, in which Garvey is quoted as telling a news conference that the union "will take steps to void" the allocation "if it takes place".

Hugh Culverhouse of Tampa Bay and Herman Sarkowsky of Seattle, principal officers of the new teams, also cited the recent Minneapolis court decision, in which the controversial "Rozelle Rule" was termed illegal, as another reason for the suit.

They charged the Minneapolis decision had produced confusion and uncertaintites in the application of antitrust laws and labor laws to professional sports leagues.

In Washington, Garvey declined comment on Tuesday's action until he can read the text of the suit, which was filed in Miami's U.S. District Court.

The Players Association has taken no action against the draft, but Culverhouse said he prefered not to wait for it.

"I don't take risks," said the Tampa Bay owner. "When someone threatens me, I take action."

Culverhouse said he hopes the matter would be resolved between 3-6 weeks. "I regret the suit as much as anyone else," he said. "Any delay (in stocking) is not helpful, but I'd hate to go ahead with the draft and then find the players allocated were not available."

In the veteran allocation draft, Tampa Bay and Seattle were to receive three players from each of the other 26 NFL clubs. They were also to have the first two selections in each of the 17 college draft rounds.

Now, all they have is some legal papers and a future date in court.

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The Vikings are rolling.

Chino High could not even slow them down Tuesday night as Garey swept past the Cowboys, 86-44.

In spite of the number of points his Vikings managed to score, Garey coach Mike Wells was pleased more by the way his players reacted when the opponents had the ball.

"We didn't really run our offense the way we wanted to at first," said Wells. "I was more impressed with our defense. We really pressured them, and even when they were able to break through our press we usually stopped them."

One of Garey's favorite ways to stop Chino's offense Tuesday night was simply to take the ball away. The Vikings stole the ball 15 times as the Cowboys committed 22 turnovers to Garey's 10.

Guard Stanley Webster was the chief thief for Garey with five steals, including three in the third quarter, when the Vikings outscored Chino, 24-4.

James Lofton and Gary Carpenter took the ball from the Cowboys three times apiece, and Kent Jordan and Robert Green added two thefts each.

"I was also impressed with our rebounding," said Wells. "That was our best game on the boards, especially the third quarter.

"Milton Banks really came alive for us. He's a good rebounder, but he usually waits for Gary (Carpenter) and James (Lofton) to get the rebounds."

Banks grabbed five rebounds in the third quarter alone as the Vikings dominated the boards, 15-2. He finished the game with seven rebounds, behind teammates Lofton (12) and Carpenter (10). Jordan added seven from his guard position, two more than anyone from Chino.

For the game, Garey controlled 53 rebounds to Chino's 29.

"I didn't know they were that strong on the boards," said Chino coach Bob Elder after the game.

"They are really exceptional," Elder continued. "They're the champions and they got us thinking about it. We were making mistakes that we're trained not to make."

The Cowboys were hardly in the game at all. After the Vikes scored the first eight points of the contest, Chino came back to trail by just a point at 14-13. That was on the strength of some fine early shooting by Jeff Scott, who hit his first four attempts of the night, all from a distance.

But Scott quickly cooled off and the Vikings pulled away. A basket by Lofton just before the halftime buzzer gave Garey 45 points, just over twice Chino's total of 22.

After the Vikes totally dominated the third period for a 69-26 lead with eight minutes left, it looked as though Garey might even triple Chino's score before game's end.

But the Cowboys were outscored by just a point in the fourth period, and a bucket by Chino's Barry Higgins at the buzzer finalized the score at 86-44.

Lofton, who left the game with almost seven minutes remaining, led the game's scorers with 20 points. Carpenter accounted for 18, Jordan contributed 14 and Webster added 13.

Higgins led Chino with 10 points. Jimmy Love, usually the top Cowboy in scoring and rebounding, was stymied by the defensive play of Carpenter, who at 6-5 has four inches on the Chino forward.

Love was held to eight points and five rebounds. He shot just five times against Carpenter, made three and was fouled on the other two.

"We took a little of their aggressiveness away from them," said Wells. "Usually they're quite aggressive but our kids were even more so."

"Lofton played a fine game. He is really coming along."

Cal Poly holds off APC rally

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

AZUSA — Cal Poly displayed two different basketball teams here Tuesday night in holding off a late Azusa Pacific rally to down the Cougars, 81-73, to even the season record at 6-6 entering conference play.

The Poly starters would build up a big lead only to have the second string falter.

It wasn't exactly the type of thing Coach Don Hogan wanted on a night when he felt he could give his reserves plenty of playing time to get them ready for the start of California Collegiate Athletic Association play Friday night when Cal State Northridge visits Kellogg Gym.

The same thing happened in both halves.

Poly built up a 31-13 lead in the first 10 minutes of the game but APC was able to get back in it by scoring nine straight points against the reserves. Poly enjoyed a 45-30 margin at halftime.

Hogan's Heroes built the lead to 20 points at 63-43 with 13:27 left in the game when the coach sent in the subs. Azusa then outscored the reserves, 15-4, in a five-minute stretch to get the momentum.

After the Poly starters returned, Azusa's Ken Bechler scored to cut the deficit to 67-60 to give the usual capacity crowd at the Cougar lair some hope.

But the Broncs were able to outscore the hosts, 7-2, in the next four minutes to restore order.

"Our first team played very well tonight," Hogan said, "but the players coming off the bench will have to learn to accept the responsibility of doing their part. With our balance, this type of thing shouldn't happen. We need the subs if we're going to win. We need everybody."

Azusa Coach Cliff Hamlow, who is trying to get his Cougars ready for NAIA District Three division play, was happy with his team's play.

"I thought we played well tonight and hadn't played well recently," he said. "We couldn't buy a basket in the first half."

Little guard Tom Ispas, who is listed as 5-foot-8 in an exaggeration of his real height (more like 5-5), enjoyed his most productive scoring night in his two years at Poly.

"Tom has been shooting well in practice," Hogan said. "He is getting his confidence."

As usual, senior guard Joe Sills led the Broncs by scoring 26 points in making 10 of 19 field goals and six of eight free throws. Forward Paul Newton added 19 points and grabbed nine rebounds while Jack Gamulin was off with 11 points.

Freshman guard Rick Dillon, who played for last year's CIF 4-A champions at Palos Verdes, led the Cougars with 16 points followed by Keith Walker (13) and Ken Lukhard (12) plus Steve Gustin (12) plus Bechler (11).

MIAMI (AP) — New San Francisco 49ers' head Coach Monte Clark, restraining his joy at replacing the ousted Dick Nolan, says Nolan helped him get his former job as the Miami Dolphins' offensive coach.

The 38-year-old Clark, who became the National Football League's youngest head coach Tuesday, recalled "Dick recommended me to Don Shula" in 1970, when the Dolphins' mentor was looking for an offensive line coach.

"I'm sorry his misfortune has turned into my opportunity," Clark said.

He declined to release the terms of his contract, but said he was satisfied with it. "I've been given all the authority I need to function properly," he said.

Perhaps foremost among his functions at San Francisco will be to rehabilitate the 49ers' inconsistent offense, which led the league and fumbles and penalties this past season. While the offense has been blamed for the team's 5-9 record, the defense performed well.

Clark must also lead the search for a new quarterback.

Veteran Norm Snead started the season, but soon was followed by Steve Spurrier and, in the final three games, by second-year pro Tom Owen. For the past few weeks, there have been reports that the 49ers were trying to snare New England quarterback Jim Plunkett.

During five years with the Dolphins, Clark molded the offensive unit into one which led the American Football Conference in rushing three times and which set a league rushing record in 1972.

Clark said his first step would be "to evaluate the team and hire a coaching staff," but he ruled out taking to San Francisco any colleagues on the Miami staff.

In coming weeks, he will face the expansion and college player drafts, and Clark said the guarantee of authority to run the club included essential control over the 49ers' draft decisions.

"But it (the 49ers' draft strategy) will depend heavily on the people who are already working on it and preparing," he added.

Clark said he is "excited" about going home to San Francisco, where he began his 11-year career as a top NFL lineman. A fourth-round draft choice of the 49ers in 1959, Clark was a defensive lineman for three years before being traded to Dallas.

At Dallas, he switched to the offensive line and went on to play at Cleveland before Shula made him coach of Miami's offensive line in 1970. He has been the Dolphins' overall offensive coach the past two seasons.

Clark said he had his first meeting with 49er officials Jan. 2 in San Francisco after being contacted about the position a few days earlier.

"He's a very highly qualified guy and has been a candidate for NFL coaching vacancies for the last two years," said 49ers spokesman George McFadden.

Nolan, a defensive specialist who delegated offensive chores to assistants, held the head coaching job for eight years before being fired. He had one year left on his estimated $65,000-a-year contract.

Jordan, Newton Players of Week

Garey High's Kent Jordan and Cal Poly's Paul Newton were named the Players of the Week for the high school and college levels respectively at Tuesday's weekly basketball luncheon.

Jordan, a 5-foot-11 senior guard, scored 43 points last week to lead Garey to a pair of wins over Damien and Montclair to jump ahead in the San Antonio League standing.

Newton, a 6-foot-4 senior forward from Los Angeles, scored 49 points and grabbed 23 rebounds in Poly's win over Cal State Dominguez Hills and loss to Athletes in Action.

Quoting the coaches:

MIKE WELLS, Garey: "Kent is not just a scorer. He is also a great passer and probably the best defensive guard we've had at Garey in my years at the school. He does so many more things than just score. Kent has played a different role this year since we needed a floor leader. It has taken awhile but he is getting the job done. I've never seen anybody with Kent's shooting range. We're getting more team unity now."

GENE VICTOR, MSAC: "We're going to host Cerritos Saturday night and it should be the biggest game of our season. Cerritos is the defending champion of our conference and has four starters back plus six of its top seven players. We'll start a lineup of Angel Santiago, Tom Pokorski, Duaine Harding, Jeff Nelson and Dick Rockwood. This will be Rockwood's first start for us. He is a freshman from Los Altos who has been very steady for us. He's improved in his fundamentals very much. We got a look at Nevada Las Vegas' team last week and it is a very quick team which plays great defense."

DON HOGAN, Cal Poly: "We play our second home game of the season Friday night when we host Cal State Northridge. We invite all those who missed the first one to make this one. We're ready to open league play. All I can do now is to serve as a cheerleader from the bench and try to avoid technicals. Newcomer Mike Kluge has provided a spark of intensity. He is a very aggressive player who livens up the game. It's hard to make any predictions about the league. I'm excited about it as I feel this is the best team we've had in my three years as head coach."

DAVE WELLS, Claremont-Mudd: "We played 40 minutes of intense basketball both nights when we lost to Whittier and beat Caltech. We're playing harder and we have to. I feel we're ready for La Verne and Pomona this week. We're making freshman mistakes but making up for it with aggressive play. We went all out against Caltech because we needed the win and went after it."

ART BIAS, La Verne: "We lost two home games last week against contenders so it was kind of frustrating. We've lost seven of our last eight games and it's hard to take especially when they're close games. This is another crucial week for us against Claremont-Mudd and Occidental. We hope to turn things around."

Lakers notch win on Jabbar jumper

CHICAGO (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar doesn't take a jump shot very often, but he's proved he can make it count when he does.

"I didn't hesitate to take the shot I did," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I guess I tried to mimic Wilt Chamberlain's style. I used to practice that shot in high school a lot, but in the pros, the skyhook has obviously been my bread-and-butter shot."

"That shot," as it turned out, was a 25-foot jumper at the buzzer which lifted the Los Angeles Lakers to a 104-102 National Basketball Association win over the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night.

It snapped a four-game Los Angeles losing streak and gave the Lakers their sixth victory against 17 defeats on the road this season.

Tuesday night's contest was nip-and-tuck most of the way with neither team able to build or hold a substantial lead.

In the fourth quarter, the score was tied 14 times before Abdul-Jabbar, who led all scorers with 35 points, sank his winning shot after an inbound pass from Connie Warner.

"With three seconds left, we planned to get the ball into Abdul-Jabbar if he was open," said Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "Otherwise, we had Gail Goodrich and Cazzie (Russell) picking for each other. The idea was to get the ball into the big center, but if he was played too close, we would throw the ball to the weak side and get a good percentage shot."

Chicago had taken a 102-101 lead with 1:21 remaining on a free throw by Jerry Sloan, but the Lakers came back to tie it 102-102 on a charity toss by Abdul-Jabbar with 37 seconds left.

After turning the ball over on a charging foul by Mickey Johnson, the Bulls intercepted a stray Los Angeles pass with 21 seconds to play and attempted to run the clock out before trying for the winning basket.

Bob Love, who led the Bulls with 30 points, let fly with a shot with less than 10 seconds remaining and Abdul-Jabbar grabbed the rebound. The Lakers called time out and set up the play which produced Abdul-Jabbar's winning basket.

"We were ready defensively to play them and the ball," said Chicago coach Dick Motta. "As far as I'm concerned we were all in perfect position. They did have good shooters on the floor, but we thought we had everything covered."

Leos, Stags vie tonight

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College plays the first of two "must win" games tonight.

The Leopards, 0-2 in the SCIAC and 5-9 overall, travel to neighboring Claremont-Mudd tonight to battle the Stags in Ducey Gym (8 p.m.). At the same time, Pomona-Pitzer travels to Whittier.

C-M is 1-1 in the conference and 3-11 overall. The Stags doubled Caltech's point total in racking up a 102-51 win Saturday.

"I feel we have to turn things around this week," said La Verne coach Art Bias. "If we don't we might as well kiss any chance of being a titie contender.

"But practice has been encouraging and I think our guys have come to grips with our problems. During January, our players seem better able to concentrate on basketball. That has been one of our main problems."

La Verne has now lost four in a row and seven out of the last eight.

In the last three contests, the Leos have just about taken themselves out of the game in the first half. In losses to Alaska and Redlands, they couldn't buy a basket in the first half.

They hit on only 10 of 28 field goal attempts in the first half against Alaska and just 13 of 36 in the league opener against Redlands. It was somewhat of a different story against Whittier. The Leopards turned the ball over the first five times they got it and seven times in the first 5:22.

All three victorious opponents in those three games have shot over 50 percent for the game.

The Leos very noticeably are not nearly as deliberate in their style of play this year. When they got down the floor they put the ball up much earlier than they have the last two years.

Instead of waiting for the high percentage shot Bias wants them to take, they put the ball up too soon and often take a low percentage shot.

"We're not staying in our patterns," Bias agreed. "We're shooting too soon and we're shooting from too far out."

In tonight's game, Bias will start Stan Dill (6-4) and Mike Winze (6-1) at the guards. The pair combined for 26 points off the bench against Whittier Saturday. Dill had 14 and Winze 12.

Claremont-Mudd presents a different lineup than the ones the Leopards faced in the Redlands Tournament in December.

"La Verne beat us easily then," said Stags' coach Dave Wells. "A lot of people expect them to do it again. But we don't feel that way. We're not as tall, but we're a little quicker and we're more aggressive."

The Stags were beaten, 69-50, in the Redlands Tournament. Last week, Whittier defeated the Stags 78-63 and La Verne, 75-70.

At Whittier tonight, the Sagehens (0-2 and 3-9) face a team that not only has won four in a row and five of its last six. But the Poets (2-0 and 5-8) have two players just eligible that will be making their varsity appearance.

At center will by 6-10 Mike Stevens from San Jose St. Karl Simmons, a 6-3 guard-forward may be a swingman. But the former JC All-American is sure to play somewhere. He led the nation in scoring (36 points-a-game average) last year.

"I haven't seen Whittier play at all," said coach Les Nagler of Pomona. But with two new players it's hard to tell much anyway."

Sports briefs

An academy spokesman said Graham quit to devote more time to his job as athletic director for the school's 16-sport intercollegiate program.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, a former collegiate star at the University of Oregon who went on to play and coach in the National Football League, is one of three finalists for athletic director at Oregon, the Eugene Register-Guard reported in its Tuesday editions.

HOUSTON (AP) — Wendell Mosley, backfield coach for the national champion Oklahoma Sooners since 1972, has been named head football coach at Texas Southern University, President G.M. Sawyer said Tuesday.

Mosley, who coached former Oklahoma great Greg Pruitt at Houston Elmore High School, will return to his alma mater to replace Dr. Rod Paige, who remains at Texas Southern as athletic director.

Paige stepped down as head coach after a 4-6 season when the school's athletic council decided to separate the jobs of head coach and athletic director.

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Capitals, on a treadmill to National Hockey League immortality, have extended their seemingly endless string of negative records.

After losing 3-2 to the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night, the hapless Caps stand alone in the record book with a mark of 22 consecutive games without a victory, one more than the 1944 New York Rangers and the 1950 Chicago Black Hawks.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran outfielder Vada Pinson, released recently by the Kansas City Royals, has been signed as a free agent by the Milwaukee Brewers, the American League baseball club announced today.

Pinson, 37, hit .223 with four home runs and 22 runs batted in for the Royals last season.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Outfielder Dick Sharon, who never played a game in the St. Louis organization, was traded Tuesday by the Cardinals to the California Angels for a minor league pitcher.

The 25-year-old Sharon played for the San Diego Padres in 91 games last year, then was sent to the Cardinals' Tulsa team in the trade which brought Willie Davis to the Padres.

The Angels sent 24-year-old pitcher Bill Rothan, who had been with El Paso last season, to the Cardinals. Sharon, who hit .194 for San Diego, will report to California's Salt Lake City farm team. Rothan was 118 with a 4.44 earned run average last year.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox rehired radio announcer Harry Caray Tuesday. The rehiring of Caray was the latest move by the new Sox owner, 61-year-old Bill Veeck.

Caray was fired by ex-owner John Allyn at the end of the 1975 baseball season from his position as play-by-play announcer on radio and television.

HOUSTON — Second-seeded Martina Navratilova of Beverly Hills, Calif., defeated Glynis Coles of England 6-3, 6-3 in first-round action on the Women's Professional Tennis Tour.

INDIANAPOLIS — Stan Smith ousted Mark Cox 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 in the first round of a $64,000 World Championship Tennis tourney.

Giants hold off Devils

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

The bitter rivalry between cross-town San Antonio League foes Ganesha and Pomona Highs was evident Tuesday night in the Giants' gymnasium.

After Pomona had pulled within two points on Clifford Williams' basket with 30 seconds left, Giant Les Harris followed a missed George Terry free throw with two seconds remaining to ice the win.

The Devils were down by 13 points at the end of the third quarter and things looked grim when they were behind by 19 with 4:21 left to play.

Cliff Williams (six points) and teammate Rick Williams (five points) led the visitors on their trail.

Ganesha flexed its muscles to open the third period as Terry pumped in six straight points building the lead to 15.

Terry finished the stanza with nine markers and the Giants finished on top by 13.

Ganesha was aided in its third period blitz by nine Devil turnovers. The Giants forked over the ball as many times in the final period to help Pomona.

Terry led all scorers finishing with 17 points. Hawthorne added 12 points and James Verdon notched 11.

Beside his 12 points Hawthorne also blocked three shots and hauled down 11 rebounds. Harris pulled down 7 misfires.

High point man on the Devil squad was guard Charles Cole with 12, followed by Cliff Williams' 11 points off the bench and Jim Middleton added eight markers. Williams also grabbed seven caroms.

Both teams went into the contest with identical 1-1 SAL records.

Ganesha improves its overall ledger to 9-6 while Pomona's season slate drops to 3-9. The skidding Devils have lost nine out of their last 10 outings.

Ganesha will travel to Claremont (2-1) and Pomona will visit another city rival in league leading Garey (3-0). Both games will tip-off at 8 p.m. Friday.

Spartans outlast Cavs

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Damien High stayed in the thick of the San Antonio League basketball race with a 74-65 win over visiting Montclair Tuesday night, but Spartan coach Bill Roberts was less than thrilled with the result.

"Don't get me wrong, I'm happy with the win," the Damien mentor noted. "But we really let down after getting that big lead in the first half. Our performance tonight was far from our best effort of the season."

Roberts' squad built up a big 17-point lead at the conclusion of the first half, 36-19, and appeared to have the game well in hand.

However, an aggressive Montclair squad came out gunning in the second half and ran up 46 points (to Damien's 38) in the final 16 minutes to make things interesting, and to keep Roberts uneasy.

The Cavaliers got as close as five on a couple of occasions in the late going before the Spartans slowed the tempo down a bit and put the win on ice.

"That was quite a comeback by Montclair," Roberts said afterward. "They are a well-coached team and have given us a lot of trouble in the two years I've coached at Damien.

"Last year we had 'em 24-4 after one quarter at Montclair but they fought back to make a game of it. I guess I should have known to expect the same sort of thing tonight."

In some ways the contest was a repeat of last year. The Spartans, behind the scoring of forwards Mike Wetenkamp and Jon Kolodge, took a 24-10 advantage after one quarter.

Those two cooled down a bit in the second quarter, but Damien still outscored the Cavs 12-9 in that stanza to assume a 36-19 halftime edge. At the half Wetenkamp (16) and Kolodge (14) had accounted for 30 of the 36.

However, it was a totally different contest in the second half, as Cavalier guards Steve Hossler and Ron Candelaria led the Montclair comeback attempt. Hossler wound up the night as the Cavs' leading scorer with 17 after totalling only three the first half. Candelaria finished with 12 markers.

With Kolodge and Wetenkamp relatively silent in the third quarter, coach Lanny Moore's Cavs closed the gap to 52-43 going into the final period.

Wetenkamp finished with a game-high 31 points, Kolodge chipping in with 21. Only other Spartan in double figures was guard Bill Duffy with 13.

Both teams had good shooting nights, Montclair hitting on 29 of 57 from the floor compared to the Spartans' 28 of 56. However, big difference was at the free throw stripe, where Damien canned 18 of 29 charity tosses against only seven of 17 for the Cavs.

The win moves Damien's SAL mark to 2-1, the Spartans now standing at 8-6 for the year. Montclair is now 1-2 in the SAL and 3-9 on the season.

Both teams return to the SAL cage wars Friday night, Damien hosting Upland and Montclair entertaining Chino. Those games will start at 8 p.m.

Soccer loop has meeting

Chino AYSO Region 67 will have its annual meeting, Thursday at 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of Ramona Junior High School.

The 1976-1977 Executive Board will be nominated and elected. They will begin serving April 1 under the leadership of Regional Commissioner Ron Heuerman who will be serving the second year of his two year term.

Everyone interested in furthering the American Youth Soccer Organization in Chino is urged to attend.

Wolfpack whips Upland

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Following a convincing victory by the Claremont High Wolfpack over the Upland Highlanders, 65-39, Claremont coach Jack Smith said about the win, "We needed it — we cut down on turnovers and that helped us."

In the game played at Upland's gym Tuesday night, Claremont shot a torried 52 percent from the field (27 of 52), while the Scots could only muster 37 percent from the floor (15 of 41 shots).

Claremont's sophomore center Derek Britton led all scorers in the hoopfest with 18 points. Britton also pulled down the most rebounds for the 'Pack — 11.

Upland got behind early in the game, and stayed behind. The 'Pack scored eight straight points following the tip-off and it never looked back.

At the end of one quarter, Claremont led 17-8 and upped that lead to 30-18 by halftime. Bruce Daniel, who started for the injured Rob Fossum (who figures to play Friday), played a good game for the 'Pack. Daniels scored eight points and added five assists.

The struggling Scots (1-11 overall; 0-3 league) did not have a man in double figures for the contest. Center Brian Patterson led Upland with eight points.

The 'Pack really blew the Scots off the court in the third stanza when they outscored Upland 17-4, to take a 47-22 margin at the end of three.

For the past five games, Claremont had been turning the ball over to the opposition about 30 times per game. In the Upland game, they cut that down to 19 turnovers, with most of those coming in the final frame when anxious substitutes who were a bit rusty came in.

Both coaches, Smith and the Scots' Paul Trautwein, emptied their benches in the last quarter allowing the reserves a chance to get some playing time.

Six Scot substitutes scored, with the most points coming from Dave Wedergren, who had seven. Claremont's Sandy Throop paced the 'Pack bench with nine points, while starter Christ Clark equalled that total.

"I was very pleased with our performance," skipper Smith said. "We played aggressively on defense and offense."

Claremont holds a 2-1 mark in San Antonio League play, but it is 6-7 overall. The 'Pack will face stiff competition on Friday, when they host the Ganesha Giants, who are 2-1 in SAL after tromping Pomona 71-67.

Upland was guilty of committing 21 turnovers. As far as team rebounding, the 'Pack had 37 to the Scots' 20 caroms.

The Highlanders travel to play Damien Friday at 8 p.m. in what should be another SAL disappointment for Upland. Damien has some fine outside shooters and good board work, while Upland just can't get things rolling and find themselves the cellar-dwellers, one game behind Pomona, Montclair and Chino.

Webb nabs soccer win

SAN BERNARDINO — Webb School made its Citrus Belt League soccer debut in impressive fashion here Monday afternoon, routing host Pacific High 6-0.

Paul Richards had a big day for the Gauls, accounting for five goals. Felipe Loza added the sixth Webb score, and also contributed two assists, as did Chris Cornell.

The win gives Webb a 5-6-1 season record. The Gauls will continue CBL play on Thursday, as they host Chaffey at 2:30 p.m.

Chaffey, Webb lose to league opponents

Chaffey High and Webb School both suffered league setbacks Tuesday night.

The Tigers saw a one-point halftime advantage disappear as star center Mark McQuaid sat out the entire third period due to foul trouble in Chaffey's 53-44 loss to visiting Fontana.

McQuaid, a 6-foot-4 senior who entered the game with a scoring average better than 20 points per game, collected his fourth foul with a minute left in the first half, which the Tigers ended with a 26-25 lead.

But the visitors outscored Chaffey by five points in the third period as McQuaid watched from the bench and did the same in the final period even though the Chaffey center re-entered the game. He fouled out with about two minutes left.

McQuaid finished the game with nine points, and John Mattke, usually a high scorer, had just six. Anthony Munoz led the Tigers with 16.

But Fontana forward Paul Wilson poured in 21 second-half points, 12 in the final quarter, to personally outscore Chaffey during the last two periods. Silson finished with a game-high 27.

Three weeks of inactivity caught up with Webb's Golden Hawks. They fell behind by eight after a single quarter and, after pulling to within five points with eight minutes to go, ran out of gas in the final stanza for the 11-point loss.

Gaul forward Marshall Morton led the game's scorers with 15 and teammate Doug Seaborne added 12.

In a game originally set for Tuesday but played Monday due to scheduling conflicts, Ontario Christian nipped host Whittier Christian, 42-40.

Tied 40-40 with 1:30 left, the Knights elected to play for the last shot. Center Hank Bouwman made a bucket with eight seconds to go, just enough time for the hosts to miss the first shot of a one-and-one foul shot situation.

Webb, 0-1 in the Arrowhead League and 4-5 on the season will host Aquinas Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

YOU MIGHT CALL IT ANOTHER VOTE of confidence. At least that's what one more group seems to be giving tennis in planning an upcoming public services project. The organization is the Pomona Valley Chapter of the California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The project is an all-day clinic, tentatively scheduled for early February, at the Chino High School courts.

"We thought we could build better public relations," Katie Yanez, chapter vice-president and Chino High physical education faculty member, explained. "And we couldn't think of a better way to do it than through tennis."

THE CLINIC ORIGINALLY was set for last Saturday but had to be postponed because some of the instructors couldn't make it. Jim Paschal, La Verne College coach, and a number of high school coaches in the area will do the teaching and demonstrating, once the association can get them all together.

The sponsoring group is, as its name suggests, a professional organization of persons in the health, physical education and recreation fields. Mrs. Yanez said the association won't stop with the Chino event if the turnout there is good but will take its show throughout the valley. Right now, the dates are a little uncertain, but the price isn't. The clinic will be free. Tennis instruction seldom comes that cheap these days.

THAT NEW DOUBLES LEAGUE which has brought the Claremont Tennis Club into competition with four other Southern California clubs has been something less than a romp for the Padua Avenue people. Two of the Claremont teams have managed only a split in two outings and the other two are winless.

Claremont's "Red" A team was the club's only winner, beating host Anaheim Hills, 6-1. Claremont got a sweep in the men's action with victories by the tandems of Jim Lucke and Charles Zetterberg, Jack Smith and Mike Gozansky and Don Cromer and Ed Brant. Donna Dickenson and Betty Skvarna and Margaret Beck and Ann Flora won women's matches while Doris Cromer and Charles Nagle copped the mixed contest.

The other A team, the "Blues," were put in just about that frame of mind. They lost their second in a row, this one at the Riverside Swim and Tennis Club, 5-2. New member Oscar Harper paired with Pete Welsh for one Claremont point. Roger Skinner and Paul Skvarna got the other. Harper, of Altadena, should help win some more points along the way. He and his son, James, are the U.S. Tennis Association's ninth ranking father-son doubles team for 1975.

The B team dropped its league opener in a home match against Redlands, 4-3. The three men's duos — John Bear and Herb Christian, Duke Leong and John Jang and Bob McBride and Don McBryant — got all the Claremont points but the team's fate rode down to the last point of a tiebreaker in the last set of the last match. Hannelore Ferling and Lynn Nichols lost that heartbreaker to Pat Kaiser and Mary Heigelin, 6-0, 3-6, 6-7.

The C team suffered a 5-2 setback at Anaheim Hills, evening its record at 1-1. Claremont winners were Barbara O'Brien and Karlyn Cobb and Marilyn and Bill Bird.

PLAYERS OF HIGHER ABILITY teamed with players of lower ability in the special handicap doubles tournament last weekend at the Upland Racquet Club. Howard Schrock and Marilyn Micheau won the 12-team round-robin competition while Wally Velie and June Schrock were second. Jerry Byer was named most improved player off the weekend's play.

* * *

STILL ANOTHER NO. 1 ranking for Lea Antonoplis: The Southern California Tennis Association named the 17-year-old Glendora whiz the top woman player in the region for 1975. Lindsay Morse of Pasadena was No. 2. Bob Lutz, now based at San Clemente, was rated tops among the men, ahead of Palos Verdes' Bill Martin. Two other players with local ties received high rankings. Doris Clark of the Claremont Tennis Club was rated fourth in women's 40 singles division. John Shea, a Pasadena resident who operates contractor's business in Walnut, was listed eighth in the men's 45 division.

* * *

IN THE WORDS OF BILLIE JEAN KING (doing the TV commentary on last weekend's World Series of Women's Tennis): "Winners are afraid to lose. Losers are afraid to win." Sounds simple enough, but that would seem to conflict with the philosophy of another legendary sports figure, namely John Wooden. The Wizard of Westwood always said he didn't want his teams playing with the fear of losing . . . A new local area tennis club is in the works. The Rowland Recreation Department is planning to get it started with an organizational meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Rowland High courts . . . Entry deadline is next Monday for the 12th annual Lakewood Country Club Junior and Senior Veterans and C Tennis Tournament. The Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation will conduct the event Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 7 and 8. Entries go to County Sports Office, 8th Floor, 155 W. Washington Blvd., Los Angeles, 90015, $6 singles, $7 per doubles team . . . The Los Angeles Strings are still negotiating with John Newcombe but one hitch is holding back the Australian star. The Strings insist he play all 44 matches from May through August. Newcombe isn't sure his previously injured knee can take it . . . The UC Riverside tennis team has raised some eyebrows even before its season's opener Saturday against Pomona-Pitzer. The coach of the men is a women, Linda Aloia.

No vote on Giants today

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The future of the San Francisco Giants may be decided today, but only in the minds of National League owners.

"We'll make our presentation as originally planned. Then the owners will have the opportunity to consider our proposal," said Donald McDougal, one of the prospective buyers who would move the baseball franchise to Toronto.

The league's owners were expected to give prompt approval to the recent sale of the Atlanta Braves to businessman Ted Turner.

"We're not going to move the team, so there should be no problem," said Turner, adding with a laugh, "if we go broke, we're going to do it in Atlanta."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was scheduled to preside over a joint meeting of American and National League owners. The agreement with the Players Association has expired, and a committee of owners will face association representatives Thursday in nearby Scottsdale.

The recent arbitrator's ruling declaring pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally free agents is another matter being dealt with, mostly by the busy lawyers, and the owners may be updated on the case.

However, there will be no vote today as originally scheduled on the Toronto group's $13.25 million offer and plans to move the Giants immediately despite the longterm lease at San Francisco's Candlestick Park. A court order issued Monday in San Francisco restrains the Giants, team owner Horace Stoneham and the league from taking any action on the matter for at least a week.

"There will be no vote. The Giants can't even bring it up," National League President Chub Feeney said on the eve of today's baseball meetings at the Adams Hotel in downtown Phoenix.

Feeney, accompanied by an attorney, met later Tuesday night for more than an hour with McDougal, president of Labatt's Breweries, and McDougal's lawyer.

"It's my understanding that the owners will have to reconvene and consider our offer after the injunction matter is dealt with," said McDougal. "We continue to be optimistic."

He added, "I don't believe anyone is going to match our offer."

San Francisco Mayor George Moscone, who hoped to talk to National League owners today, has predicted there will be a new offer, equal to or better than the Toronto one, that would keep the team in the West Coast city where it drew only 522,000 fans last season, 519,000 in 1974.

Moscone also has promised there will be a huge lawsuit filed if the team leaves. The lowest figure he's mentioned has been $10 million, the highest $3 billion.

The Toronto group anticipates spending no more than $5 million, which would be subtracted from the $13.25 million purchase price, to pay off San Francisco, a major league baseball city since 1958.

Kings cool off red hot Flames

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Flames had their 11-game home unbeaten streak snapped by the Los Angeles Kings and Atlanta Coach Fred Creighten was thankful for little favors.

"I'm glad to see the last of Los Angeles," said Creighton after the Kings skated to a 3-0 National Hockey League triumph Tuesday night. The club's last meeting of the year also ended Atlanta's six-game unbeaten streak.

It was the third victory in four games over the Flames this season for Los Angeles.

Rogie Vachon, the Kings' goalie, who had a 3.27 goals against average entering the contest, was flawless in goal, stopping all 40 Atlanta shots.

"It wasn't a big thing," said the netminder, "because most of them were from the point, far out. I can take the shots from the point. They might score one goal on me all year from out there.

"We gave them the first shot but they just were not getting the rebounds," said Vachon. "I think defensively this was our best game."

Coach Bob Pulford agreed, saying "As a team, I don't think we've played as strong in our end all year. We just haven't played good defense all year."

Pulford said Vachon has been having an excellent season, as good as last year when he was among the league's leaders, but that the defense has not performed as in 1974-75.

Vikings crush Chino, 86-44

The Vikings made 36 of 78 field goal attempts (46 per cent) while Chino managed just 16 of 55 (29 per cent). The Cowboys were held to one basket in the second quarter and two in the third.

Garey will take its 3-0 San Antonio League record against Pomona Friday night at the Viking gym. The Vikes, with a one-game lead over Ganesha, Damien and Claremont in the league standings, are 10-5 overall. Chino (1-2, 5-8) will visit Montclair Friday. Both games will begin at 8 p.m.

Valley PSL teams record three wins

Three of the four Pomona Valley PSL soccer teams scored victories last Saturday.

The Division IV Diamond Bar Kickers defeated the South Bay Gunners, 14-1. Paul Caligiuri scored 10 goals and Jeff Hooker and Mike Brocki each scored twice. Jeff Ratajczak and Guy Pagan were credited with assists.

The Division IV Claremont Stars scored a 4-1 victory over St. Stephens. Bob McGwire scored twice and Dave Ryan and John Albert each scored once. Goalkeeper Dave Price and fullback Dave Ryan anchored the Stars' defense.

The Division III Stars scored a 1-0 forfeit win over Montebello and the Spittin' Image Claremont Kings were defeated 5-0 by the South Bay Vikings in a Division II match.

This Saturday, the Kings play Wilmington Atlas at noon and the Kickers play Bellflower at 1:30 p.m. with both games scheduled at El Roble Intermediate School. The Division III and Division IV Claremont Stars play Torrance Arsenal at Torrance.

Poly holds off APC

Poly shot 53.8 per cent from the floor in the first half while APC could make only 36.4 per cent. However, the Cougars connected for 50 per cent in the second half while Poly could hit for only 41.4 in the final 20 minutes against a tough Cougar zone defense.

Azusa made 17 of its 18 foul shots in the second half for a game percentage of 85.2 while the Broncs made 71.4 per cent of its free throws.

Poly enjoyed a 40-39 edge in rebounding while Azusa led in turnovers with 18 to the Broncs' 15.

APC (5-10) visits Redlands tonight and opens NAIA division play at home Saturday night against Pacific Christian.

Longest American League hitting streak in 1975 was achieved by Denny Doyle of the Boston Red Sox. He hit in 22 straight games.

AP picks Lynn as Athlete of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Just three years ago Fred Lynn was a senior at the University of Southern California, dreaming of a pro baseball career.

Now the young outfielder for the Boston Red Sox ranks among sports immortals as The Associated Press' 1975 Male Athlete of the Year.

Lynn, who helped the Red Sox to within a bloop single of baseball's world championship, was named winner of the AP award Tuesday in recognition of his feats, including an unprecedented sweep of both Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year honors.

He received 88 votes in the national poll of sports writers and sportscasters. Quarterback Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings was second with 55 votes and heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali third with 42. Ali was last year's Male Athlete of the Year.

"I appreciate this very much," Lynn said in a telephone interview from El Monte, Calif. "It's quite an honor to be voted over such other fine athletes. I'm very happy. My wife and dad also will be very pleased."

A second round draft choice after playing on three NCAA championship teams at Southern California, Lynn spent onehalf season with Bristol in the Eastern League in 1973. The next year he hit .282 with 21 homers at Pawtucket of the International League.

In a brief trial with Boston in 1974, he hit .419 with two homers and 10 RBI in 15 games. That spectacular showing earned him a trip to training camp last spring and he won a regular job.

A left-handed power hitter with good speed, Lynn batted .331—second to Minnesota's Rod Carew. He hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs. He also led the American League in slugging (.566), runs scored (103) and doubles (47).

Lynn, who will be 24 on Feb. 3, also frustrated opponents with his defensive play in center field. Spectacular catches became almost routine and he threw out 11 runners who tested his powerful left arm.

In Boston's three-game sweep of Oakland in the playoffs, Lynn batted .364 and drove in three runs. He hit .280 and drove in five runs as the Red Sox lost the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds on Joe Morgan's bloop single in the ninth inning of the seventh game.

"I would like to improve in every department this year," Lynn said. "However, if I have the same season as I did last year, I'll be happy, more than satisfied.

"I don't have any false ideas about this year, but I don't believe in any sophomore jinx. It's just that everything figures to be tougher. The pitchers alone figure to be more selective."

Lynn's main goal will be to cut down on his strikeout total (90) and improve his base-running.

"I don't think I should strike out as much as I did," he said. "Maybe it's just a matter of being more selective. We'll see. I also think I can help the club if I run more on the bases. I stole 10 bases in 15 attempts last year and I'm sure I can do better."

Petty starts title defense Sunday

Auto racing

RIVERSIDE — Richard Petty opens defense of his sixth NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National stock car driving championship Sunday at Riverside International Raceway in the 14th annual Winston Western 500.

The $139,000 road race which leads off NASCAR's first $4 million season will give Petty as much of a challenge as he can handle, what with the likes of Bobby Allison, David Pearson, Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker, Ray Elder and Benny Parsons in the best stock car field assembled at Riverside since the factories pulled out of racing.

A total of 58 drivers have filed entries and will begin practice Thursday. Qualifying for the front 25 starting positions in the 35-car field will be held Friday. The last 10 spots in the Winston Western 500 will be filled on Saturday.

Also on Saturday NASCAR's late model sportsman stock car driving champion, L.D. Ottinger, and Bobby Allison will head a 44-car field of drivers in the 10th annual Permatex 200 on the same 2.62-mile road course where Petty and friends will race Sunday.

Petty will be driving his red-and-blue STP Dodge in the 500-miler for the fifth season, but it will be a new 1976 model incorporating the features that made it a winner last June in Riverside's Tuborg 400.

The defending Winston Western 500 champ, Bobby Allison, will be driving the '75 Penske Matador for possibly the final time before the car is retired in favor of a Mercury. It is the last factory car in stock car racing and is no longer supported by American Motors.

The Matador had been phenomenally successful at Riverside, winning the 1973 Winston Western 500 with the late Mark Donohue as driver, capturing the pole position for the 1974 Tuborg 400 with George Follmer at the wheel and winning last year's 500-miler for Allison.

The marathon road race doesn't figure to be a Petty-Allison duel, as exciting as those have been over the years, because serious challenges are expected from Pearson in the Purolator Mercury, 1974 winner Yarborough in the Holly Farms Chevrolet and the hottest driver on the circuit at this time — Buddy Baker in the Norris Industries Ford.

Baker, who toured the course last week with George Follmer in the Toyota pace car for some personal instruction in the art of road racing, announced after the tutoring session that he feels confident he can do well at Riverside. In three previous races he has finished no better than 25th.

Pearson, Yarborough and Californian Ray Elder are the only other NASCAR stars who have won races at Riverside, but there are at least half a dozen others with a chance to win. The leading candidate is Darrell Waltrip in the Gatorade Chevrolet, who is called by nearly everyone on the circuit a future super star.

Parsons, who scored a surprising Daytona 500 win a year ago in the Kings Row Chevy, comes to Riverside with his strongest team ever, and Lennie Pond driving the Pepsi-cola Chevy, is another highly regarded younger driver.

Tickets are on sale at Ticketron (213) 670-1262, Wallichs Music City Stores, Liberty Agencies and Riverside International Raceway (714) 658-1161.

Funny Cars open O.C.I.R. season

EAST IRVINE — Orange County International Raceway will stage its initial championship event Saturday.

Appropriately entitled "Season Opener," the event will feature 16 Funny Cars.

The starting lineup: includes Don "Snake" Prudhomme, N.H.R.A. World Champion. Tom "Mongoose" McEwen — Fountain Valley, A.H.R.A. World Champion, 1975 Duster; Ed "Ace" McCulloch — Fresno, Mfgs. Funny Car Champion, Tripp Shumake (Sundance) — Phoenix, Arix., Burnout King, Jake Johnston (Pisano & Matsubara) — Long Beach, West Coast Heavyweight.

Jim Dunn — La Mirada, Supernational Champion.

The AA/Funny Cars will be joined by an 8 car field of 200 mph methanol burning BB/Funny Cars, including World Champion Dale Armstrong (Torrance) in the "Alcoholic"; Wadsworth, Ohio's Ken Veney; Brad Anderson (West Covina); and Frank Harris (Long Beach) in the "Hawkeye."

The gates open at 1:30 p.m., time trials from 2:00 till 6:30 p.m., eliminations begin at 7:00 p.m. In recognition of OCIR's first major event of the 1976 season, adults will be admitted for only $3.95, with children 6-12 only $1.95 and children under 6 admitted free. Pit pass is $2.00 additional.

Long Beach slates March Grand Prix

LONG BEACH — The City of Long Beach will host the United States Grand Prix West, March 26-28. The Formula One World Championship points race will feature the greatest international drivers challenging the 2.1-mile course through the streets of this seaside city.

Announcement of the event was made by Christopher R. Pook, President of the sponsoring Long Beach Grand Prix Association.

"All arrangements have been made with the Committtee Sportive Internationale, the Constructions Assocation and the Grand Prix Drivers Association," said Pook. "Needless to say, we are delighted. Long Beach will become the Monaco of the West and the eyes of the entire world will be focused on our city."

The United States thus becomes the first nation to be awarded two world championship Grand Prix races in the same fiscal year. The United States Grand Prix East will be held in Watkins Glen, New York in October.

Ottinger, the national sportsman champion from Newport, Tenn., went 108.569 mph in his '69 Chevelle to win the pole away from Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala. Allison, driving one of the new, small '72 Novas, suffered almost complete mechanical failure during his time trial but stuck with the car to qualify on the front row at 108.392 mph.

Observers around the 2.62-mile course said the sheet metal of Allison's car was rubbing against one of his tires. Back in the garage after his speed run, Allison reported that the distributor had poked a hole in his oil pump, causing a malfunction.

Then his young protege, Neil Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., aborted his qualifying run when the differential of his '72 Nova failed. The Allison crew labored the rest of the afternoon to put Allison's rear axle into Bonnett's car so he could qualify for the race. Bonnett wound up 12th fastest at 105.601 mph.

Three-time winner Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., qualified ninth in his '73 Nova at 105.946 mph. Also qualifying, but 38th in a field of 44, was his 19-year-old son, Hershel, Jr., in another '73 Nova at 100.616 mph.

San Bernardino veterans Ray Johnstone and Ivan Baldwin — Baldwin now lives in Modesto — took over the second row, and fifth fastest was Jim Walker, a muscular logger from Ferndale in Northern California.

Aggie now opperating Ascot Park

GARDENA — J. C. Agajanian, dean of American race organizers and United States Auto Club championship car owners, has signed a ten-year lease to become the sole operator of Ascot Park, one of motor sports best-known half-mile dirt tracks.

Agajanian and Maxwell Ziegler, owner of the 40-acre site at 18300 S. Vermont — near the junction of the Harbor and San Diego freeways — said the new agreement was in part a result of "friendly persuasion" from the racing fraternity.

"Many of my friends in both auto and motorcycle racing urged me to take a more active role locally after Ascot closed last fall," Agajanian said. "Since my doctors have told me that I have completely recovered from cancer, and my family didn't object, I decided to lease the track and to start work on the 1976 schedule immediately."

Ziegler added, "In recent weeks my own canvas of the racing industry convinced me that Agajanian was the man to make Ascot go if he wanted to attempt it. Many of the people I've talked to started with Aggie's name. Many others who were potential lessees themselves agreed that Agajanian was the ideal operator if he was interested. In other words, his position in the industry was unamimously favorable."

In his 43 years of active association with motor sports, Agajanian has organized 249 USAC races in all divisions and at least twice as many American Motorcycle Association events at all levels.

At Ascot as a sub-tenant he started the AMA Nationals and staged a Turkey Night midget Grand Prix. He has never been involved previously in a long-term lease as individual.

An inexpensive view for use of a fondue

What's the happiest refrain during the chill days of winter? You know it. It goes something like this: "Come on over to our place and we'll fix you all some hot fondue/ Come on over to our place — and we'll have some toasted bread/and maybe some cheese — and apples, too."

If you're our kind of people — and you have a fondue pot just begging to be of service (any reasonable substitute will do, including your old camp stew pot and Sterno Stove) then cast your eyes on the recipes below. As you can see, the secret ingredient is tuna. Yes, canned tuna in vegetable oil. It's the with-it, thinking person's basic food. Our philosophy is why knock yourself out (and your wallet as well) on expensive seafare when you can come up 1-2-3 with a fabulous tuna fondue that has guests begging for more and more.

Tuna's a meal by itself, you know, high in complete protein. So it's satisfying even to the hearty appetite types. When you make either of the two fondues, below, just add a platter of crunchy, toasted French or Italian bread cubes for dipping. Follow with a no-work dessert — cheese and apples, for instance. Take our word for it; you'll have the group sighing for encores.

TUNA BEER FONDUE

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup chopped onion
- ½ cup flour
- 1 cup milk
- 1 bottle or can (12 ounces) beer
- 1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice, optional
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

In medium saucepan melt butter. Add onion; cook until tender. Blend in flour. Stir in milk and beer. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in cheeses, tuna and seasonings; heat. Transfer to fondue pot and keep warm. Serve with cubes of French bread. YIELD: 4 servings.

TUNA MUSHROOM FONDUE

- 1 can (6 ounces) chopped mushrooms
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1/3 cup flour
- 2 tablespoons snipped chives
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ to 1 teaspoon dried dill weed
- 1 cup light cream
- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
- ¾ cup dry vermouth
- French bread cut in cubes

Place chopped mushrooms and liquid in blender container; cover and process at high speed until pureed. Melt butter in medium saucepan over low heat. Blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually stir in light cream, stir constantly until sauce thickens. Stir in tuna, pureed mushrooms and vermouth; heat. Pour mixture into fondue pot, keep warm over canned heat. Serve with cubes of French bread. YIELD: 1 quart fondue mixture.

Police losing personal touch

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Rising crime and rising costs are forcing police to investigate some crimes by mail, says City Manager Hugh McKinley.

McKinley told the City Council on Tuesday that because of the growing workload and higher police operating costs, investigators no longer have time to talk personally with the victims of burglaries and larcenies.

Hors d'oeuvres that can be made ahead of time

Hors d'oeuvres that can be made ahead of time for the party often provide a recess for the host or hostess. It allows time while dinner is simmering in the kitchen to relax with guests, while snacking on appetizers.

Here are four handy recipes for hors d'oeuvres that can be prepared ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator to be served when they are needed. They are baked liver pate, pink devil dip, crunchy munchies and shrimp spread. They can be prepared, stored and served in the same dish.

BAKED LIVER PATE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¾ pound chicken livers
1 small onion, cut in quarters
1 clove garlic
2 eggs
1 cup heavy cream
salt and pepper
6 slices bacon

Heat butter in an eight-inch skillet and brown chicken livers until cooked. Place chicken livers and drippings into blender. Add onion, garlic, eggs and heavy cream. Whirl until smooth. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Use four bacon slices to line the bottom and up one of the sides of a 1½-pint Pyrex brand refrigerator dish, allowing excess to hang outside. Cut remaining slices of bacon in halves and use them to line the remaining sides of the dish. Pour in liver mixture. Turn bacon slices lightly over top of liver mixture. Place on a pan to catch any drippings. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for one hour, or until loaf is puffed and firm to the touch. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve spread on thin slices of pumpernickel bread or crackers. Serves six to eight.

CRUNCHY MUNCHIES

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 cups pretzels
1 cup raisins
2 cups Triscuits, broken into thirds
1 cup salted peanuts

In a large glass-ceramic skillet heat butter until melted. Stir in brown sugar for one minute or until butter is completely blended into sugar. Add remaining ingredients and stir until all pieces are lightly coated. Place in a 1½-quart Pyrex brand refrigerator dish and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 20 minutes. Cool completely and then cover and store at room temperature. Serves six.

PINK DEVIL DIP

1 cup (½ lb.) cottage cheese
1 tablespoon white horseradish
1 jar (4 oz.) pimento, drained and chopped
¼ cup minced celery
salt to taste

Combine all ingredients in a 1½-cup refrigerator dish. Stir until well blended. Cover and refrigerate. Serve with crackers, potato chips or raw vegetables. Garnish with a radish rose. Makes 1½ cups.

SHRIMP SPREAD

½ lb. raw shrimp
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
salt and tobasco to taste

Cook shrimp in boiling salted water until they turn pink. Drain, shell, and devein. Place shrimp, cream cheese and lemon rind into a blender and whirl until smooth. Season to taste with salt and tobasco. Spoon into a 1½-cup refrigerator dish. Cover and refrigerate. Serve spread on crackers or melba rounds. Garnish with quartered lemon slices dusted with paprika. Makes 1½ cups.

Baby beef

Baby beef is an excellent choice for the holiday hostess with no time to cook. This extra tender, mildly flavored and lean young beef is perfect for gourmet preparations that are ready in minutes. For saute' dishes, use thin slices of round, sirloin or sirloin tip to cook one or two minutes per side over medium heat. Then deglaze the pan with wine, bouillon and seasonings to make a tasty sauce to pour over the beef. Economical baby beef works well in the classic veal dishes, too.

Comes the time between New Year and spring when all the world seems a dull gray and the blahs become a way of life. Mixing and kneading yeast breads and filling the house with the aroma of fresh baked bread is a sure cure for the mid-winter blahs.

Cooks of old added leftover mashed potatoes to their dough insuring added moistness to the finished loaf. Both of these new recipes, Honey Orange Braids and Onion Cheese Loaves, get the same moist goodness from the addition of instant mashed potato products.

Honey Orange Braids combined the flavors of honey and orange into a slightly sweet bread that's just right for a special breakfast, lunch, or dinner — or for a snack. Instant mashed potato flakes add the extra moist touch. The dough is easy to handle and shapes easily into a braid.

Onion Cheese Loaves are a savory bread that's a perfect lunch or dinner accompaniment. Instant mashed potato granules create the moistness-magic while onion and cheese add the special flavor.

Once you've discovered the joys that baking your own yeast breads can bring . . . you might find yourself wishing that spring would take its time in coming!

HONEY ORANGE BRAIDS

- 5 to 6 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup mashed potato flakes
- 2 envelopes active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1½ cups water
- ½ cup orange juice
- ½ cup honey
- 1/3 cup shortening
- 1 to 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup raisins

Combine 1½ cups of the flour, potato flakes, yeast, and salt in large mixer bowl. Combine water, orange juice, honey, shortening, and orange peel in saucepan; heat until very warm. Add to flour mixture. Blend at low speed, then beat at medium speed of electric mixer for 2 minutes. Slightly beat eggs; remove 2 tablespoons and set aside. Add by hand, eggs and 1 cup flour to dough; beat at high speed for 2 minutes by hand. Stir in raisins and enough of the remaining flour to make a stiff dough. Knead on floured surface for 8 to 10 minutes, until smooth and satiny. Let rise in warm place until light and double in size, 40 to 60 minutes. Divide dough in half; divide each half into 3 pieces. Let rest 10 minutes. Roll each piece of dough to an 18-inch long "rope." Braid three ropes together, tuck ends under, and place each loaf on a well-greased baking sheet. Let rise again until light and double in size, 40 to 60 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. Makes 2 loaves.

ONION CHEESE LOAVES

- 4 to 5 cups all-purpose flour
- ¼ cup mashed potato granules
- 2 envelopes active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 cups shredded Cheddar or Swiss cheese
- 1½ cups water
- ½ cup milk
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons shortening

Combine 2 cups flour, potato granules, yeast, salt, and cheese in large mixer bowl. Combine water, milk, onion, and shortening in saucepan; heat until very warm. Add to flour; blend ½ minute at low speed of electric mixer. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Stir in remaining flour to make stiff dough. Knead on floured surface 8 to 10 minutes, until smooth and satiny. Shape into two round loaves. Place on well-greased baking sheets. Let rise in warm place until light and double in size, 1 to 1½ hours. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes, until deep golden brown. Makes 2 loaves.

There were four secretaries of state under President Harry Truman.

Stick to your resolution, try a meatloaf

If your New Year's resolution is to trim your meat budget without trimming your family's appetite, then you'll want to try this great Pinwheel Meat Loaf. It is also special enough for company occasions, so a welcome addition to your recipe repertoire.

Hearty, economical ground beef, combined with traditional meat loaf ingredients, take a pinwheel turn to the delicious with a surprise stuffing of pressed smoked beef, Swiss cheese and succulent sliced mushrooms. Rich, tawny brown canned mushroom steak sauce, spooned over during the last few minutes of baking time, makes a tasty topping for the meat loaf. It totes right to the table in an attractive bread 'n board pan.

Microwave cooking instructions are given for those lucky career gals and homemakers in a hurry who have microwave ovens.

PINWHEEL MEAT LOAF

1 pound ground beef
1 egg
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons dry bread crumbs or cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
6 thin slices pressed smoked beef
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese
1 2½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms, drained
1 5-oz. can mushroom steak sauce

Combine ground beef, egg, onion, bread crumbs, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Pat out meat mixture on wax paper into a rectangle about ½-inch thick. Lay beef slices atop the meat mixture and sprinkle with cheese; top with sliced mushrooms. Carefully and tightly, roll up jelly-roll fashion to enclose center ingredients. Place seam-side down in a 1-pound loaf pan or centered in an 8 or 9-inch square pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Spoon mushroom steak sauce over the surface and continue baking for 15 minutes. Serves 4.

MICROWAVE

New twist to beer, pretzels

Beer and pretzels have been a winning team for so long that no one is sure when they first got together. Beer is as ancient as the days of the Roman Empire. Because they go so well together, the chances are that they've been a pair for many centuries.

Now we've brought this food and drink twosome together again, this time with a new twist.

Ever tried making your own pretzels? Here's your chance for a real treat. By substituting beer for water in a time-honored recipe for homemade pretzels, we've come up with the Self-Made Beer Pretzel. The mellow brew adds a tasty lift to this recipe's ever-delicious results. And, once the pretzel dough is rolled into "rope" form, there's no end to the designs you can improvise after you make the traditional twist.

Besides being a delicious snack, homemade pretzels also make great gifts, take-along party presents, and a thoughtful way of saying thank you.

THE SELF-MADE BEER PRETZEL

1½ cups warm beer (105 to 115 degrees)
1 package active dry yeast
½ teaspoon granulated sugar
4½ cups sifted all purpose flour
1 egg, beaten
Coarse salt

Pour warm beer into a large mixing bowl; sprinkle in yeast and sugar. Stir until dissolved. Mix in flour; form into a ball. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about ten minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning to grease all sides of the mixture. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80 to 85 degrees), free from draft, until dough has doubled in bulk — about one hour.

Punch dough down. Form pretzels as shown in the accompanying illustrations. Place twists on greased aluminum foil-lined baking sheets, about 2 inches apart. Brush with beaten egg and sprinkle with coarse salt. Bake in a preheated very hot oven (475 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks. Makes about 24 (3-inch) pretzels.

HOW TO TWIST

Step One: Break off a piece of dough the size of a golf ball (about 1½ inches). Keep remainder of dough covered when not in use. Roll into a "rope" about 15 inches long on a board or formica counter.

Step Two: Make a loop by carefully picking up the ends. Your pretzel is beginning to take shape.

Step Three: Bring the left end of the loop over to the right — and the right end under the left. A twist will be formed in the center.

Step Four: For the traditional three hole shape, bring the ends over and down. Press them against the sides of the loop. Now you've got it — the perfect twist pretzel.

CHINESE SUPPER
Fish with Bean Sprouts
Lemon Chicken Rice
Banana Glace Tea

LEMON CHICKEN

2 whole chicken breasts (halved, skinned and boned)
Batter, see below
Lemon sauce, see below
Lemon slices for garnish

Cut each chicken-breast half in two horizontally. Prepare Batter and Lemon Sauce. Dip a chicken piece in the batter and let excess drip back into bowl. Deep-fry in oil heated to 375 degrees for about 5 minutes; drain on brown paper and keep warm in a low oven. Fry remaining chicken pieces the same way, one at a time, making sure that oil is at 375 degrees each time so coating is crisp. Cut each fried chicken piece into 5 tidbits and arrange on a serving platter; spoon the hot Lemon Sauce over the chicken and garnish with lemon slices. Serve at once. Serves four.

Batter: Stir together until smooth ½ cup flour, ¼ cup cornstarch, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup water and ½ teaspoon vegetable oil.

Lemon Sauce: Bring to a boil 3 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and ½ cup water; add 1 teaspoon cornstarch blended with 2 tablespoons water and stir constantly until thickened and clear; keep hot.

RED RELISH

16-ounce can diced beets, drained (2 cups)
2 cups finely chopped red cabbage, packed down
½ cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
1 cup cider vinegar
3 tablespoons bottled white horseradish

Stir together all the ingredients; cover and chill overnight. Drain before serving. Makes about 1 quart. A tangy condiment adapted from a turn-of-the-century cookbook.

SUNDAY SUPPER
Eggplant Casserole

Sweet Innocence

SWEET INNOCENCE

¼ cup white, long-grained rice (not precooked)
4 cups whole milk
½ cup sugar, or to taste
2 tablespoons seedless raisins, soaked soft in water
¼ teaspoon seeds of cardamom pods, crushed
2 teaspoons rose-water, optional

Wash the rice briefly. Soak it in ½ cup water for 30 minutes in a medium-size saucepan. Then boil in the same water until rice is tender and water completely evaporated. In a separate saucepan, heat the milk. Stir in the cooked rice. Simmer uncovered over very low heat for 1½ hours. Stir occasionally, loosening the pudding from sides and bottom of the pan. Mash the rice with the stirring spoon. When the pudding is quite creamy, stir in the sugar. Continue stirring until it is dissolved and pudding is again creamy. Off heat, add all remaining ingredients. Serve hot or at room temperature in small individual bowls. Serves 4. FOR THOSE TARDY GUESTS

Chicken breasts can wait for guests who are late

Do you have guests who are perpetually late when you invite them to dinner? This can be harassing for the conscientious cook. The solution is to collect a few recipes that hold up for such occasions. A recipe for chicken breasts is a deserving candidate for your recipe file. It waits well and is even better after reheating.

Unlike the classic curried chicken where curry powder is cooked first in oil or butter and chicken pieces are browned in the seasoned fat, this chicken is browned first in unseasoned fat, then it finishes cooking in a thick curry sauce. The curry sauce is made by cooking the curry powder in drippings after browning the chicken breasts. A considerable amount of chopped apples and onions then cook in the curry drippings for about 15 minutes, or until transparent. This requires very low heat to prevent scorching. When apples and onions are transparent, transfer them to a blender or sieve, add a cup of chicken broth and blend or puree until smooth.

Return the sauce to the skillet and bring it to the bubbling point. Add the browned chicken breasts and turn the heat to simmer. Keep the heat low and you'll be rewarded with tender, moist, velvety-textured meat. Sour cream is added just before serving to prevent curdling.

It isn't necessary to serve the usual curry condiments as this dish is not as hot as the authentic curry. Plain rice with chunks of pineapple tossed through makes a pleasant accompaniment. A green, crunchy textured vegetable such as broccoli, green beans or artichoke hearts adds a contrast. Instead of salad the following recipe for a fresh apple relish blends well. It can be made a day or two before the dinner and requires no last minute preparation. It won't wilt or turn brown. A firm, tart apple such as Cortland, Jonathan, Winesap, Stayman, Gravenstein or McIntosh should be used.

CHICKEN BREASTS IN CURRY SAUCE

3 pounds chicken breasts
½ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon ginger
1/3 cup salad oil
3 medium size apples
4 medium size onions
2 tablespoons curry powder
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup chicken broth
½ cup sour cream

Split chicken breasts. Mix flour and ginger in a paper bag. Add a few pieces of chicken to the bag and shake to coat each piece. Preheat salad oil in a skillet. Brown the coated chicken on all sides. Peel, core and chop apples. Remove browned chicken from skillet and cook curry powder, apples, onions and salt in the drippings until onions are translucent. This takes about 15 minutes. Transfer onion-apple mixture to blender. Add 1 cup chicken broth. Cover and blend until smooth. Return sauce to skillet and heat until it bubbles. Reduce heat. Add browned chicken breasts, basting well with the curry sauce. Reduce heat to low and cook 30 to 45 minutes until chicken is tender. Stir in sour cream but do not let it boil. Serve the chicken breasts over plain or pineapple rice accompanied by fresh apple relish. Serves 6-8.

APPLE RELISH

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
4 medium onions, peeled and sliced
1 cup celery, coarsely chopped
2 tablespoons candied ginger, finely chopped
3 medium apples, peeled and cut in fine strips
½ cup golden raisins
1/3 cup lemon juice
¼ cup honey

Melt the butter in a large frying pan. Add the onions and celery. Cover and cook five minutes until soft but not browned. Add the candied ginger, raisins and apples. Stir in the lemon juice and ¼ cup honey. Mix well. Cook uncovered until apples begin to soften, but are still firm — about 3-4 minutes.

This will keep a week, covered in the refrigerator, or it can be frozen. Serve as a relish with ham or pork or with curries.

There's plenty of grapefruit available this year

Marketing analysts with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service forecast the 1975-76 grapefruit crop at 69.8 millions boxes, 14 percent above last season and 9 percent above the most recent three-season average.

This will mean an even larger supply of frozen concentrated grapefruit juice and grapefruit sections.

From the major grapefruit producing areas in the United States come these figures: Florida's early crop is expected to total 50 million boxes — 12 percent above a year earlier. The Texas crop at 11 million boxes is a whopping 51 percent over last year's short crop, while California's desert grapefruit at 3.2 million boxes is 14 percent below last year. The Arizona forecast at 3.1 million boxes is 12 percent above last year's crop.

Frozen concentrated grapefruit juice stocks at the end of November were 4.2 million gallons — 13 percent less than stocks on hand a year earlier but 12 percent more than the most recent three year average. At the same time, Florida grapefruit sections were at 984.8 thousand cases, just slightly more than a year earlier but 28 percent over the most recent three-year average.

Just when appetites long for a lift with fresh fruit, the grapefruit is coming to market in its prime in January and February. You'll find grapefruit galore in white and pink and red. You'll see them labeled "seedless" or "seeded".

Since grapefruit is picked tree ripe, it is ready to eat upon purchase. Look for firm, well-shaped fruits. Thin-skinned fruits have more juice than coarse-skinned ones. If a grapefruit is pointed at stem end, it is likely to be thick-skinned. Rough, ridged, or winkled skin can be an indication of thick skin, pulpiness, and lack of juice.

Skin defects — scale, scars, thorn scratches, or discoloration — seldom affect eating quality. Avoid grapefruit with such signs of decay as soft and discolored areas on the peel at stem end, water soaked areas, loss of bright color, and soft and tender peel that breaks easily with finger pressure.

TOSTADO FIESTA BAKE

Presenting a new version of a tostado

A tostado baked in the oven? Yes, indeed! That's Tostada Fiesta Bake! It's the Jeannette Frank Kitchens' quick and easy answer to the traditional tostada — an open face sandwich. You'll find all those delicious tostada ingredients here, only in the presentation is a bit unique. Our version is baked all in one dish, but offers contrasts of soft and crips, hot and cold, sharp and mild!

And speaking of our interesting presentation, it's a marvelous way to use less expensive beef chuck or round steak. Slice the beef diagonally across the grain and put meat marinade to work in tenderizing and keeping it extra juicy. Layers of tortilla chips, cheese, beans and a meat 'n tomato mixture, zesty with green chiles make for absolutely fantastic eating!

Topped with your choice of salad fixins' — lettuce, tomatoes and onions, it's grand luncheon or supper fare. In addition, we'd suggest guacamole, too. Pass warm buttered tortillas and that's all you need. For dessert, a flan and Mexican chocolate would be great!

Meat marinade finds its way into all sorts of interesting dishes the world over. Don't forget about using it to prepare shish kabobs, sauerbraten, classic stew and so forth. Pick up a couple of packages in the meat department of your favorite supermarket soon.

TOSTADA FIESTA BAKE

1 pound beef round top or bottom round steak or boneless beef chuck
1 package meat marinade
1 (6 ounce can tomato paste
1-1/3 cups water
1 (4-ounce can diced green chiles
1 clove garlic, pressed
1½ cups crushed tortilla chips
1¼ cups shredded Monterey Jack cheese
1 (15 or 15-¼-ounce) can dark red kidney beans, undrained and mashed ½ pint dairy sour cream
6 whole pitted ripe olives
½ medium head lettuce, shredded
1 large tomato, chopped
6 green onions including tops, chopped

With sharp knife, cut meat diagonally across the grain into thin strips. In skillet thoroughly blend meat marinade, tomato paste, water, green chiles and garlic. Add meat to marinade; turn so all surfaces of meat are coated. Marinate only five minutes. Place skillet on stove and heat to boiling over medium high heat, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, mix together tortilla chips and ¾ cup cheese; reserve 3 tablespoons for top of casserole. Use remainder to line bottom of greased 3-quart baking dish. Spread mashed beans over chip mixture. Spoon meat mixture over beans. Sprinkle with reserved chip mixture. Bake uncovered at 400 degrees F. 20 minutes. Top with remaining ½ cup cheese and continue baking 5 mintues. Let stand 5 minutes. Garnish with dollups of sour cream topped with ripe olives. Pass lettuce, tomato and onions for go-along toppings. Makes 6 servings.

It'll be hard to hate school

HANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Principal James N. Parks is building an environmental wonderland at his school to insure that students never will say as he does, "I just hated school when I was growing up."

Part of the natural setting at Roosevelt Elementary School here is "Fort Roosevelt," a previously undeveloped acre enclosed by old utility poles making it look like a frontier fortress.

Inside the stockade walls is an environmental study area which, when completed, will duplicate many of California's varied environments.

A design drawn by two U.S. Forest Service architects provides high and low chaparral, foothill, Sierra Nevada and prairie grassland settings.

Parks says the idea began about six years ago when a pond was created to attract dragonflies.

"We didn't get any dragonflies, but we did get about six million mosquitoes," Parks said.

When mosquito abatement officers arrived, they offered to bring in bulldozers to dig a real pond. Later, ducks occupied the pond but were killed by neighborhood dogs.

Volunteers, working with poles donated from utility companies, set up the fort to protect the area, beginning a flood of volunteer labor and expertise.

Those volunteers helped build two ponds complete with dragonflies and ducks, as well as a stream, a bridge, an amphitheater and several pens for rabbits and chickens.

No school money has gone into the project. Parks says the school got a $21,000 grant from the state and laborers paid with federal funds worked on the fort last summer.

But there are other programs to keep the youngsters from being bored with the three Rs.

Half-completed is a rubbertire playground designed as a small-scale obstacle course. Seabees, the Navy's construction corps, are building the course.

Wildlife Management Institute raps conservation plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Wildlife Management Institute says the Agriculture Department's plan for paying farmers to carry out specified conservation projects on their land is "a giant step backward" and too often is oriented to boosting production rather than protecting natural resources.

The institute, a private nonprofit group, said the department's 1976 plan for carrying out the 40-year-old Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) "appears to have moved soil and water conservation efforts back into the 'give-away' era" before national attention was focused on environmental problems.

The wildlife institute said that soil and water conservation needs must be explained in detail on a regional basis, that corrective actions to solve those needs must be listed and explained to landowners. However, the institute added, "Nowhere is such analysis found. Instead, sweeping generalities are made."

The criticism was in a letter to Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the agency which handles the conservation program. Under ACP, farmers can get government payments covering 50 to 75 per cent of the cost of approved projects, which range from terracing, strip-cropping and pond-building to irrigation and forestry.

The 1976 authorization for approved ACP programs is $175 million to be divided among the states. For years, various administrations have tried unsuccessfully to reduce or eliminate ACP entirely, claiming that today's farmers should pay more or all of the cost of protecting land and water resources.

But each time Congress has insisted that ACP be operated fully. Several years ago when the administration proposed eliminating many of what it considered unnecessary or inappropriate projects, Congress specified that individual counties could continue those practices which were in effect in 1970.

Under this "grandfather" clause, counties are legally free to offer 1976 ACP help to farmers for five-year-old types of projects. Many of those, the institute said, are not keyed to conservation but to farm production and profit-making.

Thus, according to one department spokesman, the department has very little control over projects which individual counties say are qualified for government cost-sharing payments. The institute's argument, the spokesman said, should be with Congress.

The institute's letter nonetheless cited examples in which the bulk of a state's federal ACP money has gone to such things as irrigation, tree farming and other activities which it said are production and profit oriented.

In 1973, for example, 76 per cent of Arizona's federal ACP fund allocation was used for improving irrigated land, an acreage which represents only 1.6 per cent of the state's total land area. Other big irrigation states in the west showed similar trends, the institute said.

Another inequity, the institute said, has been the focus of ACP tree-planting and timber improvement funds in the southeast at the same time that there is a need for improved shelterbelt management and reforestation in arid regions such as the Great Plains.

"One fact is clear," the institute said. "USDA has permitted nearly half the tree planting funds to be expended in the southeast for improving the landowner's economic returns (not a public benefit) while the percentage devoted to wind erosion (a public benefit) has been minimum and decreasing. This is a misdirection of program funds."

In its list of criticisms, the institute said it had no objections to ACP payments for helping feedlot operators control animal waste runoff.

"However, it may be argued that the fact that a feedlot operator is attempting to make a living gives him no vested right to degrade this nation's waters," the institute said. "Such control is merely a cost of doing business."

But the institute added that since the public is currently "assisting other businesses and municipalities in controlling water pollution, the feedlot operator should be treated equally" and thus should not be denied ACP funds.

MOCHA AND YOGURT

Dessert party? Here's a treat

Looking for an easy and economical way to entertain? Try a dessert and coffee party! Your invitation will be a welcome treat for friends and neighbors and means minimal preparations for you.

A dessert party can be as formal or informal as you like, a spur of the moment invitation, or a large affair planned well in advance. You might choose to hold your party following some other function which many of your guests will attend — a performance by the local theater group or a PTA meeting. On the other hand, you can simply invite friends to your home for an enjoyable evening with some tempting refreshments.

Whether invitations are verbal or written, be sure to state "dessert and coffee" so guests know they should have dinner at home. Plan two or more desserts depending on the number of people expected.

Friends will have a hard time deciding between the two tempting desserts shown here. The Mocha Almond Angel Cake is light and airy, but the creamy frosting makes it sinfully rich and delicious! Our unique Lemon Yogurt Pie sits in a scrumptious graham cracker crust with a doubly flavorful filling made of lemon yogurt and gelatin. Both desserts are easy and economical to prepare and they are low in cholesterol and saturated fat which is so important to many diet-conscious people today.

MOCHA ALMOND ANGEL CAKE

6 tablespoons softened corn oil margarine
1 box (1-pound) unsifted confectioners' sugar
¼ cup cocoa
½ teaspoon instant coffee
3 tablespoons skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 10-inch angel food cake
Sliced almonds

In a small bowl, blend together margarine, confectioners' sugar and cocoa. Dissolve instant coffee in skim milk. Add to margarine mixture with vanilla extract. Beat until smooth and spreadable.

Use to frost 10-inch angel food cake. Garnish top of cake with sliced almonds. Makes one 10-inch tube cake.

LEMON YOGURT PIE

1 cup graham cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup melted corn oil margarine
1 package (3-ounce) lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water
½ cup cold water
1 cup lemon yogurt

Combine graham cracker crumbs, sugar and melted margarine. Reserve one tablespoon of mixture for topping. Press remaining crumb mixture firmly against sides and bottom of 8-inch pie plate. Refrigerate crust at least 15 minutes.

Meanwhile dissolve lemon gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Add yogurt and beat with rotary beater until thoroughly blended. If mixture is thin, chill until of mounding consistency. Spoon into prepared crust. Sprinkle top with reserved crumbs. Chill until firm. Garnish with lemon slice, if desired. Makes one 8-inch pie.

Pork must be cooked thoroughly for safe eating

Cooking pork? Cook it thoroughly. Pork is a nutritious and tasty meat that can add variety to meals, but you must handle it properly to make sure it is safe to eat.

Remember that any product containing pork should be cooked to at least 170 degrees. This includes combination beef and pork meatloaf, many sausages, partially cooked hams and bacon, as well as fresh cuts such as chops and roasts.

The best way to make certain it is done is to use a thermometer, especially when cooking thick pork cuts over one inch. Insert the thermometer into the center of the thickest part of the meat making sure it doesn't touch either bone or fat so that you get a true temperature reading for the meat itself. If a meat thermometer is not available, cut deeply next to the bone before serving, to make sure the color has changed from pink to white.

You need not overcook your meat to make it safe. Use low to moderate temperatures for thick cuts so they will be thoroughly cooked in the center but not dry on the surface. Thin cuts can be cooked at a higher temperature, even broiled.

Planning pork for a barbecue? Thin cuts of pork can be cooked effectively on a barbecue grill providing the coals are not too hot. Excessive heat will burn the surface before the inside is thoroughly cooked. If the pork cuts are medium thickness, approximately one inch, it might be necessary to move the coals to the side for indirect heat. Thicker cuts of pork can be used if it is possible to cover the barbecue for a "roasting" effect. This will give a delicious barbecue flavor and the heat will have a chance to penetrate thoroughly. With a thermometer, test the center of the meat for doneness (at least 170 degrees) before serving.

Thorough cooking of pork is necessary to eliminate the possibility of contracting trichinosis which is caused by tiny parasites — called trichinae — in raw pork. Trichinosis can result from improperly cured homemade sausage, beef which has been in contact with pork and eaten rare, and uncooked cuts of fresh pork.

Beef does not contain trichinae but if pork and beef are packaged together — as in "meatloaf combination" — the beef must be cooked thoroughly just like the pork. Beef which has been in contact with pork should never be used for steak tartare.

Afterhandling raw pork wash your hands, utensils, and cutting board thoroughly before using them again for other foods or for cutting and serving the cooked pork. It is always important to prevent cross-contamination of any raw and cooked meats.

In packing plants operating under federal meat inspection, pork products that may be eaten without further cooking are processed to kill trichinae — by cooking, special freezing and holding, or curing. All hot dogs and some hams on the market are fully cooked. But before eating any pork product, make certain it is labeled "fully cooked," otherwise, cook it.

Walnut bars are good too

By Cecily Brownstone
Asso. Press Food Editor

Last year we used a recipe for Walnut Candybar Cookies that readers were enthusiastic about. This year we felt we had to come up with another bar cookie that was equally delicious. We found just the recipe and here it is.

VIENNESE WALNUT BARS

Cream Cheese Pastry, see below
1½ cups walnuts
1 cup (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup flour, fork-stir well to aerate before measuring
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups firmly packed light brown sugar
2 large eggs
1 teaspoon instant coffee dissolved in 1 teaspoon water

Prepare Cream Cheese Pastry; pat evenly over bottom of a buttered 13 by 9 by 2 inch baking pan. Coarsely chop 1 cup of the walnuts and sprinkle over pastry; sprinkle chocolate over walnuts. Finely chop remaining ½ cup walnuts and set aside for top of bars.

On wax paper, stir together the flour, baking powder and salt.

Beat together until blended the butter, sugar, eggs and dissolved coffee. Add the flour mixture and beat gently to blend. Spoon over chocolate and walnuts in pan and spread gently to cover. Sprinkle with reserved walnuts.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until firm on top and very lightly browned at edges — about 30 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool. Cut into 2 by 1½ inch bars. Makes 32. For small bars, cut each bar in half crosswise to make 64.

CREAM CHEESE PASTRY

Beat together ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 three-ounce package cream cheese and ¼ cup white sugar. Gradually stir in 1¼ cups flour (well-stirred with a fork to aerate before measuring) until blended.

COMPANY LUNCH

Seafood Stew Rolls
Salad Bowl
Coconut Custard

COCONUT CUSTARD

4 eggs
1/3 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups milk
¾ cup flaked coconut, not packed down

Beat eggs slightly; stir in sugar, salt and vanilla. Scald milk; gradually add to egg mixture, stirring as you do so. Divide the coconut among six 6-ounce glass custard cups; pour custard mixture into cups. Set cups in a deep 13 by 9 inch pan; pour enough very hot tap water into the pan to have it come up about ½-inch below custard mixture. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a knife inserted halfway between edge and center comes out clean — 40 minutes. Remove from hot water. Chill. At serving time, loosen edges and turn out. Delicious served with sweetened raspberries or strawberries or brandied cherries, apricots or peaches. Makes 6 servings.

Chicken: aristocrat of America's food heritage

As America observes its Bicentennial, chicken joins the celebration as one food which has been a part of the nation's culinary heritage for more than 200 years.

The first explorers brought chickens with them on ships from Europe. Some 500 domestically bred chickens were listed on an early Jamestown inventory — offspring of those which survived the trip from England with the colonists.

From the Indians, colonial housewives learned to use corn in their cooking and soon a staple in their diets (especially in New England) was succotash — a thick, corn-bean soup which was probably served by Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving dinner in 1621. The oldest succotash recipe on record requires the boiling of two fowls in a large kettle of water.

Daniel Webster wrote that his mother was an artist at simmering together chicken and salt pork "in her own rare manner" and she always served it when he visited her in New Hampshire.

Chicken was on the menu when George Washington entertained General Lafayette at Mount Vernon. And Annette, the Monticello governess for Thomas Jefferson's children, left written instructions for making "Chicken Hash" when he moved into the White House, noting, "This dish is for breakfast."

Because of lack of refrigeration, chickens were herded live aboard luxury steamboats on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. These were often prepared by French chefs and served in the most elegant manner beneath chandeliers swaying to the boat's motion.

Mark Twain, traveling in Europe in 1878, became nostalgic for what he called a "nourishing meal" and wrote out a lengthy menu of what he would like to have awaiting him when he arrived home. This included "broiled chicken, American style."

Fried chicken was typical not only in the South but in the country's midsection as settlers moved West, taking with them recipes of mothers and grandmothers.

Backyard barbecuing, considered by many a 20th century innovation, actually dates back to pioneer days, when it was more pleasant to cook outside than indoors in good weather. Then as now, chicken was a favorite for the grill.

Immigrants brought their own ways of preparing chicken from the "Old World" and becuase of them American dinner tables are enriched with such favorites as "arroz con pollo" from Spain; Hungarian "chicken paprika;" "chicken cacciatore" from Italy; and Chinese "chicken chow mein," among countless others.

George Bagby in his book, "The Old Virginia Gentlemen," included in a list of requirements "to make a true Virginian," that "he must have fried chicken, stewed chicken, broiled chicken and chicken pie."

And a contemporary chef, writing in a recent publication, said, "Chicken is often a chef's first choice when planning a meal . . . not only for nutritional value and economy but for versatility. Chicken is for a cook what canvas is for a painter," he declared.

So as the United States begins its third century, what has come to be known as "American cuisine" is really an evolution of all its past. And chicken has been an important part of this culinary history from the very beginning.

* * *

America has been called a "melting pot" of many nationalities and certainly American food has evolved from the favorite dishes of many lands. Here's a favorite of Oriental cooks which cold add an international note to your next party.

JAPANESE CHICKEN 'N LIVERS

- ½ cup soy sauce
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ cup water
- ½ pound chicken livers, cut in half
- 1 large whole chicken breast, split, skinned, boned and cut in 1-inch cubes
- 4 scallions cut in 1-inch lengths
- 1 cup rice, cooked
- 2 tablespoons white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons dry sherry

Combine soy sauce, sherry, sugar, ginger and water. Boil 1 minute; cool. Marinate chicken livers, chicken cubes and scallion pieces in mixture 15-30 minutes, turning once. On short wooden skewers, thread a chicken cube, a chicken liver piece, a scallion piece, another liver piece and another chicken cube. Grill over hibachi 4-5 minutes per side, brushing occasionally with marinade. OR, oven broil 3 to 6 inches for 7 to 10 minutes. Serve with rice prepared as follows: Cook rice according to package directions. Meanwhile, in small suacepan, combine vinegar, sugar and sherry. Bring to boil and stir into cooked rice. Serves 4 or 5.

DINNER FOR FOUR
Caribbean Casserole Rice
Green Salad FrenchBread
Baked Pears Coffee

CARIBBEAN CASSEROLE

- 1½ cups dry red kidney beans, rinsed
- 4½ cups boiling water
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- ¼ pound chorizo, sliced into ½-inch thick rounds
- 1 pound fresh young pork spareribs, cut in 1-rib portions with outer fat removed
- 1 cup medium-dry domestic Madeira wine

water; boil uncovered for 2 minutes. Let stand off heat, covered, for 1 hour. Add the oil and bring to a boil; simmer until just tender — 1½ to 2 hours. Turn half the beans and their liquid into a 3 to 4-quart casserole; add half the chorizo and then half the spareribs; repeat the layers. Add the Madeira. Cover tightly and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 1 hour. Uncover and continue baking until ribs are brown and tender — about 1 hour longer. Skim off excess fat. Makes 4 robust and delicious servings.

Recipes straight from the dragon's mouth

SAN FRANCISCO — There's plenty of time to prepare a New Year feast fit for a dragon. The Chinese holiday season stretches through mid-February.

When the dragon leaps over the humble hare on Jan. 31 he'll breathe beneficience, not fire, into the new lunar year 4674. For the celestial dragon is no mean snake in the grass but the bearer of peace and prosperity, the imparter of life itself.

To celebrate the reptile's reign, San Francisco's Chinese community has imported a dazzling, new Golden Dragon from Hong Kong. Gum Lung, as he's called, will preside over the city's Feb. 14 parade and the week-long celebration which precedes it.

Tommy Toy, manager of Chinatown's Imperial Palace, summoned his master chef, Luke Chan, to supply the wok wizardry. Schooled in Hong Kong, Chan studied ornamentation and display as well as flavor and nutrition. He recently appeared in full color in National Geographic with his chef d'oeuvre, soup-filled, dragon-etched winter melon. It takes him eight hours to carve this edible artwork with a skewer! Here are some easier creations from Chan's festival repertoire.

CHINESE FEAST — Tommy Toy, manager of San Francisco's award-winning Imperial Palace, spreads a feast fit for an emperor.

WALNUT SHRIMP

1 lb. raw shrimp, cleaned and cut into thirds
1½ tsp. light soy sauce
2 tsp. dry sherry
¼ tsp. white pepper
1 tsp. cornstarch
4½ tbs. vegetable oil
½ cup diced bamboo shoots
½ cup walnuts
1 slice ginger, ¼ inch wide
2 green onions with stems, diagnally sliced into 1-inch strips
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. M.S.G. (monsodium glutamate)
½ tsp. sesame oil

Put the cut-up shrimp in a bowl and sprinkle with soy sauce, wine, pepper, cornstarch and 1 tbs. oil. In a preheated wok heat 1½ tbs. oil. Quick-fry the bamboo shoots and walnuts for 1 minute and set aside in a bowl.

Clean and dry the wok, preheat and add 2 tbs. oil. When hot, swirl the ginger slice around the sides and bottom and then discard. Add onions and shrimp and quick-fry for 2 minutes. Add bamboo shoots and walnuts and stir well. Then add salt, M.S.G. and sesame oil and stir evenly. Serves four.

CHICKEN WITH OYSTER SAUCE

3 tbs. vegetable oil
1 clove crushed garlic
1 large green pepper cut into 1-inch squares
1 white onion sliced into 1-inch pieces
3 cups 1-inch chunks of chicken
1 tsp. light soy sauce
1 tbs. dark soy sauce
½ tsp. sugar
1 tbs. oyster sauce

Preheat wok or skillet over high flame. Add oil. Swirl garlic around sides and bottom and discard. Add pepper and onion and stir 1 minute. Add chicken and stir another minute. Add soy sauces, sugar and oyster sauce and stir well. Serves four.

BEEF KWANGTON

1½ tbs. peanut oil
1½ -inch piece ginger root
1 lb. tenderloin beef cut across the grain into 2" by ½" by ¼" strips
½ cup sliced bamboo shoots
½ cup sliced button mushrooms
1 cup snow peas
½ cup chicken broth
2 tbs. oyster sauce
½ tsp. dark soy sauce
¼ tsp. sesame oil
¼ tsp. sugar
½ tsp. cornstarch blended with ½ tsp. water

Swirl the peanut oil in a preheated frying pan. Stir in ginger for flavor and then discard. Quick-fry tenderloin 2 minutes. Then add bamboo shoots, mushrooms, pea pods and chicken broth. Cover for 1 minute. Uncover and stir in oyster sauce, soy sauce, sesame oil and sugar, thickening with cornstarch blend. Serve immediately. Serves four.

Milk important in low cal meals

Weight watchers will find plenty of good ideas for low cal meals in the dairy case. In fact, many dairy products make excellent foods on which to base a sensible diet plan. Any controlled diet calls for a good balance of the required nutrients. That's why basic foods like milk, cottage cheese and yogurt are top choices. They are extremely nourishing in relation to their caloric content. Without milk or other dairy products, most of us would have difficulty fulfilling our daily requirements of calcium. These foods are also excellent sources of protein, riboflavin, phosphorus, vitamin A and other improtant nutrients.

Of all foods preferred by the calorie conscious, cottage cheese is probably the most popular. But it needn't be limited to the salad plate. Here's a new and delicious idea — farmer style cheese soup. It tastes hearty and filling yet contains only 225 calories per serving. The recipe, based on creamed style cottage cheese and milk is flavored with celery, green onion and interesting seasonings. Serve this as a main course soup with a selection of minimal calorie vegetables. Raw carrots, celery, radishes and cucumber are crisp, colorful and practically calorie free!

Nutrition packed yogurt is another versatile food for dieters. One cup of plain, low fat yogurt contains only 125 calories and has the same calcium content as an 8-ounce glass of milk. Use yogurt as a salad dressing, vegetable topper and an ingredient for refreshing blender drinks.

For all diet meals, good old milk is the perfect beverage. Choose from whole (150 calories per cup), lowfat (135 calories per cup) or nonfat (80 calories per cup).

FARMER STYLE CHEESE SOUP
(225 calories per serving)

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup chopped green onion
2 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
3 chicken bouillon cubes, crumbled
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ teaspoon garlic salt
1 cup small curd cottage cheese

Melt butter in skillet. Saute celery and onion over medium heat about 5 minutes until vegetables are tender crisp. Stir in flour. Add milk and chicken bouillon cubes. Cook, stirring, until mixture comes to boil. Stir in paprika, pepper, nutmeg, garlic salt and cheese. Heat just to boiling point before serving. Soup may be chilled and reheated if desired. Makes 1 quart (4 servings).

YOGURT SETS WELL IN LOW CAL SALAD

Whenever you feel the need to cut back on calories it's time to take a fresh look at pure, wholesome dairy foods. Low fat plain yogurt made a name for itself as being a favorite standby with dieters. An 8-ounce carton has only 125 calories but lots more in the way of valuable minerals and vitamins. Team it with other low calorie foods like cucumber and you can have an interesting molded salad that will please even those not counting calories. Taking the boredom out of dieting can be done easily with dairy foods.

LOW CALORIE CUCUMBER SALAD
(45 calories per serving)

½ large cucumber
¾ teaspoon salt, divided
1½ teaspoons plain gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1 teaspoon sugar
1½ teaspoons white wine vinegar
1 slice onion
¼ cup parsley leaves
⅛ teaspoon liquid red pepper seasoning
¼ teaspoon tarragon
1 (8-ounce) carton plain yogurt

Halve unpared cucumber and scoop out seeds. Dice to get 1 cup. Sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Let stand 20 minutes. Drain. Mix gelatin and water. Stir over low heat until dissolved. Combine with drained cucumber, sugar, vinegar, onion, parsley, liquid red pepper seasoning, tarragon, yogurt and ½ teaspoon salt in electric blender. Whir briefly until smooth. Pour into 4 (½-cup) molds. Chill until set. Unmold onto lettuce and garnish with cucumber slices if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Apricots

The dried apricots that come in 11-ounce packages are usually smaller and less expensive than those that come in 8-ounce packages. The smaller apricots are practical and economical to use in any recipe that calls for chopping them (to add to cookies or cake) or for cooking them and pureeing.

Toast nuts

Toasting almonds, filberts and walnuts really brings out their flavor. Spread them in a single layer in a very shallow pan and use a moderate or a hot oven — but watch carefully so they do not scorch.

Celebrate Chinese New Year with pork dish

By custom, the New Year in the Orient is a very festive season. Colorful celebrations that traditionally mark the occasion always are accompanied by firecrackers and special foods.

The Chinese, for instance, greet the New Year by serving pork, often in a pungent sweet-and-sour sauce.

Quick and easy to prepare, "Pineapple-Pork" has a flavor reminiscent of your favorite outdor barbecue, with its catsup and brown sugar sauce. The spicy sauce goes in with the cubed meat after the prk is browned thoroughly in hot oil. Sliced celery, onion and green pepper add crunch and a contrasting sharpness of flavor.

The meal is rounded out with traditional bowls of boiled rice or, for a change of pace, long, thin noodles.

PINEAPPLE-PORK

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks
- ¼ cup catsup
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- 2 level tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ pounds boneless pork shoulder, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 cup green pepper, cut in 2-inch thin strips
- 1½ cups sliced onion (1 medium)
- Hot cooked noodles or rice

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Combine pineapple syrup, catsup, brown sugar, mustard, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and ginger and set aside. Measure flour, paprika, salt and pepper into a bag. Add pork and shake to coat thoroughly. Brown meat in heated oil in 10-inch skillet. Drain off any excess fat. Add sauce mixture, cover and simmer 25 minutes until pork is tender. Add vegetables and pineapple chunks. Simmer uncovered 5 more minutes, just until vegetables are tender crisp. Serve with hot cooked noodles or rice.

This soup good for lazy days

January is a good month to be lazy after the holidays. Meal planning can be kept at a minimum. A dinner that can be cooked ahead and simply reheated is ideal.

This soup, laden with carrots, potatoes, celery, onions, and bacon, may be your answer. It's brewed with a bit of beer which enhances its flavor. Since it's a meal in itself, the soup can be accompanied by your favorite bread, mugs of cold beer, with cheese and fruit for dessert.

POTATO SOUP

- 6 cups sliced potatoes (approximately 5 large)
- 2 cups sliced carrots
- 6 slices bacon
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup beer
- 2 cups light cream
- Finely shredded Cheddar cheese
- Parsley sprigs

Combine potatoes, carrots, onion, celery, bacon, salt, papper, milk and beer. Simmer approximately 30 minutes (Do not boil). When ready to serve garnish with shredded Cheddar cheese and parsley. Makes 2 quarts.

This pudding easy to cook for the weary

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

There'll be no leftovers when Mom serves a fresh fruit dessert with a pudding texture. This treat is easy to prepare, making it a boon to the weary cook. It also shows the versatility of oranges which are combined with apples and baked with a custardy topping. Serve hot or cold.

CITRUS TASTY PUDDING

- 3 oranges, peeled, sliced and quartered
- 2 apples, sliced (Roman Beauty preferred)
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¾ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 cup flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon orange rind
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup orange juice

Place orange and apply slices in layers in 8x8x2-inch baking pan or a 1-quart casserole. Combine sugar, nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle half of this mixture over the fruit. Blend flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, orange rind and egg until crumbly. Sprinkle over sliced fruit. Sprinkle remaining cinnamon mixture over all. Dot with butter. Pour orange juice over all. Bake in 350 degree oven 45 minutes. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

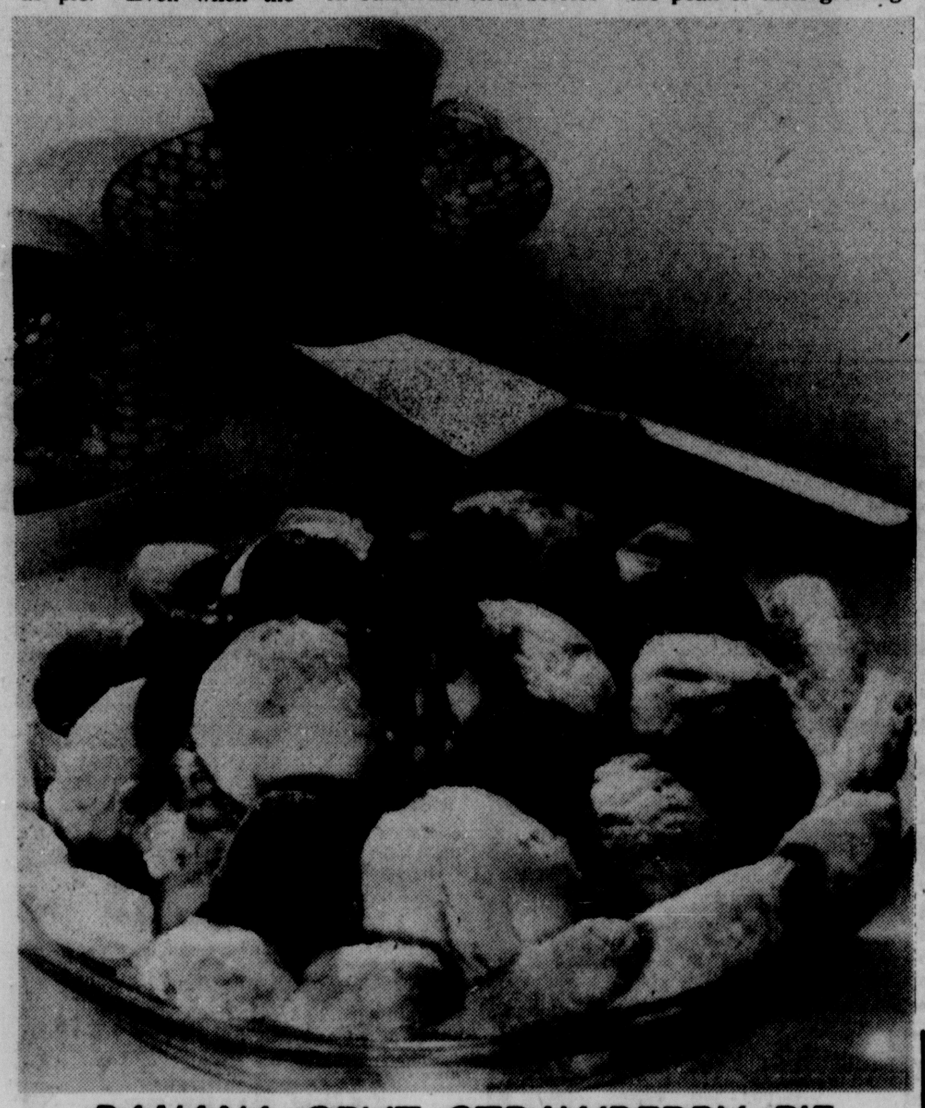
Freezer desserts can be grand finale

Dessert from the freezer can be a dazzling finale to any meal. This strawberries and ice cream delight is no exception and it's guaranteed to be "easy as pie." Even when the fresh strawberry season has long since passed, you can serve this, and many other strawberry dairy desserts, any time the mood strikes because frozen California strawberries are available in your grocer's freezer section year round.

California strawberries for freezing are harvested, packed and frozen at the peak of their growing season when they are the ripest and most flavorful. And they are easy to use in many different ways because they have been conveniently packaged for you whole and unsweetened in one pound bags or sliced and sweetened in 10 ounce packages. Either way, frozen strawberries add a real touch of elegance, especially at a time of year when finding strawberries on the menu is a delightful surprise for your family and guests. Because they are so versatile, frozen California strawberries let your own culinary imagination be the only limit to creating a whole parade of true strawberry spectaculars.



BANANA SPLIT STRAWBERRY PIE

Strawberries and ice cream have long been classic dessert companions because the rich, creamy smooth ice cream blends so well with sweet, juicy strawberries to create luscious flavor harmony. For a novel twist that's sure to please combine strawberries and ice cream in this recipe for Banana Split Strawberry Pie. Dainty, flaky lady fingers from the "easy as pie" crust. It's smothered with scoops of your favorite ice cream and bananas, and is crowned with a slightly tart strawberry sauce. For the finishing touch, the pie is garnished with billowing clouds of whipped cream. Sheer heaven to eat, this truly elegant banana split is a sure way to win smiles of delight at the next birthday party

BANANA SPLIT STRAWBERRY PIE

Strawberry Sauce (recipe follows)
1 quart ice cream, in assorted flavors
2 bananas, split lengthwise whipped cream
Garnish: frozen whole strawberries (optional)

Arrange 16 lady finger halves diagonally around side of 9-inch pie plate. Crumble remaining lady fingers and press in an even layer in bottom of pan. Gently spread ¼ cup Strawberry Sauce over crumbs. Freeze. Just before serving time, arrange scoops of ice cream over bananas, in frozen pie shell. Drizzle remaining sauce on ice cream. Garnish with whipped cream and whole strawberries, if desired. Cut into wedges; serve immediately.

Strawberry Sauce: Slightly thaw 1 package (10 ounces) frozen sliced strawberries in syrup; pour into saucepan. Mix together 2 tablespoons of sugar and ½ tablespoon cornstarch. Stir into strawberries. Bring to boil. Cook and stir 2 minutes, or until sauce is slightly thick. Remove from heat. Add 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Chill.

Barbecued Salmon are tender pieces of choice salmon which have been lightly smoked and seasoned. They can be heated in the oven or in their own "boil in the bag" pouch. They are ready to serve in 10-15 minutes.

To prepare planked salmon, cook three pounds of fresh potatoes, mash, adding one whole egg, butter and milk. While potatoes are cooking, remove 3-4 pieces of barbecued salmon from their pouches and place on aluminum foil. Top each piece with a tablespoon of butter and a teaspoon of chopped scallions or shallots. Seal foil and bake in a preheated 450 degree oven 15 minutes. Remove salmon and place in the center of small wooden board. Pipe potatoes around slamon to edge of board. Place board on cookie sheet and brown under broiler. Serve with Nippy Chive Sauce and tossed salad.

1 cup sour cream
3 tablespoons chopped chives
4 tablespoons horseradish
½ teaspoon salt

Clean-up program requested for bad housing areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing what it calls "pockets of bad housing" in Florida, the American Friends Service Committee says that similar conditions exist elsewhere and that a crash program should be initiated nationally to clean up the worst areas of rural America within a decade.

The committee, a Quaker organization, said that "even the fabulous Florida Keys, playground for the rich, have people struggling for survival" in run-down homes.

Published jointly this week by the committee and the Rural Housing Alliance, a non-profit organization, the 96-page report includes photographs taken last year of "bad housing" examples in each of Florida's 67 counties.

James E. Upchurch Jr., director of the commission's Florida Rural Housing Program, said that "all of the anguish caused by bad housing in Florida could be eliminated for the price of one space shot or one late-model bomber."

Clay Cochran, executive director of the alliance, said the report contains "the most devastating collection of photos of bad rural housing ever assembled" including previous pictures of dilapidated homes taken by the alliance in 1969 and by the government's Farm Security Administration in the dust bowl and Depression era of the 1930s.

"This is not to say that Florida is unique," Cochran said. "This report could be duplicated in every state in the union."

The report urged that a comprehensive national housing program be established "which does not leave the national purpose at the mercy of local will or capacity, or private initiative or interests."

Further, the report said, until such a national policy is in operation the federal government should create an Emergency Rural Housing Administration "with the purpose of providing minimum adequate housing, clean water and sanitary facilities to the worst-housed of the nation's rural areas, and to do so within a five to 10-year period."

The report did not estimate the cost of such a crash program, and a spokesman said only that "it would be big."

Nationally, he said, rural areas account for about 60 per cent of nearly 4.7 million substandard housing units.

Strengthening the Farmers Home Administration in the Agriculture Department, both with more funds and personnel, and a strict watch on that agency so that it carries out farm labor housing programs authorized by law.

"Congress must insist that those programs administered by the FmHA to house low-income persons, such as mutual self-help, farm labor housing, rent supplements, repair grants and general technical assistance, not only be implemented fully but become the cutting edge of the FmHA housing program," the report said.

Rural people and their elected officials need to guard closely against proposals and plans to transfer the FmHA from the Agriculture Department to the Department of Housing and Urban Development "where it would be lost to the urban planners, bankers and real estate agents," the report said.

FIREPLACE PICNIC

Cracked Wheat Bread
Apples Cookies

CRACKED WHEAT BREAD

- 1 package dry yeast
- 1½ cups lukewarm water
- 2 to 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup stone-ground wholewheat flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ cup finely cracked wheat
- 1 egg white, lightly beaten

Dissolve yeast in the water, stir together 2 cups all-purpose flour, the wholewheat flour, salt, sugar and cracked wheat; make a well in the center. Pour yeast mixture into the well and mix with the hand to form a soft dough — it may be sticky. Turn out on a well-floured surface and, adding more all-purpose flour if dough sticks, knead until smooth and elastic — about 5 minutes. Place in a greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover with a damp cloth. Let rise in a warm, draft-free place until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough. Divide into 6 portions. Form each into a loaf and place in six small greased 4½ by 2½ by 1½ inch loaf pans. Brush with egg white and bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned and loaves sound hollow when tapped on bottom — 30 minutes. For a very crisp crust, brush bread again with egg white halfway through baking. Cool on a wire rack. Spicy mold with borscht

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Everyone looks for shortcuts for cooking because of busy schedules. A spiced Harvard beet molded ring turns out in non-hectic time through the use of prepared borscht (beet soup) as the base. Borscht is a national soup in Russia and Poland, for example, and considered a refreshing, filling treat by Middle Europeans. The gelatin mold is studded with seasoned cream cheese balls subtly flavored with mixed pickling spice. An added bonus of this recipe is the fresh, pleasing aroma of the pickling spice emitted as the liquid is heated.

SPICED HARVARD BEET RING

- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seed*
- 1 jar (1 quart) borscht
- 1 tablespoon mixed pickling spice
- Boiling water
- 2 packages (3 ounces each) lemon flavored gelatin dessert
- Cold water

Divide cream cheese into 12 portions. Shape into balls, about 1-inch in diameter. Roll in sesame seed; set aside. Strain borscht, reserving slivered beets. Measure 2 cups of the liquid and pour into a saucepan. Add pickling spice. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Strain and discard pickling spice.

Measure liquid from saucepan. Add boiling water to make 2 cups. Pour over gelatin; stir to dissolve. Add cold water to remaining borscht liquid to measure 2 cups. Stir into gelatin. Chill until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Pour a layer of gelatin in bottom; chill until set. Stir reserved beets into remaining gelatin mixture.

Carefully pour into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold onto serving plate. Garnish with salad greens. Serve with sour cream if desired. Makes 8 portions.

*NOTE: To toast sesame seed sprinkle seed evenly in bottom of pie pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden, about 5 to 7 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Casserole cooking: make two, freeze one

Today's smart shopper knows how important a freezer can be in getting the most for your food dollar. It allows you to buy meat and other items on special, helps you preserve produce from your own garden and aids in avoiding leftovers by packaging foods to fit your family's needs.

The freezer can also be a big timesaver. Instead of cooking one meal at a time, cook two and put one in your freezer. Most casseroles freeze very well if they are wrapped properly. Also, preparing less expensive casseroles (as opposed to quick, but more expensive entrees) at your leisure lets you save money in the long run.

When freezing casseroles, line the pan with aluminum foil, fill with food and wrap well. Freeze until solid, then remove from the pan. Freeze prepared food as soon as possible and store at a temperature of zero or lower. Be sure to label and date all packages in your freezer to facilitate later use. Casseroles can be stored in the freezer for up to three months.

Our Tuna Lasagne is a unique variation of an old favorite that's perfect for freezing. Packed with nutritious foods (tuna, cheese, milk, spinach) this wholesome and delicious dish will soon be a household favorite.

TUNA LASAGNE

- 6 tablespoons corn oil margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 8 ounces shredded partially skimmed Mozzarella cheese
- 1 container (12-ounce) pot cheese
- 2 packages (9-ounces each) frozen chopped spinach, cooked and drained
- 2 cans (7-ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked
- ¼ cup unsifted flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon white pepper
- 3 cups skim milk
- 2 jars (15-½ ounces each) Marinara Sauce
- 1 pound lasagne noodles, cooked and drained

Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in saucepan. Add onion and saute until lightly browned. Measure out 1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese and set aside. Combine remaining Mozzarella with pot cheese, spinach, tuna, and sauteed onion.

Melt remaining 4 tablespoons margarine in same saucepan. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in skim milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat.

Spread a small amount of Marinara Sauce in the bottom of each of two 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pans. Place a layer of lasagne noodles over sauce. Top with 1/6 of the tuna mixture, 1/6 of the white sauce and about ⅙ of the remaining Marinara sauce. Beginning with lasagne noodles repeat layers two more times. Top with remaining lasagne noodles and Marinara Sauce. Sprinkle reserved Mozzarella cheese over casseroles. Bake at 375 degrees F. 25 to 30 minutes, until hot and bubbling. Makes 2 casseroles, 6 servings each.

Freezing Instructions: To freeze one casserole, line pan with foil leaving ends extended over sides. Fill pan and wrap well. Freeze until solid. Remove lasagne from pan. Return to freezer for up to 3 months.

To serve, peel off foil and place lasagne in baking pan. Thaw in refrigerator overnight. Bake covered at 375 degrees F. 30 mintues; remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer, or until hot and bubbling.

Birdseed bandit denies guilt

CULVER CITY (AP) — The man who allegedly held a bank official captive and demanded a load of birdseed be delivered to the bank has pleaded innocent to three misdemeanor charges.

Miklos Petrovics, 39, was arraigned in Municipal Court Thursday on single counts of brandishing a weapon, false imprisonment, and trespassing.

Petrovics was arrested Tuesday at the bank after he allegedly held an assistant manager at gunpoint for 90 minutes. The gun was not loaded, police said.

Judge Frank W. Troost set a pretrial hearing date of Jan. 16 for Petrovics, who was held in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Hot, bubbly casseroles feature cheese and crab

A classy casserole is the obvious answer for carefree hostessing and party planning. Natural cheese is probably the most useful and best liked ingredient to be found in casserole cookery. It melts smoothly with mellow flavor and gives off a tantalizing aroma sure to arouse any appetite. It also gives moistness and softness to any dish and blends into beautiful, creamy sauces. Monterey jack and romano — one of the popular Italian type cheeses — go into these savory crab and artichoke casseroles. Other popular Italian type cheeses that are especially appropriate with all kinds of pastas and dress up almost any baked main dish include parmesan, provolone and mozzarella.

The interesting melange of flavors and textures make this a substantial cheese and crab entree. The sherried cheese sauce holds the macaroni shells, artichoke hearts and crab together in perfect harmony. Sprinkle additional grated monterey jack cheese on top.

Serve this chic cheese entree for a special dinner. The elegant idea could also be featured on a festive brunch or luncheon menu, too. A mixed green salad, fresh butter and little finger rolls are all that's needed to complete the menu. Butter balls or butter curls look especially partyish should the occasion demand this kind of touch. They can be prepared ahead, dropped into ice water and held in the refrigerator until serving

All varieties of California cheeses are made from cow's milk and contain many of milk's nutrients in concentrated form. Like milk, cheese is an excellent and economical source of top quality protein.

BAKED CHEESE AND CRAB

- ¾ cup shell macaroni
- Boiling salted water
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Pinch pepper
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 (7½-ounce) can crab
- 1 (8½-ounce) can artichoke hearts
- ¼ cup sherry
- 1/3 cup grated romano cheese
- 1 cup grated monterey jack cheese

Cook macaroni in boiling water as package directs. Drain. Saute onion in butter 2 minutes. Blend in flour, paprika, salt and pepper. Stir in milk. Cook, stirring until mixture thickens and comes to boil. Mix in crab, artichokes, macaroni, wine, romano cheese and ½ cup jack cheese. Turn into 4 individual casseroles. Sprinkle with remaining jack cheese. Bake in 400 degree oven 15 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Makes 4 servings.

LIMA BEAN CASSEROLE

With a little bit of money, you can lay in a supply of a variety of dried beans and have some fun making good home-style regional American dishes.

Man has been cultivating beans in every corner of the world for thousands of years, and each society included beans in some form in its cooking. For centuries, however, beans stayed pretty much where they were until explorers set out from the Old World, carrying beans with them as a needed source of protein food.

As they traveled, they planted the beans they brought with them in new lands and carried the native varieties onto other shores. Red and White Kidney beans were found in Mexico, Central and South America. Lima beans (from what is no doubt today Peru) journeyed from South America to Africa and Southeast Asia. From Africa, the Broad bean was taken to England and the European continent.

Until recently — having become more nutrition-conscious, not to say economy-minded — Americans tended to look down their noses at the bean. Mostly they've regarded the legume as a cheap food mainly found in chili or baked bean dishes. But Limas, with their sophisticated travel log, turn up in a thrifty Vermont Lima Bean Casserole that smacks of an old-time dish simmering several hours on the back of a mountain kitchen stove. It makes a great alternative to the traditional New England Baked Beans.

Actually, there are several varieties of bean under the umbrella "Lima." Fordhook is generally preferred for freezing; in dry form, the standard or large dry lima and the baby lima are most popular. Many people believe the baby lima is the small size standard lima, but they are really different beans. The standard lima has the nutlike flavor which distinguishes it from the other varieties.

History tells us that early settlers learned the gentle art of baking beans from the local Indians. Earthen pots were used, and before the advent of molasses it is thought that maple syrup provided the sweetener. This Vermont Lima Bean Casserole provides a nice link to the past. It uses the standard dried limas, spicily seasoned with tabasco pepper sauce, catchup, and the sweet touch of maple syrup. Salt pork adds the necessary hearty meat flavor to the dish. Limas, like most other beans, are somewhat bland in flavor. They require careful seasoning, such as tabasco pepper sauce, and a touch of herbs, onion or garlic to spark them.

Southwesterners enjoy their red beans, tacos, and tortillas, so New Englanders can swap Vermont Lima Bean Casserole for a rich Enchilada Casserole prepared with red kidney beans. Make it easy on yourself and use the canned form of the world's second most important bean. (Soybeans rank number one.)

VERMONT LIMA BEAN CASSEROLE

1 package (1 pound) dried lima beans, preferably dried baby lima beans
5 cups water
1 large onion, studded with 8 whole cloves
½ cup maple syrup
½ cup catchup
2 teaspoons salt
1 bay leaf
½ pound salt pork, thinly sliced
1 teaspoon tabasco pepper sauce

Rinse lima beans, turn into large saucepan, add water, cover and soak for several hours or overnight. Add onion, bring to a boil and boil 5 minutes uncovered. Turn into 3-quart casserole without draining. Add remaining ingredients and cover. Bake in 325 degree oven for 3 hours, until beans are tender.

YIELD: 8 servings.

• • •

ENCHILADA CASSEROLE

½ pound ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 can (8 ounces) tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon tabasco pepper sauce
1 can (17 ounces) red kidney beans, drained and mashed
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
18 tortillas (1 can)
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Break up ground beef in large skillet. Add onion and cook until beef is browned and onion tender. Add tomatoes, salt, chili powder, Tabasco and mashed kidney beans. Simmer 10 minutes. Stir in ½ cup of tomato sauce. Spoon a little bean mixture over bottom of 6-cup round casserole or souffle dish. Alternate layers of tortillas and bean mixture, ending with tortilla. Pour remaining tomato sauce over top and sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 350-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. Cut into wedge-shaped portions to serve.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Here's a stew from Vienna

Although Vienna is probably best known for its elegant pastries, its cuisine is varied and truly delicious. Over the years, Austrian cooks have borrowed the best from pasta to sausage to goulash . . . each given a special Austrian "treatment."

In the sophisticated Viennese tradition, here is an adaptation of a taste-tempting goulash, or stew. Small beef cubes are simmered in a gravy basically made with beefy onion soup mix to which caraway seeds, lemon peel and paprika are added. The beefy onion mix already contains the perfect combination of seasonings already blended for you to impart a special rich, beefy taste, enlivened with onion, to the meat . . . as easy as can be.

Serve the fluffy miniature Spatzle — or substitute buttered egg noodles — surrounding the goulash. Ach du lieber . . . it's so good, you'll be making this dish again and again!

A TASTE OF OLD VIENNA

1½ cups water
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 envelope beefy onion mix
2 tablespoons paprika
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
¼ teaspoon caraway seeds
1½ pounds beef cubes (about 1-inch)
2 tablespoons flour

In Dutch oven or large saucepan, combine 1 cup water, oil, beefy onion mix, 1 tablespoon paprika, lemon peel, and caraway; add beef cubes. Bring to a boil, then simmer covered, stirring occasionally, 1½ hours or until tender. Add remaining paprika and flour blended with remaining water; simmer, stirring occasionally, an additional 15 minutes or until gravy is slightly thickened. Serve with Spatzle or hot buttered noodles. Makes about 4 servings.

Spatzle

In medium bowl, combine 1½ cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt; gradually stir in 2 eggs, slightly beaten, and ½ cup milk, until well blended. Using half the batter, drop by the half-teaspoonfuls, or using a spatula, force through large holes of colander, into salted boiling water. When Spatzle rise to the top, remove with slotted spoon and drain. Repeat with remaining batter.

Children can cope with facts of death

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Children are usually capable of dealing with the death of a loved one if the situation is presented in their terms, a pediatrician says.

It is a serious mistake to try to hide or disguise the death of someone close, because even young children can sense that something is wrong, says Dr. Morris A. Wessel in a recent edition of Family Health.

"One mother explained to her 2-year-old that when a person is dead, he or she can no longer eat, sleep, run, play or feel," he said, to show how death can be described on a child's level.

However, there is danger is using "going to sleep" or "going away" to describe death because "such terminology often precipitates fears that some other loved one, or even oneself, may be transported away during sleep."

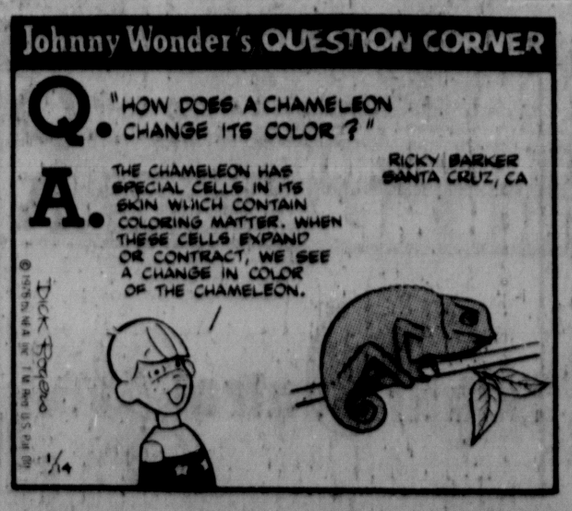
CHARMERS

JOHNNY WONDER



The little chameleon (pronounced kuh-ME lee un) is famous for changing color. Its color can change to yellow, green, dark brown and even red. Its usual color when resting is brownish or greenish.

When it is frightened or angry, its reaction causes these coloring cells to become bigger or smaller, allowing the brighter or darker colors to show, and we see a color change.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

'The Bionic Woman'
New series slated

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Bionic Woman," a spinoff of "The Six Million Dollar Man," premieres on ABC-TV tonight. It stars Lindsay Wagner, a very appealing actress, as Jamie Sommers, a bionic woman.

Jamie has one super-strong arm and super-strong legs. She didn't enter this world with them. They're sophisticated, realistic-looking electromechanical replacements for limbs she lost in a skydiving mishap.

She's a former tennis pro who grew up in Ojai, Calif., with Col. Steve Austin, the six-million-dollar man who also has bionic limbs which stem from injuries he suffered while test-flying a spacecraft.

In one scene in tonight's show, Jamie, newly hired as a teacher at a school for the children of Air Force personnel, is assigned a rowdy class of youngsters other teachers call "The Dirty Dozen."

They really give her a rough time. And while watching this show at an advance screening, I am worrying that she'll get mad, forget the power of her super-arm and belt a kid through a wall.

This might cause serious injury and lead to yet another spinoff called "The Bionic Urchin." Thankfully, it doesn't happen.

her skydiving accident, is preceded by flashback shots of her and Steve bounding about in a mission assigned them by the Office of Scientific Investigation, a sort of CIA operation for whom he works.

OSI's dedicated scientists, who gave each of them their new limbs (Steve also got a super-powerful eye, while Miss Jamie got a super-powerful ear), are helping her return to normal life.

She can recall that her parents were killed in an auto accident, that Steve's parents raised her, that she has a degree in education and that she once beat Billy Jean King in a championship match.

But the closer her memories come to the skydiving accident — Steve was with her at the time — the harder it is for her to recall what happened. She doesn't even remember they were to be married.

I know her problem in a way. I'm having trouble remembering the plot of tonight's show. But I think she gratefully promises to work for OSI if it needs her. Then she sets out for Ojai to attempt a normal life and live at the ranch owned by Steve's parents.

They gently tell her she once was engaged to Steve. She tells his mother: "I care an awful lot about Steve. But I don't know where my heart is." (If you think I'll touch that bionic line, you're nuts.)

Amid all this is some skullduggery by villains who secretly videotape a car crash they've arranged. She sees it and yanks the door off a blazing car to save a man trapped inside.

Heaven knows what evil things they have in mind for her, but the show ends with a mysterious white-haired man riding in a limousine near Ojai. Then there's a sign flashed that says: TO BE CONTINUED.

But I'm not going to call this show bad. Steve and Jamie might massage my neck with their super-strong hands and cause yet another spinoff called "The Bionic Critic."

Barbershoppers will install

Bill Woolsey of Pomona will be installed as president of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in

BILL WOOLSEY

Woolsey was appointed president last June to fill the unexpired term of Tim Scovotti. He has now been elected for a full term. Bud Dillon, a charter member of the chapter, will be the installing officer.

Taking office with Woolsey will be Gene Thompson, vice-president for administration; George McConnell, vice-president for programs; Fred Walgrin, secretary; and Adam Scoccosa, treasurer.

SPEBSQSA has a membership of 50 in the local chapter and is growing, according to Woolsey. Carl Walters directs chapter's total singing group, the Carousel Chorus. The barbershoppers are currently busy rehearsing for their annual show, to be held in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, Feb. 20 and 21. The two-hour musical, "A Salute to America," will trace the course of American history through the nation's music. There will be films and narration.

SPEBSQSA is a national organization with more than 35,000 members in 750 chapters — the largest all-male singing fraternity in the world. The local chapter boasts the oldest active member, Ed "Pappy" Boynton of Claremont, who will celebrate his 98th birthday this year.

Latin film booked

"Que Hacer," a Latin American film acclaimed at the Cannes Film Festival, will be screened in Avery Auditoriu, Pitzer College, at 8 and 10 p.m. Thursday. Admission is 50 cents.

Directed by three young filmmakers from Chile and the United States, the film explores different approaches to revolution in a South American country.

SENIOR CITIZENS — Denise Nelson, left, and Liz Milwe, senior dance students at Scripps College, will present a concert of modern dance in Garrison Theater, Claremont, at 8 p.m. Jan. 22. Miss Milwe will offer a 4-part jazz suite, and Miss Nelson will perform "Hollywood Blues," a suite choreographed to music ranging from Louis Armstrong to Andre Previn. The senior dance concert is open to the public without charge.

Tryouts set for Simon play

The Fontana Mummers will hold tryouts for "Star-Spangled Girl" at the Community Playhouse, 16256 Foothill Blvd., at 7:30 tonight and Thursday.

The Neil Simon comedy tells of two young men struggling to put out a protest magazine when the girl, an Olympic swimmer, moves into the apartment next door and throws them into a spin.

Dennis Michaels will direct.

Outbreak possible

Slums of Kingston an armed camp

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The slums in the western part of Kingston have the potential of becoming a mini-Belfast or a mini-Beirut, Jamaicans and foreign residents of the Jamaican capital say.

"The area's an armed camp, and any outsiders or anyone who crosses the line runs the risk of getting shot," one foreign resident said.

Last week, while hundreds of international financial leaders and foreign journalists were here for a meeting of the International Monetary Fund, gang warfare exploded in the Jones Town-Trench Town area.

At least four civilians and four policemen were killed. Twenty-two homes were burned. Hundreds fled from the area every day.

Prime Minister Michael Manley blamed "organized political gangs" seeking power. He obviously was referring to the opposition Jamaica Labor party. But informed Jamaicans and foreign observers agreed the violence might just as easily have been done by the left wing of Manley's People's National party.

"Both are guilty of intimidation and acts of political violence," said one diplomat.

Similarities to the urban violence in Lebanon and Northern Ireland are striking: armed gunmen or a rock-throwing crowd keeping firemen from putting out blazes set by gasoline bombs, political assassinations, sniper attacks and an organized campaign of intimidation.

Manley charged in a broadcast that gunmen singled out supporters of his party, surrounded their homes late at night and gave them a certain number of days to leave the area.

"This is being done for the purpose of destroying the local political organization. It becomes more significant when you realize this is being done on the eve of a new voter registration drive," he said.

Jones Town-Trench Town is one of the poorest, most densely populated sections of Kingston. Since the 1940s, the combination of poverty and political rivalry has led to sporadic outbursts of violence in the area, but it wasn't until about 10 years ago that the gangs switched from stones, bottles and occasional knives to the use of guns.

Three years ago, Manley instituted special gun courts which gave indefinite sentences to persons convicted of illegal possession of weapons. This appeared to be curbing gun crimes, but the British Privy Council ruled last year that the indefinite sentences were unconstitutional.

Manley announced Friday night that the government plans to introduce legislation this week to replace the indefinite sentence with life imprisonment. He has also ordered a curfew in West Kingston and house-to-house searches for weapons, set up roadblocks around the city and banned demonstrations.

Security Minister Keble Munn said there are 25,000 legal weapons in Jamaica, and he estimated there are more than 8,000 illegal firearms on the island.

"Hiring a gunman is one of the cheapest and easiest things to do," said one well-informed Jamaican. "Each party had its armed thugs because you couldn't enter the area without protection and initially they would fight among themselves. But now, it's escalated to the families of rival supporters, and hundreds of innocent people are being caught in the middle."

"People have been afraid for a long time," said a diplomat. "Now they're scared to death. You talk to middle-class Jamaicans and they tell you they don't go out after dark."

There is a steady exodus abroad, primarily of professional men, businessmen and skilled workers. While no figures are available, Jamaicans and foreigners agree the pace is picking up.

"This is a real danger," said one foreign observer. "There are only 2 million people here, 65 per cent of them under the age of 25, and the government needs every resource it can get. It can't afford to lose all these trained people."

The tendency to violence is heightened by a 20 per cent unemployment rate, which shows little sign of improving, and the young are the chief sufferers. The economic picture improved temporarily in 1974, but by the end of 1975 the trade deficit was increasing, production was declining and there was a serious deficit in the balance of payments. The U.S. recession caused a drop in two key areas, tourism and bauxite production, and great improvement is not expected in 1976.

Officials are worried that the bad publicity from the violence during the international monetary meeting may hurt what was beginning to look like a good tourist season on the north coast. They stress that the beach resorts of Ocho Rios and Montego Bay are more than 100 miles from the slums of Kingston.

Fort Worth, Tex., was incorporated as a city in 1873.

Today's birthdays: Designer and photographer Cecil Beaton is 72. Actress Faye Dunaway is 35.

Thought for today: Music is the universal language of mankind. — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, American poet, 1807-1882.

Top officials layed off by Rohr

CHULA VISTA (AP) — Financially troubled Rohr Industries has fired several top executives to save money.

Robert Vallera, vice president of public affairs, said Monday that he and "a number of vice presidents" had been dismissed by the aerospace company. He declined to say exactly how many were let go, but a Rohr spokesman said a formal company statement would be made later.

"They said it was an economics thing, that they didn't have the money to pay us," Vallera said.

Rohr, which built rapid transit cars for the San Francisco Bay area and is building subway cars for Washington D.C., recently announced a record after-tax loss of $22.9 million for the last fiscal year. The loss before taxes was put at $32.9 million.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mark Wenzel says he's riding a fine legal line on his unicycle, juggling three red balls and surprising people.

Anyone moving through life, anywhere in town, whose downcast face can brighten up at the sight of a skinny guy with a powdery white face, shabby over-alls and heavy black circles painted around his eyes.

"Working in the streets for tips is against the law in San Diego," concedes Wenzel. On several occasions, police say, he has been the subject of field investigations. But no police official will criticize Wenzel's act or his motive.

"They don't know what to do," he says.

The crowds have been bemused and delighted by his antics for many months. Outside a rock concert, he once held 4,000 trouble-prone music fans enraptured for an hour.

Wenzel, a serious actor at 25, performs most often on the grassy expanses of Balboa Park. At the park's Cassius Carter Center Stage, he won an Atlas Award in 1969 for his performance in the premier of "The Unknown Soldier and his Wife."

He studied at United States International University's School of Performing Arts and in London, where he taught mime.

The people, says Mark Wenzel, enjoy "watching me flirting with the girls, bothering the old men, polishing their bald heads." It earns him dimes and pennies but, says Wenzel, "It's an okay living. I'm not a rock star. But I pay the rent each month, and it's a way to start. I have friends who have agents, but they wait for the agents to call. I don't wait."

"I think of myself as a Renaissance performer—a jester, a fool," he said in an interview.

2 bilingual bandits get huge haul

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A pair of bilingual bandits wearing ski masks stole $67,000 in jewelry and $2,000 in cash early Tuesday after they tied up four workers in a Century City restaurant and ordered the assistant manager at gunpoint to open three safes, police said.

"It was a well planned job," commented Sgt. Walter Peters, who said the men came prepared with their own ropes and with an attache case and linen bag to haul away the loot from the Senor Pico restaurant.

Peters said the men gained entry to the closed restaurant about 12:30 a.m. when an employe briefly opened a locked door to leave.

The two bandits, who gave instructions in both English and Spanish, tied up the four dishwashers and then held a gun at the assistant manager's head while he opened the safe.

The silver and turqoise jewelry, which is displayed in the Mexican-theme restaurant during business hours, was locked up for the night with the cash, which represented Monday night's receipts, police said.

New system will trace stolen trucks

NEW YORK (AP) — An air-ground electronic system is expected to be locating and tracking stolen trucks and freight within a year, reports Fleet Owner magazine.

In its final form, the "bug" will be about the size of two cigarette packs laid end to end. At present it resembles a license plate (one inch thick, six inches wide and seven inches long) and is effective over a 50-mile range.

The device, which can be used in conjunction with a helicopter and an unmarked police car, will work as long as it is not completely surrounded by metal. It can be placed, prior to shipment, in the cargo, with or without the knowledge of the driver. Key areas of use will include valuable items such as furs, T.V. sets and appliances.

When activated by police in a helicopter or car, the device issues an electronic beam that is traceable with special equipment. The "bug" responds, even if the hijackers have taken the stolen cargo to some hidden site.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE PETITION FOR RECALL OF ERNEST N. TAYLOR FROM THE OFFICE OF MEMBER OF THE GOVERNING BOARD (BOARD OF EDUCATION) OF THE CLAREMONT UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT CLAREMONT, CALIFORNIA

TO: ERNEST N. TAYLOR

We, the undersigned, being duly qualified and registered voters in the Claremont Unified School District, State of California, do hereby give notice pursuant to Education Code S1132.4 that we intend to circulate a Petition for your recall from the above-identified office. The said recall is, and will be sought on the following grounds:

You have disregarded the needs and desires of the citizens of the District, administrative staff, teachers, students, parents and numerous community organizations. You have ignored educationally sound financial priorities and have demonstrated arbitrariness and insensitivity toward the concerned citizens of the District with a resulting loss of confidence and an erosion of morale throughout the entire District.

Dated: January 12, 1976.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District will receive bids for furnishing all labor and materials for Reroofing of Classroom Buildings, Covered Walkways, and other Specified Areas at Hamilton Elementary School, 851 South Hamilton Blvd., Pomona, CA, and Emerson Junior High School, 635 Lincoln Avenue, Pomona, CA, with all the necessary allied work.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the specifications and other contract documents and/or drawings now on file at the Business Office of said Board, in the Purchasing Department, Education Center, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA 91766, where prospective bidders may secure copies. To insure common understanding of the work to be done, the areas of work MUST be inspected by bidders with a District representative.

Pursuant to the provisions of Articles 1 and 2 of Chapter 1, Part 7, Division 11, of the Labor Code of the State of California, not less than the general prevailing rate of per diem wages, and not less than the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for legal holidays and overtime work, for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the work contemplated under this Agreement, as ascertained by and set forth in the schedule of such wages specifically hereinafter set forth and adopted by the Board of Education of the City of Pomona, shall be paid to all workmen employed on said work by the contractor or by any subcontractor doing or contracting to do any part of said work, which schedule of wages is as follows:

FOREMEN:

All foremen not herein separately classified, shall be paid not less than the rates agreed upon in the Southern California Master Labor Agreement for the Construction Industry.

APPRENTICES:

May be employed in conformity with Section 1777.5 of the California Labor Code, and shall be paid the customary proportion of the journeyman rate.

CLASSIFICATION:	RATE PER HOUR
Foreman	11.84
Sub-Foreman	11.34
Journeyman	11.09

(Health & Welfare - .55) (Pension-.75) Annuity Fund-.15) (Vacation - 1.00 included in wage rate)

(Dues Check-off - .20 included in wage rate)

The rates of per diem wages for each of the various classifications of work shall be herein before set forth prevailing rates of hourly wages multiplied by eight (8). Eight (8) hours shall constitute a day's work; it being understood that in the event that workmen are employed less than eight (8) hours per day, the per diem wages shall be deemed to be that fraction of the per diem wages herein established that the number of hours of employment bears to eight (8) hours.

WORKING RULES

1. Where a single shift is worked, eight (8) consecutive hours shall constitute a day's work at straight time for all workers.
2. Forty (40) hours between Monday 7:00 A.M. and Friday 5:00 P.M. shall constitute a week's work at straight time.
3. All work performed in excess of eight (8) hours per day or forty (40) hours per week or on holidays shall be paid for at the overtime rate of the craft involved.
4. Holidays herein referred to shall be deemed to be New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas. If any of the above holidays fall on Sunday, the Monday following shall be considered a legal holiday.

Each bid must be accompanied by a Bidder's Bond (issued by a Surety Company accredited by the Board of Education) for not less than five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid, made payable to the order of the POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT, shall be sealed and filed IN THE OFFICE OF THE PURCHASING AGENT, PURCHASING DEPARTMENT, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA 91766, on or before 11:00 A.M., January 23, 1976, at which time and place the bids will be opened. (Government Code No. 53068 prohibits accepting bids after the designated time). Bid must be marked to indicate name of bid and opening date. The District will recognize Sections 4331 and 4332 Government Code.

The above mentioned Bidder's Bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract, if awarded the work, and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into a contract after being requested to do so by the Board of Education.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish Labor and Material Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, and Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, said bonds to be secured by a Surety Company, or Surety Companies, satisfactory to the Board of Education.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and/or waive any informality in the bid. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of ten days after the date set for the opening thereof.

By the order of the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District.

NOTICE OF RESOLUTION OF INTENTION TO SELL REAL PROPERTY

RESOLVED, that it is in the judgment of this Commission, advisable to sell that real property belonging to the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program of San Bernardino County, hereinafter described, and this Commission hereby declares its intention to sell the same at a minimum price of $49,000.00 and the total purchase price shall be payable at the close of a thirty day escrow following the award or acceptance of the bid.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, that not less than three (3) weeks from the date hereof, to wit: on the 23rd day of January, 1976, at a public meeting at the Business Office of the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program, located at 141 S. Spring Street, Claremont, CA, at 2:00 o'clock p.m. sealed proposals to purchase the said real property will be received and considered.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, that final acceptance of a bid, or rejection of all bids, shall be made by the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program Commission at its public meeting held in January.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, and found by this Commission that the real property hereinafter discussed, or any portion of it, is not now and will not at the time of delivery of title or possession be longer needed for school classroom buildings or for public use of the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program of San Bernardino County.

The real property intended to be sold pursuant to this Notice is described as all that certain real property situated in the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program, County of Los Angeles, State of California, and more particularly described as follows, to wit: Lot 21, Tract 23225, Recorded in Map Book 621, Pages 39 and 40 of the Los Angeles County Recorder's Office with a new and unused four bedroom Spanish style home located thereon. The above described real property is more commonly referred to as 1522 Deventer, La Verne, California.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, that the aforementioned lot and house situated thereon be sold for a minimum of $49,000.00 net to the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program and that no real estate commission be paid from the $49,000.00. Any price above $52,000.00 will have a 6% real estate commission allowable to a licensed real estate broker. No commission shall be paid unless there is contained in or with the sealed proposal or stated in or with the oral bid, which is finally accepted, the name of the licensed real estate broker to whom it is to be paid, and the amount or rate thereof. Said commission shall however, be paid only out of money received by the Commission from the sale of the property.

Report from Philip Morris

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

New 9 mg. tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'™ proves taste no longer depends on amount of tar.

Until now, cigarette flavor pretty much depended on the amount of tar that went along with it.

That was the theory.

Until now.

This is another report on MERIT from Philip Morris.

Low Tar, Good Taste: Filters Fall Short

At first, we tried designing special filters, too. Like others, our results were generally disappointing.

These results confirmed a belief that if there was any way to get flavor—real flavor—into a low tar cigarette, the answer had to lie somewhere in the tobacco itself.

So we focused on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end. And decided if we wanted to get more flavor through to you, we'd just have to start with more.

By adding only those natural ingredients of extreme high quality as flavor contributors, yet low tar producing as well, they were able to pack MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'—without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

Read the taste-test results for yourself.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much —or more— taste than the higher tar brands tested.
